NOTE.

THE first edition of the First Part of Samuel Butler's Hudibras was 'Printed by J. G. for Richard Marriot, under Saint Dunstan's Church in Fleet street. 1663.' It was published anonymously and carries the 'Imprimatur' of 'Jo: Berkenhead. Novemb. 1662.' The title runs thus: — HUDIBRAS. THE FIRST PART. | Written in the time of the late Wars. |, followed by the design of a wreath. The book measures $4\frac{1}{2} \times 7$ ins., contains 268 pages, and a few errata are given at the foot of the last page. Though dated 1663, it was on sale soon after the date of the License, for Mr Pepys, who does not seem to have been greatly attracted to the poem at his first reading, records, under date December 26, 1662: 'To the Wardrobe. Hither come Mr Battersby; and we falling into discourse of a new book of drollery in use called Hudebras, I would needs go find it out, and met with it at the Temple: cost me 2s. 6d. But when I came to read it, it is so silly an abuse of the Presbyter Knight going to the warrs, that I am ashamed of it; and by and by meeting at Mr Townsend's at dinner, I sold it to him for 18d.' He appears, however, to have repented of this rash act, for six weeks later (February 6, 1662–3) he writes: 'And so to a bookseller's in the Strand, and there bought Hudibras again, it being certainly some ill humour to be so against that which all the world cries up to be an example of wit;

NOTE

for which I am resolved once again to read him, and see whether I can find it or no.' (Ed. Wheatley, 1893.)

The Second Part, 'By the Authour of the First,' was 'Printed by T. R. for John Martyn, and James Allestry at the Bell in St Pauls Church Yard, 1664.' A block on the title page contains the design of a bell and the publishers' initials 'M A' interlaced. The 'Imprimatur' is signed 'Roger L'Estrange. Novemb. 5^{th} . 1663.' The book measures $4\frac{1}{2} \times 7$ ins., contains 216 pages and has a few errata noted at the foot of the last page.

These first editions of Parts I. and II. do not contain either the 'Annotations' or 'An Heroical Epistle of Hudibras to Sidrophel,' which were added later. Both parts were 'corrected and amended, with several additions and annotations' in 1674. An issue of the year 1678 forms the basis of the present edition, and in the Appendix will be found the variations between the issues of 1678 and the first editions of 1663-4.

'The Third and last Part. Written by the Author of the First and Second Parts,' 'Printed for Simon Miller, at the sign of the Star at the West End of St Pauls, $(4 \times 7 \text{ ins.})$ was published in 1678 and reprinted in 1679, from a copy of which later issue the present text has been printed. A few trifling variations between 1678 and 1679 will be found noted in the Appendix to the present edition, where also will be found a list of errors in the three parts deemed to be misprints and therefore altered in the present text.

Of the numerous editions which appeared after the death of Butler, mention need only be made of the elaborately annotated two volume edition of Zachary Grey, LL.D., 'Adorn'd with a new Set of Cuts' (by Hogarth), published at Cambridge in 1744 and 'Printed by J. BENTHAM, Printer to the UNIVERSITY, for W. Innys, A. Ward, Mess. J. and P. Knapton, D. Browne, S. Birt, T. Longman, T. Woodward, C. Hitch, J. Oswald, J. Shuckburgh, J. Hodges, E. Wicksteed, Mess. Ward and Chandler, G. Hawkins, Mess. J. and R. Tonson, M. Cooper, R. Wellington, and C. Bathurst, in London.' Dr Grey gives the reading he prefers, when confronted with earlier and later readings, and in other respects his text is 'edited.' Its annotations are its great merit.

The purchaser of early editions of Butler's Hudibras may be warned against the spurious or pirated issues that accompanied the first edition of Part I.; the particulars given above should suffice to identify the first genuine impression. The matter is further complicated by the existence of genuine texts in a smaller state, concerning which Lowndes (ed. H. G. Bohn, 1862) states 'When the legitimate "author's edition," in small 8vo. came out in 1663, another smaller edition, the size of the spurious one, appears to have been published at the same time, and by the same publishers, probably to compete in cheapness with its rival.'

I have taken the alternative readings of Parts I. and II. from the copy of the first genuine 8vo. state in the Cambridge University Library (Syn. 7, 66, 55). Of the various states of the first edition of Part III. particulars are given in an interesting correspondence in Notes and Queries, 6th ser., vi. pp. 108, 150, 276, 311, 370 and 454. The copies collated in the preparation of the present text are those in the British Museum (G. 11450 and 11623. c. 23. (2.)). A useful bibliography of illustrated editions of Hudibras, translations, spurious editions, imitations, etc., will be found in Mr R. B. Johnson's edition of the poetical works of Samuel Butler, Vol. 1., 1893, and some interesting states of the early issues of

Parts I. and II. are described in Messrs Pickering and Chatto's Book Lover's Leaflet, No. 137.

The method adopted in the editing of the present text is the same as that adopted for the other volumes of the CAMBRIDGE ENGLISH CLASSICS. Evident misprints in punctuation have been corrected but all such cases are set forth in the Appendix at the end. In all other respects, what are now regarded as eccentricities of punctuation have been left as originally printed, just as inconsistencies of spelling have been left 'unedited.' Even to students who have only acquired a slight familiarity with the literature of two or three hundred years ago, the 'pointing' of those days is no more a stumbling-block than the spelling; it is no greater hindrance to appreciation and understanding; and it gives to the general reader an added sense of nearness to the actual form in which the author made his appearance.

The Argument of the First CANTO.

Sir Hudibras his passing worth,
The manner how he sally'd forth:
His Arms and Equipage are shown;
His Horse's Vertues, and his own.
Th' Adventure of the Bear and Fiddle
Is sung, but breaks off in the middle.

CANTO I.

When civil fury first grew high,
And men fell out they knew not why,
When hard Words, Jealousies, and Fears,
Set Folks together by the Ears,
And made them fight, like mad or drunk,
For Dame Religion as for Punk,
Whose honesty they all durst swear for,
Though not a man of them knew wherefore:
When Gospel-Trumpeter surrounded,
With long-ear'd rout to Battel sounded,
And Pulpit, Drum Ecclesiastick,
Was beat with fist, instead of a stick:
Then did Sir Knight abandon dwelling,
And out he rode a Colonelling.

A Wight he was, whose very sight wou'd Entitle him Mirror of Knighthood; That never bent his stubborn knee To any thing but Chivalry, Nor put up blow, but that which laid Right worshipful on Shoulder-blade: Chief of Domestick Knights and Errant, Either for Chartel or for Warrant: Great on the Bench, Great in the Saddle, That could as well bind o'er, as swaddle. Mighty he was at both of these, And styl'd of War as well as Peace. (So some Rats of amphibious nature, Are either for the Land or Water) But here our Authors make a doubt, Whether he were more wise, or stout. Some hold the one, and some the other: But howsoe'er they make a pother, The difference was so small, his Brain Outweigh'd his Rage but half a Grain: Which made some take him for a Tool That Knaves do work with, call'd a Fool. And offer to lay wagers that As Mountaigne playing with his Cat, Complains she thought him but an Ass, Much more she would Sir Hudibras. (For that's the Name our valiant Knight To all his Challenges did write.) But they're mistaken very much, 'Tis plain enough he was no such. We grant, although he had much wit, H' was very shie of using it, As being loath to wear it out, And therefore bore it not about. Unless on Holy-days, or so, As Men their best Apparel do. Beside, 'tis known he could speak Greek, As naturally as Pigs squeek: That Latine was no more difficile, Than to a Black-bird 'tis to whistle.

Being rich in both, he never scanted His Bounty unto such as wanted; But much of either would afford, To many that had not one word. For Hebrew Roots, although th' are found To flourish most in barren ground, He had such plenty as suffic'd To make some think him circumcis'd: And truely so perhaps, he was 'Tis many a Pious Christians case.

He was in Logick a great Critick, Profoundly skill'd in Analytick. He could distinguish, and divide A Hair 'twixt South and South-West side: On either which he would dispute, Confute, change hands, and still confute. He'd undertake to prove by force Of Argument, a Man's no Horse. He'd prove a Buzard is no Fowl, And that a Lord may be an Owl, A Calf an Alderman, a Goose a Justice, And Rooks Committee-men, and Trustees; He'd run in Debt by Disputation, And pay with Ratiocination. All this by Syllogism, true In mood and Figure, he would do.

For Rhetorick he could not ope His mouth, but out there flew a Trope: And when he hapned to break off I'th' middle of his speech, or cough, H' had hard words, ready to shew why, And tell what Rules he did it by. Else when with greatest Art he spoke, You'd think he talk'd like other folk, For all a Rhetoricians Rules, Teach nothing but to name his Tools, His ordinary Rate of Speech In loftiness of sound was rich,

A Babylonish dialect, Which learned Pedants much affect. It was a parti-colour'd dress Of patch'd and pyball'd Languages: 'Twas English cut on Greek and Latin, Like Fustian heretofore on Sattin. It had an odd promiscuous Tone, As if h' had talk'd three parts in one. Which made some think when he did gabble, Th' had heard three Labo'rers of Babel; Or Cerberus himself pronounce A Leash of Languages at once. This he as volubly would vent As if his stock would ne'er be spent. And truly to support that charge He had supplies as vast and large. For he could coin or counterfeit New words with little or no wit: Words so debas'd and hard, no stone Was hard enough to touch them on. And when with hasty noise he spoke 'em, The Ignorant for currant took 'em. That had the Orator who once, Did fill his Mouth with Pibble Stones When he harangu'd, but known his Phrase, He would have us'd no other ways.

In Mathematicks he was greater Than Tycho Brahe, or Erra Pater: For he, by Geometrick scale, Could take the size of Pots of Ale; Resolve by Signs and Tangents streight, If Bread or Butter wanted weight; And wisely tell what hour o'th' day The Clock doth strike, by Algebra.

Beside he was a shrewd Philosopher, And had read every Text and gloss over: What e'er the crabbed'st Author hath He understood b' implicit Faith,

What ever Sceptick could inquire for; For every why he had a wherefore; Knew more than forty of them do, As far as words and terms could go. All which he understood by Rote, And as occasion serv'd, would quote; No matter whether right or wrong: They might be either said or sung. His Notions fitted things so well, That which was which he could not tell; But oftentimes mistook th' one For th' other, as great Clerks have done. He could reduce all things to Acts, And knew their Natures by Abstracts, Where Entity and Quiddity The Ghosts of defunct Bodies flie; Where Truth in Person does appear, Like words congeal'd in Northern Air. He knew what's what, and that's as high As Metaphysick Wit can fly, In School Divinity as able As he that hight Irrefragable; Profound in all the Nominal And real ways beyond them all; And with as delicate a Hand, Could twist as tough a Rope of Sand. And weave fine Cobwebs, fit for Skull That's empty when the Moon is full; Such as take Lodgings in a Head That's to be lett unfurnished. He could raise Scruples dark and nice, And after solve 'em in a trice: As if Divinity had catch'd The Itch, of purpose to be scratch'd; Or, like a Mountebank, did wound And stab her self with doubts profound, Only to shew with how small pain The sores of faith are cur'd again; Although by woful proof we find, They always leave a Scar behind.

He knew the Seat of Paradise, Could tell in what degree it lies: And as he was dispos'd, could prove it, Bfellow the Moon, or else above it. What Adam dreamt of when his Bride Came from her Closet in his side: Whether the Devil tempted her By a High Dutch Interpreter: If either of them had a Navel; Who first made Musick malleable: Whether the Serpent at the fall Had cloven Feet, or none at all. All this without a Gloss or Comment, He would unriddle in a moment: In proper terms, such as men smatter When they throw out and miss the matter.

For his Religion it was fit To match his Learning and his Wit: 'Twas Presbyterian true blew, For he was of that stubborn Crew Of Errant Saints, whom all men grant To be the true Church Militant: Such as do build their Faith upon The holy Text of Pike and Gun; Decide all Controversies by Infallible Artillery; And prove their Doctrine Orthodox By Apostolick Blows and Knocks; Call Fire and Sword and Desolation, A godly-thorough-Reformation, Which always must be carry'd on, And still be doing, never done: As if Religion were intended For nothing else but to be mended. A Sect, whose chief Devotion lies In odd perverse Antipathies; In falling out with that or this, And finding somewhat still amiss: More prevish, cross, and splenetick,

Than Dog distract, or Monky sick. That with more care keep Holy-day The wrong, than others the right way: Compound for Sins, they are inclin'd to; By damning those they have no mind to; Still so perverse and opposite, As if they worshipp'd God for spight, The self-same thing they will abhor One way, and long another for. Free-will they one way disavow, Another, nothing else allow. All Piety consists therein In them, in other Men all Sin. Rather than fail, they will defie That which they love most tenderly, Quarrel with minc'd Pies, and disparage Their best and dearest friend, Phum-porridge; Fat Pig and Goose it self oppose, And blaspheme Custard through the Nose. Th' Apostles of this fierce Religion, Like Mahomet's, were Ass and Widgeon, To whom our Knight, by fast instinct Of Wit and Temper was so linkt, As if Hipocrisie and Non-sence Had got th' Advouson of his Conscience.

Thus was he gifted and accouter'd, We mean on th' inside, not the outward: That next of all we shall discuss; Then listen Sirs, it followeth thus:

His tawny Beard was th' equal grace Both of his Wisdom and his Face; In Cut and Dy so like a Tile, A sudden view it would beguile: The upper part thereof was Whey, The nether Orange mixt with Grey. This hairy Meteor did denounce The fall of Scepters and of Crowns; With grizly type did represent Declining Age of Government; And tell with Hieroglyphick Spade, Its own grave and the State's were made. Like Sampson's Heart-breakers, it grew In time to make a Nation rue; Though it contributed its own fall, To wait upon the publick downfall. It was Canonick, and did grow In Holy Orders by strict vow; Of Rule as sullen and severe, As that of rigid Cordeliere: 'Twas bound to suffer Persecution And Martyrdome with resolution; T' oppose it self against the hate And vengeance of th' incensed State: In whose defiance it was worn, Still ready to be pull'd and torn, With red-hot Irons to be tortur'd, Revil'd, and spit upon, and martyr'd. Maugre all which, 'twas to stand fast, As long as Monarchy should last. But when the State should hap to reel, "Twas to submit to fatal Steel, And fall, as it was consecrate A Sacrifice to fall of State; Whose thred of life the fatal Sisters Did twist together with its Whiskers, And twine so close, that time should never, In life or death, their fortunes sever; But with his rusty Sickle mow Both down together at a blow.

So learned Taliacotius from The brawny part of Porter's Bum, Cut supplemental Noses, which Would last as long as Parent breech: But when the Date of Nock was out, Off dropt the Sympathetick Snout.

His Back, or rather Burthen show'd As if it stoop'd with its own load. For as \mathcal{E} neas bore his Sire, Upon his S[h]oulders through the Fire: Our Knight did bear no less a Pack Of his own Buttocks on his Back: Which now had almost got the Upper-Hand of his Head, for want of Crupper. To poize this equally, he bore A Paunch of the same bulk before: Which still he had a special care To keep well cramm'd with thrifty fare; As White-pot, Butter-milk, and Curds, Such as a Countrey house affords; Wilth other Victual, which anon, We further shall dilate upon, When of his Hose we come to treat, The Cub-bord where he kept his meat.

His Doublet was of sturdy Buff, And though not Sword, yet Cudgel-proof; Whereby 'twas fitter for his use. That fear'd no blows but such as bruise.

His Breeches were of rugged Woollen, And had been at the Siege of Bullen, To old King Harry so well known, Some Writers held they were his own. Through they were lin'd with many a piece, Of Ammunition-Bread and Cheese, And fat Black-puddings, proper food For Warriers that delight in Blood; For, as we said, he alway chose To carry Vittle in his Hose. That often tempted Rats, and Mice, The Ammunition to surprize: And when he put a Hand but in The one or th' other Magazine, They stoutly in defence on't stood And from the wounded Foe drew bloud,

And till th' were storm'd and beaten out, Ne'r left the fortifi'd Redoubt: And though Knights Errant, as some think, Of old did neither eat nor drink, Because when thorough Desarts vast And Regions Desolate they past, Where Belly-timber above ground Or under was not to be found, Unless they graz'd, there's not one word Of their Provision on Record: Which made some confidently write, They had no stomachs but to fight, 'Tis false: for Arthur wore in Hall Round Table like a Farthingal, On which, with Shirt pull'd out behind, And eke before his good Knights din'd. Though 'twas no Table, some suppose, But a huge pair of round Trunk-hose; In which he carry'd as much meat As he and all his Knights could eat; When laying by their Swords and Truncheons, They took their Breakfasts, or their Nuncheons; But let that pass at present, lest We should forget where we digrest; As learned Authors use, to whom We leave it, and to th' purpose come, His Puissant Sword unto his side Near his undaunted Heart was ty'd, With Basket-hilt, that wou'd hold broth, And serve for Fight, and Dinner both. In it he melted Lead for Bullets, To shoot at Foes, and sometimes Pullets; To whom he bore so fell a Grutch, He ne'er gave quarter t' any such. The trenchant blade, Toledo trusty, For want of fighting was grown rusty, And eat into it self, for lack Of some body to hew and hack. The peaceful Scabbard where it dwelt, The Rancor of its Edge had felt:

For of the lower end two handful, It had devoured 'twas so manful; And so much scorn'd to lurk in case, As if it durst not shew its face. In many desperate Attempts Of Wars, Exigents, Contempts, It had appear'd with Courage bolder Than Sergeant Bum, invading shoulder. Oft had it ta'en possession, And Pris'ners too, or made them run.

This Sword a Dagger had his Page. But was but little for his age: And therefore waited on him so, As Dwarfs upon Knights Errant do. It was a serviceable Dudgeon, Either for fighting or for drudging; When it had stab'd or broke a head, It would scrape Trenchers, or chip Bread, Toast Cheese or Bacon, though it were To bait a Mouse-trap, 'twould not care. 'Twould make clean shooes, and in the Earth Set Leeks and Onions, and so forth. It had been Prentice to a Brewer, Where this and more it did endure. But left the Trade, as many more Have lately done on the same score.

In th' Holsters, at his Saddle-bow,
Two aged Pistols he did stow,
Among the surplus of such meat
As in his Hose he could not get.
They were upon hard Duty still,
And every night stood Sentinel,
To guard the Magazine i'th' Hose
From two legg'd and from four legg'd Foes.

Thus clad and fortifi'd, Sir Knight From peaceful home set forth to fight. But first with nimble active force

He got on th' outside of his Horse. For having but one stirrup ty'd T' his Saddle, on the further side, It was so short, h' had much adoe To reach it with his desperate Toe. But after many strains and heaves He got up to the Saddle eaves. From whence he vaulted into th' Seat With so much vigor, strength, and heat, That he had almost tumbled over With his own weight, but did recover, By laying hold of Tail and Mane, Which oft he us'd instead of Rein.

But now we talk of mounting Steed, Before we f[ur]ther do proceed, It doth behove us to say something, Of that which bore our valiant Bumkin. The Beast was sturdy large and tall, With Mouth of Meal and Eyes of Wall: I would say Eye, for h' had but one, As most agree, though some say none. He was well stay'd, and in his Gate Preserv'd a grave majestick state. At Spur or Switch no more he skipt, Or mended pace, than Spaniard whipt: And yet so fiery, he would bound, As if he griev'd to touch the Ground: That Cæsar's Horse, who, as Fame goes, Had Corns upon his Feet and Toes, Was not by half so tender-hooft, Nor trode upon the ground so soft. And as that Beast would kneel and stoop, (Some write) to take his Rider up: So Hudibras his ('tis well known,) Would often do, to set him down. We shall not need to say what lack Of Leather was upon his back: For that was hidden under pad, And breech of Knight gall'd full as bad.

His strutting Ribs on both sides show'd Like furrows he himself had plow'd: For underneath the skirt of Pannel, 'Twixt every two there was a Channel. His dragling Tail hung in the Dirt, Which on his Rider he would flirt Still as his tender side he prickt, With arm'd heel or with unarm'd kickt: For Hudibras wore but one Spur, As wisely knowing, could he stir To active trot one side of's Horse, The other would not hang an Arse:

A Squire he had whose name was Ralph, That in th' adventure went his half. Though Writers (for more statelier tone) Do call him Ralpho, 'tis all one: And when we can with Meeter safe, We'll call him so, if not plain Ralph, For Rhime the Rudder is of Verses, With which like Ships they stear their courses. An equal stock of Wit and Valour He had laid in, by birth a Taylor. The mighty Tyrian Queen that gain'd With subtle shreds a Tract of Land, Did leave it with a Castle fair To his great Ancestor, her Heir: From him descended cross-leg'd Knights, Fam'd for their Faith and Warlike Fights Against the bloudy Caniball, Whom they destroy'd both great and small. This sturdy Squire had as well As the bold Trojan Knight, seen hell, Not with a counterfeited Pass Of Golden Bough, but true Gold-lace. His knowledge was not far behind The Knights, but of another kind, And he another way came by't, Some call it Gift, and some New light; A liberal Art, that costs no pains

Of Study, Industry, or Brains. His Wits were sent him for a Token, But in the Carriage crackt and broken Like Commendation Nine-pence, crookt With to and from my Love, it lookt, He ne'r consider'd it, as loath To look a Gift-horse in the Mouth; And very wisely would lay forth No more upon it than 'twas worth. But as he got it freely, so He spent it frank and freely too. For Saints themselves will sometimes be, Of Gifts that cos[t] them nothing, free. By means of this, with hem and cough, Prolongers to enlightned Snuff, He could deep Mysteries unriddle, As easily as thread a Nee[d]le; For as of Vagabonds we say, That they are ne'r beside their way: What e'r men speak by this New Light, Still they are sure to be i'th' right. 'Tis a Dark-Lanthorn of the Spirit, Which none see by but those that bear it. A Light that falls down from on high, For Spiritual Trades to couzen by: An Ignis Fatuus that bewitches, And leads Men into Pools and Ditches, To make them dip themselves, and sound For Christendom [in] dirty Pond; To dive like Wild-foul for Salvation, And fish to catch Regeneration. This Light inspires, and plays upon The nose of Saint like Bag-pipe drone, And speaks through hollow empty Soul, As through a Trunk, or whisp'ring hole, Such language as no mortal Ear But spiritual Eve-droppers can hear. So Phæbus or some friendly Muse Into small Poets song infuse; Which they at second-hand rehearse

Through Reed or Bag-pipe, Verse for Verse.

Thus Ralph became infallible, As three or four-leg'd Oracle, The ancient Cup, or modern Chair, Spoke truth point-blank, though unaware:

For mystick Learning, wondrous able In Magick Talisman, and Cabal, Whose Primitive Tradition reaches As far as Adam's first green Breeches: Deep-sighted in Intelligences, Idea's, Atomes, Influences; And much of Terra Incognita, Th' intelligible World could say; A deep occult Philosopher, As learn'd as the Wild Irish are, Or Sir Agrippa, for profound And solid Lying much renown'd: He Anthroposophus, and Floud, And Facob Behmen understood; Knew many an Amulet and Charm, That would do neither good nor harm: In Rosy-Crucian Lore as Learned, As he that Vere adeptus earned. He understood the speech of Birds As well as they themselves do words: Could tell what subtlest Parrots mean, That speak and think contrary clean; What Member 'tis of whom they talk When they cry Rope, and Walk Knave, walk. He'd extract numbers out of matter, And keep them in a Glass, like water, Of Sov'raign pow'r to make men wise; For dropt in blere, thick-sighted Eyes, They'd make them see in darkest night, Like Owls, though pur-blind in the light. By help of these (as he profest) He had First Matter seen undrest: He took her naked all alone,

Before one Rag of Form was on. The Chaos too he had descry'd, And seen quite through, or else he ly'd: Not that of Past-board which men shew For Groats at Fair of Barthol' mew; But its great Gransire, first o'th' name, Whence that and Reformation came: Both Cousin-Germans, and right able T'inveigle and draw in the Rabble. But Reformation was, some say, O'th' younger house to Puppet-Play. He could foretell whats'ever was By consequence to come to pass. As Death of Great Men, Alterations, Diseases, Battels, Inundations. All this without th' Eclipse of Sun, Or dreadful Comet, he hath done By inward Light, a way as good, And easie to be understood. But with more lucky hit than those That use to make the Stars depose, Like Knights o' th' Post, and falsly charge Upon themselves what others forge: As if they were consenting to All mischief in the World men do: Or like the Dev'l, did tempt and sway 'em To Rogueries, and then betray 'em. They'l search a Planet's house, to know, Who broke and robb'd a house below: Examine Venus, and the Moon Who stole a Thimble and a Spoon: And though they nothing will confess, Yet by their very looks can guess, And tell what guilty Aspect bodes, Who stole, and who receiv'd the Goods. They'l question Mars, and by his look Detect who 'twas that nimm'd a Cloke: Make Mercury confess and peach Those Thieves which he himself did teach. They'l find i' th' Phisiognomies

()' th' Planets all mens destinies. Like him that took the Doctor's Bill, And swallow'd it instead o' th' Pill. Cast the Nativity o' th' Question, And from Positions to be guest on, As sure as if they knew the Moment Of Natives birth, tell what will come on't. They'l feel the Pulses of the Stars, To find out Agues, Coughs, Catarrhs; And tell what Crysis does divine The Rot in Sheep, or Mange in Swine: In Men what gives or cures the Itch, What make[s] them Cuckolds, poor or rich: What gains or loses, hangs or saves; What makes men great, what fools or knaves; But not what wise, for only of those The Stars (they say) cannot dispose, No more than can the Astrologians. There they say right, and lik true Trojans. This Ralpho knew, and therefore took The other course, of which we spoke.

Thus was th' accomplish'd Squire endu'd With Gifts and Knowledge, per'lous shrew'd. Never did trusty Squire with Knight, Or Knight with Squire jump more right. Their Arms and Equipage did fit, As well as Virtues, Parts, and Wit. Their Valors too were of a Rate, And out they sally'd at the Gate. Few miles on horseback had they jogged, But fortune unto them turn'd dogged. For they a sad adventure met, Of which we now prepare to Treat: But e'er we venture to unfold Atchievements so resolv'd and bold, We should as learned Poets use, Invoke the assistance of some Muse; However Criticks count it sillier Than Juglers talking t' a Familiar.

We think 'tis no great matter which, They're all alike, yet we shall pitch On one that fits our purpose most, Whom therefore thus do we accost.

Thou that with Ale or viler Liquors, Didst inspire Withers, Prin, and Vickars, And force them, though it were in spight Of Nature, and their Stars, to write; Who, as we finde in sullen Writs, And cross-graind Works of modern Wits, With Vanity, Opinion, Want, The wonder of the Ignorant, The Praises of the Author, penn'd By himself, or wit-ensuring friend, The Itch of Picture in the Front, With Bays, and wicked Rhime upon't All that is left o'th' forked Hill To make men scribble without skill, Canst make a Poet, spight of fate, And teach all People to translate; Though out of Languages in which They understand no Part of Speech: Assist me but this once, I'mplore, And I shall trouble thee no more.

In Western Clime there is a Town To those that dwell therein well known; Therefore there needs no more be sed here We unto them refer our Reader: For brevity is very good, When w'are, or are not understood. To this Town People did repair On days of Market or of Fair, And to crack'd Fiddle, and hoarse Tabor In merriment did drudge and labor: But now a sport more formidable Had rak'd together Village rabble. 'Twas an old way of Recreating,

Which learned Butchers call Bear-baiting: A bold advent'rous exercise, With ancient Heroe's in high prize; For Authors do affirm it came From Ist[b]mian or Nemean game; Others derive it from the Bear That's fixt in Northern Hemisphere, And round about the Pole does make A circle like a Bear at stake. That at the Chain's end wheels about, And over-turns the Rabble-rout. For after solemn Proclamation In the Bear's name (as is the fashion, According to the Law of Arms, To keep men from inglorious harms) That none presume to come so near As forty foot of stake of Bear; If any yet be so fool-hardy, T'expose themselves to vain Jeopardy; If they come wounded off and lame No honour's got by such a maim. Although the Bear gain'd much b'ing bound In honour to make good his ground. When he's engag'd, and take no notice, If any press upon him, who 'tis, But let them know at their own cost That he intends to keep his post. This to prevent, and [other] harms, Which always wait on feats of Arms, (For in the hurry of a Fray 'Tis hard to keep out of harm's way) Thither the Knight his course did stear, To keep the peace 'twixt Dog and Bear; As he believ'd h' was bound to doe, In Conscience and Commission too. And therefore thus bespoke the Squire;

We that are wisely mounted higher Then Constables, in Curule wit, When on Tribunal bench we sit,

Like Speculators, should foresee From Pharos of Authority, Portended Mischiefs farther then Low Proletarian Tithing-men. And therefore being inform'd by bruit, That Dog and Bear are to dispute; For so of late men fighting name, Because they often prove the same; (For where the first does hap to be The last does coincidere) Quantum in nobis, have thought good, To save th' expence of Christian blood, And try if we by Mediation Of Treaty and accommodation Can end the quarrel, and compose The bloudy Duel without blows. Are not our Liberties, our Lives, The Laws, Religion, and our Wives Enough at once to lie at stake, For Cov'nant and the Causes sake; But in that quarrel Dogs and Bears As well as we must venture theirs? This Feud by Fesuits invented, By evil Counsel is fomented, There is a Machiavilian Plot, (Though ev'ry Nare olfa&t it not) A deep design in't to divide The well-affected that confide. By setting Brother against Brother, To claw and curry one another. Have we not enemies plus satis, That Cane & angue pejus hate us? And shall we turn our fangs and claws Upon our selves without a cause? That some occult design doth lie In bloudy Cynar Etomachy Is plain enough to him that knows How Saints lead Brothers by the Nose. I wish my self a Pseudo-Prophet, But sure some mischief will come of it:

Unless by providential wit Or force we averruncate it. For what design, what interest Can Beast have to encounter Beast? They fight for no espoused Cause; Frail Priviledge, Fundamental Laws, Nor for a thorough Reformation, Nor Covenant, nor Protestation; Nor Liberty of Consciences, Nor Lords and Commons Ordinances; Nor for the Church, nor for Church Lands, To get them in their own no Hands; Nor evil Counsellors to bring To Justice that seduce the King; Nor for the worship of us men, Though we have done as much for them. Th' Egyptians worshipp'd Dogs, and for Their faith made fierce and zealous Warr. Others ador'd a Rat, and some For that Church suffer'd Martyrdome. The Indians fought for the truth Of th' Elephant, and Monkey's Tooth: And many, to defend that faith, Fought it out mordicus to death. But no Beast ever was so slight, For Man, as for his God, to fight. They have more wit, alas! and know Themselves and us better than so. But we, we onely do infuse The Rage in them like Boute-feus. 'Tis our example that instills In them th' infection of our ills. For as some late Philosophers Have well observed, Beasts that converse With Man, take after him, as Hogs Get Pigs all th' year, and Bitches Dogs. Just so by our example Cattle Learn to give one another Battel. We read in Nero's time, the Heathen, When they destroy'd the Christian Brethren,

They sow'd them in the skins of Bears, And then set Dogs about their Ears: From whence, no doubt, th' invention came Of this lewd Antichristian Game.

To this, quoth Ralpho, Verily, The Point seems very plain to be. It is an Antichristia[n] Game, Unlawful both in thing and name; First for the Name, The word Bear-baiting, Is Carnal, and of man's creating: For certainly there's no such word In all the Scripture on Record. Therefore unlawful and a sin, And so is (secondly) the thing. A vile Assembly 'tis, that can No more be prov'd by Scripture than Provincial, Classick, National; Mere humane Creature-Cobwebs all. Thirdly, it is Idolatrous: For when men run a-whoring thus With their Inventions whatsoe'r The thing be, whether Dog or Bear, It is Idolatrous and Pagan No less than worshipping of Dagon.

Quoth Hudibras, I smell a Rat; Ralpho, thou dost prevaricate. For though the Thesis which thou lay'st Be true ad amussim as thou say'st: (For that Bear-baiting should appear fure Divino lawfuller Than Synods are, thou dost deny, Totidem verbis so do I) Yet there's a fallacy in this: For if by sly Homæosis, Thou would'st Sophistically imply Both are unlawful, I deny.

And I (quoth Ralpho) do not doubt

But Bear-baiting may be made out In Gospel-times, as lawful as is Provincial or Parochial Classis:
And that both are so near of kin,
And like in all as well as sin,
That put them in a bag and shake 'em,
Your self o' th' sudden would mistake 'em,
And not know which is which, unless
You measure by their wickedness:
For 'tis not hard t' imagine whether
O' th' two is worst, though I name neither.

Quoth Hudibras, thou offer'st much, But art not able to keep touch. Mira de lente, as 'tis i' th' Adage, Id est, to make a Leak a Cabbage. Thou canst at best but overstrain A Paradox, and th' own hot brain: For what can Synods have at all With Bears that's Analogical? Or what relation has debating Of Church-Affairs with Bear-baiting? A just comparison still is, Of things ejusdem generis. And then what Genus rightly doth, Include and comprehend them both? If Animal, both of us may As justly pass for Bears as they. For we are Animals no less, Although of different Specieses. But, Ralpho this is no fit place, Nor time to argue out the Case: For now the Field is not far off, Where we must give the world a proof Of Deeds, not Words, and such as suit Another manner of Dispute. A Controversie that affords Actions for Arguments, not Words: Which we must manage at a rate Of Prowess and Conduct adæquate;

To what our place and fame doth promise, And all the godly expect from us. Nor shall they be deceiv'd, unless W' are flurr'd and outed by success: Success, the Mark no mortal Wit, Or surest hand can always hit: For whatsoe're we perpetrate, We do but row, we'are steer'd by Fate, Which in success oft disinherits, For spurious Causes, noblest merits. Great Actions are not always true Sons Of great and mighty Resolutions: Nor doth the bold'st attempts bring forth Events still equal to their worth; But sometimes fail, and in their stead, Fortune and Cowardise succeed, Yet we have no great cause to doubt, Our actions still have born us out. Which though th' are known to be so ample, We need no copy from example, We'are not the onely person durst Attempt this Province, nor the first. In Northern Clime a valorous Knight Did whilom kill his Bear in fight, And wound a Fidler: we have both Of these the objects of our Wroth, And equal Fame and Glory from Th' Attempt or Victory to come. 'Tis sung, There is a valiant Marmaluke In foreign Land, yclep'd-To whom we have been oft compar'd For Person, Parts, Address and Beard: Both equally reputed stout, And in the same Cause both have fought. He oft in such Attempts as these Came off with glory and success. Nor will we fail in th' execution, For want of equal Resolution. Honour is, like a Widow, won With brisk Attempt and putting on;

With ent'ring manfully, and urging; Not slow approaches, like a Virgin.

This said, as once the Phrygian Knight, So ours, with rusty steell, did smite His Trojan Horse, and just as much He mended pace upon the touch; But from his empty stomach groan'd Just as that hollow Beast did sound, And angry answer'd from behind, With brandish'd Tail and blast of Wind. So have I seen with armed heel, A Wight bestride a Commonweal; Whil'st still the more he kick'd and spurr'd, The less the sullen Jade has stirr'd.

The Argument of the Second CANTO.

The Catalogue and Character
Of the Enemies best Men of War;
Whom in a bald Harangue, the Knight
Defy's, and challenges to fight:
H' incounters Talgol, routs the Bear,
And takes the Fidler Prisoner;
Conveys him to enchanted Castle,
There shuts him fast in wooden Bastile.

CANTO II.

There was an ancient sage Philosopher,
That had read Alexander Ross over,
And swore the world, as he could prove,
Was made of Fighting and of Love:
Just so Romances are, for what else
Is in them all, but Love and Battels?
O' th' first of these w'have no great matter
To treat of, but a world o' th' latter:
In which to do the injur'd Right
We mean in what concerns just fight.
Certes our Authors are to blame,
For to make some well-sounding name
A Pattern fit for modern Knights,
To copy out in Frays and Fights,
(Like those that a whole street do raze,
To build a Palace in the place.)

They never care how many others They kill, without regard of Mothers, Or Wives, or Children, so they can Make up some fierce dead-doing man, Compos'd of many ingredient Valors Just like the Manhood of nine Tailors. So a wilde Tartar when he spies A man that's handsome, valiant, wise, If he can kill him, thinks t'inherit His Wit, his Beauty, and his Spirit: As if just so much he enjoy'd As in another is destroy'd. For when a Giant's slain in fight, And mow'd o'erthwart, or cleft downright, It is a heavy case, no doubt, A man should have his Brains beat out, Because he's tall, and has large Bones; As Men kill Beavers for their Stones. But as for our part, we shall tell The naked Truth of what befell; And as an equal friend to both The Knight and Bear, but more to Troth, With neither faction shall take part, But give to each his due desert: And never coyn a formal lye on't, To make the Knight o'rcome the Giant. This b'ing profest, we hope's enough, And now go on where we left off.

They rode, but Authors having not Determin'd whether Pace or Trot, (That is to say, whether Tolutation, As they do term't, or Succussation)
We leave it, and go on, as now Suppose they did, no matter how. Yet some from subtle hints [h]ave got Mysterious light, it was a Trot. But let that pass: they now begun To spurr their living Engines on. For as whipp'd Tops and bandy'd Balls,

The learned hold, are Animals, So Horses they affirm to be Mere Engines made by Geometry, And were invented first from Engins, As Indian Britains were from Penguins. So let them be, and, as I was saying, They their live Engines ply'd, not staying Until they reach'd the fatal Champain, Which the Enemy did then encamp on, The dire Pharsalian Plain, where Battel Was to be wag'd 'twixt puissant Cattel, And fierce Auxiliary Men, That came to aid their Brethren: Who now began to take the Field As from his Steed the Knight beheld: For as our modern Wits behold, Mounted a Pick-back on the Old. Much further off, much further he Rais'd on his aged Beast could see: But not sufficient to descry All postures of the Enemy. And therefore orders the bold Squire T' advance, and view their Body nigher, That when their motions he had known, He might know how to fit his own. Mean while he stopp'd his willing Steed: To fit himself for Martial deed: Both kinds of mettle he prepar'd, Either to give blows or to ward, Courage within, and Steel without To give, or to receive a Rout. His Death-charg'd Pistols he did fit well Drawn out from life-preserving Vittle. These being prim'd, with force he labour'd To free's Sword from retentive Scabbard: And after many a painful pluck, He clear'd at length the rugged Tuck. Then shook himself, to see that Prowess In Scabbard of his Arms set loose: And rais'd upon his desperate foot

On stirrup side he gaz'd about, Portending Bloud, like Blazing Star, The Beacon of approaching War. The Squire advanc'd with greater speed; Then could b' expected from his Steed; But far more in returning made, For now the Foe he had survey'd Rang'd, as to him they did appear, With Van, main Battel, Wings and Rear.

In th' head of all this Warlike Rabble Crowdero march'd, expert and able: Instead of Trumpet and of Drum, That makes the Warrier's stomach come, Whose noise whets Valour sharp, like Beer By Thunder turn'd to Vineger: For if a Trumpet sound, or Drum beat, Who has not a months mind to combat? A squeaking Engine he apply'd, Unto his Neck on North-east side, Just where the Hangman does dispose, To special Friends the fatal Noose: For 'tis great Grace when Statesmen straight Dispatch a Friend, let others wait. His warped Ear hung o'er the strings, Which was but Souce to Chitterlings: For Guts, some write, e're they are sodden, Are fit for Musick, or for Pudden: From whence men borrow ev'ry kind Of Minstrelsy, by string or wind. His grizly Beard was long and thick, With which he strung his Fiddle-stick: For he to Horse-tail scorn'd to owe, For what on his own chin did grow. Chiron, the four legg'd Bard, had both A Beard and Tail of his own growth; And yet by Authors 'tis averr'd, He made use onely of his Beard. In Staffordshire, where Virtuous worth Does raise the Minstrelsie, not Birth;

Where Bulls do chuse the boldest King And Ruler, o'er the men of string; (As once in Persia, 'tis said, Kings were proclaim'd by a Horse that neigh'd) He bravely vent'ring at a Crown, By chance of War was beaten down, And wounded sore: his Leg then broke, Had got a Deputy of Oke: For when a shin in fight is cropt, The knee with one of timber's propt; Esteem'd more honorable than the other, And takes place, though the younger Brother.

Next march'd brave Orsin, famous for Wise Conduct, and success in War: A skilful Leader, stout, severe, Now Marshal to the Champion Bear. With Truncheon tip'd with Iron head, The Warrior to the Lists [he] led; With solemn march and stately pace, But far more grave and solemn face: Grave as the Emperor of Pegu, Or Spanish Potentate Don Diego. This Leader was of knowledge great, Either for Charge or for Retreat. Knew when t' engage his Bear Pel-mel And when to bring him off as well. So Lawyers, least the Bear Defendent, And Plaintiff Dog should make an end on't, Do stave and tail with Writs of Error, Reverse of Judgement, and Demurrer, To let them breathe awhile and then Cry whoop, and set them on agen. As Romulus a Wolf did rear. So he was dry-nurs'd by a Bear, That fed him with the purchas'd prey Of many a fierce and bloody fray; Bred up where Discipline most rare is, In Military Garden-Paris. For Soldiers heretofore did grow

In Gardens, Just as Weeds do now; Until some splay-foot Politicians T' Apollo offer'd up Petitions, For licensing a new invention Th' 'ad found out of an antique Engine To root out all the Weeds that grow In publick Garden at a blow, And leave th' Herbs standing. Quoth Sir Sun, My friends, that is not to be done. Not done? quoth Statesmen; yes, an't please ye, When 'tis once known, you'l say 'tis easie. Why, then let's know it, quoth Apollo. We'll beat a Drum, and they'll all follow. A Drum (quoth $Ph\alpha bus$) troth that's true, A pretty invention quaint and new. But though of Voice and Instrument We are ('tis true) chief President; We such loud Musick do n't profess, The Devil's Master of that Office, Where it must pass, if't be a Drum, He'l sign it with Cler. Parl. Dom. Com. To him apply your selves, and he Will soon dispatch you, for his Fee. They did so, but it prov'd so ill, Th' had better have let them grow there stil. But to resume what we discoursing Were on before, that is stout Orsin: That which [so] oft by sundry writers, Has been apply'd to almost all fighters, More justly may b' ascrib'd to this, Than any other Warrior (viz.) None [ever] acted both parts bolder, Both of a Chieftain and a Soldier. He was of great descent and high, For splendor and antiquity; And from Cælestial origine Deriv'd himself in a right Line. Not as the ancient Heroes did, Who, that their base births might be hid, (Knowing they were of doubtful gender,

And that they came in at a Windore) Made Jupiter himself and others O' th' Gods Gallants to their own Mothers. To get on them a Race of Champions, Of which old Homer first made Lampoons. Ar Etophylax, in Northern Sphere, Was his undoubted Ancestor: From [him] his Great Forefathers came, And in all Ages bore his name. Learn'd he was in Med'c'nal Lore, For by his side a Pouch he wore Replete with strange Hermetick Powder, That Wounds six Miles point-blank would solder, By skilful Chymist with great cost Extracted from a rotten Post; But of a heav'nlier influence, Than that which Mountebanks dispense; Though by Promethean Fire made, As they do quack that drive that Trade, For as when Slovens do amiss At others doors by Stool or Piss, The Learned write, a Red-hot Spit, B'ing prudently apply'd to it, Will convey mischief from the Dung, Unto the part that did the wrong: So this did healing, and as sure As that did mischief, this would cure.

Thus virtuous Orsin was endu'd, With Learning, Conduct, Fortitude, Incomparable: and as the Prince Of Poets, Homer, sung long since, A skilful Lecch is better far Than half a hundred Men of War; So he appear'd, and by his skill, No less than Dint of Sword could kill.

The Gallant Bruin marcht next' him, With Visage formidably grim. And rugged as a Saracin,

Or Turk of Mahomet's own kin; Clad in a Mantle de la Guer Of rough impenetrable Fur; And in his Nose, like Indian King, He wore for Ornament a Ring; About his Neck a three-fold Gorget, As tough as trebled leathern Tar[g]et; Armed, as Heralds cant, and langue e d, Or, as the Vulgar say, sharp fanged. For as the Teeth in Beasts of Prey Are Swords, with which they fight in Fray. So Swords in Men of War, are Teeth, Which they do eat their Vittle with. He was, by birth, some Authors write, A Russian, some a M[u]scovite. And 'mong the Cossacks had been bred, Of whom we in Diurnals read, That serve to fill up Pages here, As with their Bodies Ditches there. Scrimansky was his Cousin-german With whom he serv'd and fed on Vermin: And when these fail'd he'd suck his claws, And quarter himself upon his paws. And though his Country-men, the Huns, Did use to stew between their Bums, And their warm Horses backs, their meat, And every man his Saddle eat: He was not half so nice as they, But eat it raw when 't came in 'is way. He had trac'd Countreys far and near, More than Le Blanc the Traveller; Who writes, He Spous'd in India, Of noble house, a Lady gay, And got on her a Race of Worthies As stout as any upon Earth is. Full many a Fight for him between Talgol and Orsin oft had been; Each striving to deserve the Crown Of a sav'd Citizen: the one To guard his Bear, the other fought

To aid his Dog; both made more stout By sev'ral spurs of neighborhood, Church-fellow-membership, and blood: But Talgol, mortal foe to Cows, Never got ought of him but blows; Blows hard and heavy, such as he Had lent, repay'd with Usury.

Yet Talgol was of Courage stout, And vanquish'd oftner than he fought: Inur'd to labor, sweat, and toyl, And like a Champion, shone with Oyl. Right many a Widow his keen blade, And many a Fatherless, had made. He many a Bore and huge Dun Cow Did, like another Guy, o'erthrow. But Guy with him in fight compar'd, Had like the Bore or Dun Cow far'd. With greater Troops of Sheep h' had fought Than Ajax, or bold Don Quixot: And many a Serpent of fell kind, With wings before, and stings behind, Subdu'd; as Poets say, long agone Bold Sir George, Saint George did the Dragon. Nor Engine, nor Device Polemick, Disease, nor Doctor Epidemick, Though stor'd with Deletery Med'cines, (Which whosoever took is Dead since) E'er sent so vast a Colony To both the under-worlds as he. For he was of that noble Trade That Demi-gods and Heroes made, Slaughter and knocking on the head; The Trade to which they all were bred; And is, like others, glorious when 'Tis great and large, but base if mean. The former rides in Triumph for it; The latter in a two wheel'd Chariot, For daring to prophane a thing So Sacred, with vile bungling.

Next these the brave Magnano came, Magnano great in Martial Fame. Yet when with Orsin he wag'd fight, 'Tis sung he got but little by't. Yet he was fierce as Forest-Bore, Whose Spoils upon his Back he wore, As thick as Ajax seven-fold Shield, Which o'er his brazen A[r]ms he held. But Brass was feeble to resist The fury of his armed fist; Nor could the hardest Ir'n hold out Against his blows, but they would through't.

In Magick he was deeply read,
As he that made the Brazen-head;
Profoundly skill'd in the Black Art,
As English Merlin for his heart;
But far more skilful in the Spheres
Than he was at the Sieve and Shears.
He could transform himself in Color,
As like the Devil as a Collier;
As like as Hypocrites in show
Are to true Saints, or Crow to Crow.

Of Warlike Engines he was Author, Devis'd for quick dispatch of slaughter: The Cannon, Blunderbuss, and Saker, He was th' Inventer of and Maker: The Trumpet and the Kettle-Drum Did both from his Invention come. He was the first that e'r did teach To make, and how to stop a breach. A Lance he bore with Iron pike, The one half would thrust, the other strike: And when their forces he had join'd, He scorn'd to turn his Parts behind.

He Trulla lov'd, Trulla more bright Than burnish'd Armor of her Knight: A bold Virago, stout and tall

As Joan of France, or English Mall,
Through perils both of Wind and Limb,
Through thick and thin she follow'd him,
In ev'ry Adventure h' undertook,
And never him, or it forsook.
At breach of Wall, or Hedge surprize,
She shar'd i' th' hazard and the prize:
At beating Quarters up, or Forage,
Behav'd her self with matchless courage;
And laid about in fight more bus'ly,
Than the Amazonian Dame, Penthesile.

And though some Criticks here cry shame, And say our Authors are [to] blame, That spight of all Philosophers, Who hold no Females stout but Bears, And heretofore did so abhor Their Women should pretend to War, They would not suffer the stout'st Dame, To swear by Hercules his Name, Make feeble Ladies, in their Works, To fight like Termagants and Turks; To lay their native Arms aside, Their modesty, and ride a-stride; To run a-Tilt at Men, and wield Their naked Tools in open field; As stout Armida, bold Thalestris, And she that would have been the Mistriss Of Gundibert, but he had grace, And rather took a Country Lass: They say 'tis false, without all sense But of pernicious consequence To Government, which they suppose Can never be upheld in Prose: Strip Nature naked to the skin, You'll find about her no such thing. It may be so, yet what we tell Of Trulla, that's improbable, Shall be depos'd by those have seen't, Or, what's as good, produc'd in print:

And if they will not take our word, We'll prove it true upon record.

The upright Cerdon next advanc't Of all his Race the Valiant'st; Cerdon the Great, renown'd in Song, Like Herc'les, for repair of wrong: He rais'd the low, and fortifi'd The weak against the strongest side. Ill has he read, that never hit On him in Muses deathless writ. He had a weapon keen and fierce, That through a Bull-hide shield would pierce, And cut it in a thousand pieces, Though tougher than the Knight of Greece his; With whom his black thumb'd Ancestor Was Comrade in the ten years War: For when the restless Greeks sate down So many years before Troy Town, And were renown'd, as Homer writes, For well-sol'd Boots, no less than Fights; They ow'd that Glory onely to His Ancestor, that made them so. Fast Friend he was to Reformation, Until 'twas worn quite out of fashion. Next Rectifier of Wry Law, And would make three, to cure one flaw. Learned he was, and could take note, Transcribe, Collect, Translate and Quote. But Preaching was his chiefest Talent, Or Argument, in which b'ing valiant, He us'd to lay about and stickle, Like Ram or Bull, at Conventicle: For Disputants like Rams and Bulls, Do fight with Arms that spring from Skulls.

Last Colon came, bold Man of War, Destin'd to blows by fatal Star; Right expert in Command of Horse, But cruel, and without remorse.

That which of Centaure long ago Was said, and has been wrested to Some other Knights, was true of this, He and his Horse, were of a piece. One Spirit did inform them both, The self-same Vigor, Fury, Wroth: Yet he was much the rougher part, And always had the harder heart; Although his Horse had been of those, That fed on Man's flesh, As Fame goes. Strange food for Horse! and yet, alas, It may be true, for Flesh is Grass, Sturdy he was, and no less able Than Hercules to cleanse a Stable; As great a Drover, and as great A Critick too in Hog or Neat. He ripp'd the Womb up of his Mother, Dame Tellus, 'cause she wanted fother And Provender wherewith to feed Himself and his less cruel Steed. It was a question whether He Or's Horse were of a Family More Worshipful: till Antiquaries, (After th' 'ad almost por'd out their Eyes) Did very learnedly decide The bus'ness on the Horse's side, And prov'd not onely Horse, but Cows, Nay Pigs, were of the elder house: For Beasts, when man was but a piece Of earth himself, did th' earth possess.

These Worthies were the chief that led The Combatants, each in the head Of his Command, with Arms and Rage, Ready and longing to engage. The numerous Rabble was drawn out Of several Companies round about; From Villages remote, and Shires, Of East and Western Hemispheres: From forain Parishes and Regions,

Of different Manners, Speech, Religions, Came Men and Mastives; some to fight For Fame and Honor, some for sight. And now the field of Death, the Lists Were ent'red by Antagonists, And blood was ready to be broached; When Hudibras in haste approached, With Squire and Weapons to attack 'em: But first thus from his Horse bespake 'em.

What Rage, O Citizens, what fury Doth you to those dire actions hurry? What Oestrum, what phrenetick mood Makes you thus lavish of your blood, While the proud Vies your Trophies boast, And unreveng'd walks—ghost? What Towns, what Garisons might you With hazard of this blood subdue, Which now y' are bent to throw away In vain, untriumphable fray?

Shall Saints in Civil bloudshed wallow Of Saints, and let the Cause lie fallow? The Cause for which we fought and swore So boldly, shall we now give o'er? Then because Quarrels still are seen With Oaths and Swearing to begin, The Solemn League and Covenant Will seem a meer God-dam-me Rant; And we that took it, and have fought, As lewd as Drunkards that fall out. For as we make War for the King Against bimself, the self-same thing Some will not stick to swear we do For God and for Religion too. For if Bear-baiting we allow, What good can Reformation do? The Bloud and Treasure that's laid out, Is thrown away, and goes for nought. Are these the fruits of th' Protestation,

The Prototype of Reformation, Which all the Saints, and some, since Martyrs, Wore in their Hats, like Wedding-Garters, When 'twas resolved by their House Six Members quarrel to espouse? Did they for this draw down the Rabble. With zeal and noises formidable; And make all Cries about the Town Joyn throats to cry the Bishops down? Who having round begirt the Palace, (As once a month they do the Gallows) As Members gave the sign about Set up their throats with hideous shout. When Tinkers bawl'd aloud, to settle Church Discipline, for patching Kettle. No Sow-gelder did blow his Horn To geld a Cat, but cry'd Reform. The Oyster-wom [e]n lock'd their Fish up, And trudg'd away to cry No Bishop. The Mouse-trap men laid Save-alls by, And 'gainst Ev'l Counsellors did cry. Botchers left old Cloaths in the lurch, And fell to turn and patch the Church. Some cry'd the Covenant instead Of Pudding-pies and Ginger-bread: And some for Broom, old Boots, and Shooes, Baul'd out to purge the Commons House: Instead of Kitchin-stuff, some cry A Gospel-preaching-Ministry; And some for Old Suits, Coats, or Cloak, No Surplices, nor Service-Book. A strange harmonious inclination Of all degrees to Reformation. And is this all? is this the end To which these carr'ings on did tend? Hath Publick Faith like a young heir For this ta'en up all sorts of Ware, And run int' ev'ry Tradesman's Book, Till both turn'd Bankrupts, and are broke? Did Saints for this bring in their Plate,

And crowd as if they came too late? For when they thought the Cause had need on't, Happy was he that could be rid on't. Did they coyn Piss-pots, Bowls, and Flaggons, Int' Officers of Horse and Dragoons; And into Pikes and Musqueteers Stamp Beakers, Cups, and Porringers? A Thimble, Bodkin, and a Spoon Did start up living men as soon As in the Furnace they were thrown, Just like the Dragons teeth being sown. Then was the Cause all Gold and Plate, The Brethrens off'rings, consecrate Like th' Hebrew-calf, and down before it The Saints fell prostrate, to adore it. So say the Wicked——and will you Make that Sarcasmous Scandal true, By running after Dogs and Bears, Beasts more unclean than Calves and Steers? Have pow'rful Preachers ply'd their tongues, And laid themselves out and their Lungs; Us'd all means both direct and sinister I' th' power of Gospel-Preaching Minister? Have they invented Tones, to win The Women, and make them draw in The Men, as Indians with a Female Tame Elephant inveigle the Male? Have they told Prov'dence what it must do, Whom to avoid, and whom to trust to? Discover'd th' Enemy's design, And which way best to countermine; Prescrib'd what ways he hath to work, Or it will ne'r advance the Kirk, Told it the News o' th' last express, And after good or bad success Made Prayers, not so like Petitions, As Overtures and Propositions, (Such as the Army did present To their Creator th' Parliament) In which they freely will confess,

They will not, cannot acquiesce, Unless the IVork be carry'd on In the same way they have begun, By setting Church and Common-weal, All on a flame bright as their zeal, On which the Saints were all-a-gog. And all this for a Bear and Dog.

The Parliament drew up Petitions To 't self, and sent them, like Commissions, To Well-affected Persons down, In ev'ry City and great Town; With pow'r to levy Horse and Men, Only to bring them back agen: For this did many, many a mile, Ride manfully in Rank and File, With Papers in their Hats, that show'd As if they to th' Pillory rode, Have all these courses, these efforts, Been try'd by people of all sorts, Velis & Remis, omnibus Nervis, And all t' advance the Cause's service: And shall all now be thrown away In petulant intestine fray: Shall we that in the Cov'nant swore, Each man of us to run before Another still in Reformation, Give Dogs and Bears a Dispensation? How will dissenting Brethren relish it? What will Malignants say? Videlicet, That each man swore to do his best, To damn and perjure all the rest: And bid the Devil take the hin'most, Which at this Race is like to win most. They'll say our bus'ness to reform The Church and State is but a worm; For to subscribe unsight, unseen, T' an unknown Churches Discipline: What is it else, but before-hand, T' ingage, and after understand?

For when we swore to carry on The present Reformation, According to the Purest mode Of Churches, best Reform'd abroad, What did we else but make a vow To do we know not what, nor how? For no three of us will agree Where, or what Churches these should be. And is indeed the self-same case With theirs that swore Et cæteras; Or the French League, in which men vow'd To fight to the last drop of bloud. These slanders will be thrown upon The Cause and Work we carry on, If we permit men to run headlong T' exorbitancies fit for Bedlam, Rather then Gospel-walking times, When slighted Sins are greatest Crimes. But we the matter so shall handle, As to remove that odious scandal In name of King and Parliament, I charge ye all, no more foment This feud, but keep the Peace between Your Brethren and your Countrey-men; And to those places straight repair Where your respective dwellings are. But to that purpose first surrender, The Fidler, as the prime offender, Th' Incendiary vile, that is the chief Author and Engineer of mischief; That makes division between friends, For prophane and malignant ends. He and that Engine of vile noise, On which illegally he plays, Shall (distum fastum) both be brought To condigne Punishment as th'y ought. This must be done, and I would fain see Mortal so sturdy as to gain-say: For then [I]'ll take another course, And son Reduce you all by force.

This said, he clapt his hand on Sword, To show he meant to keep his word.

But Talgol, who had long supprest Enflamed wrath in glowing breast, Which now began to rage and burn as Implacably as flame in Furnace, Thus answer'd him. Thou Vermin wretched, As e'er in Meazel'd Pork was hatched; Thou Tail of Worship, that dost grow On Rump of Justice as of Cow; How dar'st thou with that sullen Luggage [O'] thy self, old I'rn and other Baggage, With which thy Steed of Bones and Leather Has broke his wind in halting hither; How durst th', I say, adventure thus T' oppose thy Lumber against us? Could thine Impertinence find out No work t'employ it self about, Where thou secure from Wooden blow Thy busy vanity might'st show? Was no dispute afoot between The Catterwauling Brethren? No subtle Question rais'd among Those out-o'-their wits and those i' th' wrong? No prize between those Combatants O' th' times, the Land and Water-Saints; Where thou might'st stickle without hazard Of outrage to thy hide and mazard, And not for want of bus'ness come To us to be thus troublesome, To interrupt our better sort Of Disputants, and spoil our sport? Was there no Felony, no Bawd, Cut-purse, nor Burglary abroad? No Stolen Pig, nor Plunder'd Goose, To tye thee up from breaking loose? No Ale unlicenc'd, broken hedge, For which thou Statute might'st alledge, To keep thee busic from foul evil,

And shame due to thee from the Devil? Did no Committee sit, where he Might cut out journy-work for thee; And set th' a task, with subornation, To stitch up sale and sequestration; To cheat with Holiness and Zeal All Parties, and the Common-weal? Much better had it been for thee, H'had kept thee where th'art us'd to be; Or sent th'on bus'ness any whither, So he had never brought thee hither. But if th'hast Brain enough in Sk[u]ll To keep within it's lodging whole. And not provoke the rage of Stones And Cudgels to thy Hide and Bones; Tremble, and vanish while thou may'st Which I'll not promise if thou stay'st. At this the Knight grew high in wroth, And lifting hands and eyes up both, Three times [he] smote on stomach stout, From whence at length these words broke out. Was I for this entitled Sir, And girt with trusty Sword and Spur, For Fame and Honor to wage Battel, Thus to be brav'd by Foe to Cattel? Not all that Pride that makes thee swell As big as thou dost blown-up Veal; Nor all thy tricks and slights to cheat, And sell thy Carrion for good Meat; Not all thy Magick to repair Decay'd old age in tough lean ware, Make Natural Death appear thy work, And stop the Gangreen in stale Pork; Not all that force that makes thee proud, Because by Bullock ne'er withstood; Though arm'd with all thy Clevers, Knives, And Axes made to hew down lives; Shall save or help thee to evade The hand of Justice, or this blade Which I her Sword-bearer do carry,

For civil Deed and Military. Nor shall these words of Venom base, Which thou hast from their Native place, Thy stomach, pump'd to fling on me, Go unreveng'd, though I am free, Thou down the same throat shalt devour 'em, Like tainted Beef, and pay dear for 'em. Nor shall it e'er be said, that wight With Gantlet blew and Bases white, And round blunt Dudgeon by his side, So great a man at Arms defy'd With words far bitterer than Wormwood, That would in Job or Grizel stir mood. Dogs with their Tongues their Wounds do heal But Men with hands as thou shalt feel. This said, with hasty rage he snatch'd His Gun-shot, that in holsters watch'd; And bending Cock, he level'd full Against th' outside of Talgol's Skull, Vowing that he would ne'er stir further, Nor henceforth Cow or Bullock murther. But Pallas came in shape of Rust, And 'twixt the Spring and Hammer thrust Her Gorgon-shield which made the Cock Stand stiff as if 'twere turn'd t' a stock. Mean while fierce Talgol gath'ring might, With rugged Truncheon charg'd the Knight. And he his rusty Pistol held To take the blow on, like a Shield; The Gun recoyl'd, as well it might, Not us'd to such a kind of fight, And shrunk from its great Master's gripe, Knock'd down and stunn'd with mortal stripe. Then Hudibras with furious haste Drew out his sword; yet not so fast, But Talgol first with hardy thwack Twice bruis'd his head, and twice his back. But when his nut-brown Sword was out, Courageously he laid about, Imprinting many a wound upon

His mortal foe the Truncheon. The trusty Cudgel did oppose It self against dead-doing blows, To guard its Leader from fell bane, And then reveng'd it self again. And though the sword (some understood) In force had much the odds of Wood; 'Twas nothing so, both sides were ballanc't So equal, none knew which was valiant'st. For Wood with Honor being engagid, Is so implacably enrag'd, Though Iron hew and mangle sore, Wood wounds and bruises Honor more. And now both Knights were out of breath, Tir'd in the hot pursuit of Death; While all the rest amaz'd stood still, Expecting which should take, or kill. This Hudibras observ'd, and fretting Conquest should be so long a getting, He drew up all his force into One Body, and that into one Blow. But Talgol wisely avoided it By cunning slight; for had it hit, The Upper part of him the Blow Had slit, as sure as that below.

Mean while th' incomparable Colon,
To aid his Friend began to fall on,
Him Ralph encountred, and straight grew
A fierce Dispute betwixt them two:
Th'one arm'd with Metall, t'other with Wood;
This fit for bruise, and that for Blood.
With many a stiff thwack, many a bang,
Hard Crab-tree and old Iron rang;
While none that saw them could divine
To which side Conquest would encline:
Until Magnano, who did envy
That two should with so many men vye,
By subtle stratagem of brain
Perform'd what force could ne'er attain,

D

For he by foul hap having found Where Thistles grew on barren ground, In haste he drew his weapon out And having crop'd them from the Root He clapp'd them under th' Horses Tail With prickles sharper than a Nail: The angry Beast did strait resent The wrong done to his Fundament, Begun to kick, and fling, and wince, As if h'had been beside his sense, Striving to disingage from Smart, And raging Pain, th'afflicted Part, Instead of which he threw the pack Of Squire and Baggage from his back; And blundring still with smarting rump, He gave the Champions Steed a thump, That stagger'd him. The Knight did stoop And sate on further side aslope, This Talgol viewing, who had now By flight escap'd the fatal blow, He rally'd, and again fell to't; For catching him by nearer foot, He lifted with such might and strength, As would have hurl'd him twice his length, And dash'd his brains (if any) out. But Mars that still protects the stout, In Pudding-time came to his aid, And under him the Bear convey'd; The Bear, upon whose soft Fur-Gown The Knight with all his weight fell down. The friendly Rug preserv'd the ground, And headlong Knight from bruise or wound, Like Feather-Bed betwixt a Wall, And heavy brunt of Cannon-ball. As Sancho on a Blanket fell, And had no hurt; ours far'd as well In body, though his mighty Spirit, B'ing heavy, did not so well bear it. The Bear was in a greater fright, Beat down and worsted by the Knight.

He roar'd, and rag'd, and flung about, To shake off bondage from his snout. His wrath enflam'd boil'd o'er, and from His jaws of Death he threw the fome, Fury in stranger postures threw him, And more, than ever Herald drew him, He tore the Earth, which he had sav'd From squelch of Knight, and storm'd and rav'd And vext the more, because the harms He felt were 'gainst the Law of Arms: For Men he always took to be His friends, and Dogs the Enemy: Who never so much hurt had done him, As his own side did falling on him. It griev'd him to the Guts, that they For whom h' had fought so many a fray, And serv'd with loss of blood so long, Should offer such inhumane wrong; Wrong of unsoldier-like condition: For which he flung down his Commission, And laid about him, till his Nose From thrall of Ring and Cord broke loose. Soon as he felt himself enlarg'd, Through thickest of his foes he charg'd, And made way through th'amazed crew, Some he o'er ran, and some o'er threw But took none; for by hasty flight He strove t'avoid the conqu'ring Knight. From whom he fled with as much haste And dread as he the Rabble chac'd. In haste he fled, and so did they, Each and his fear a several way.

Crowdero only kept the field, Not stirring from the place he held, Though beaten down and wounded sore I' th' Fiddle, and a Leg that bore One side of him, not that of bone, But much its betters, th'wooden one. He spying Hudibras lye strow'd

Upon the ground, like log of Wood, With fright of fall, supposed Wound, And loss of Urine, in a swound, In haste he snatch'd the Wooden limb That hurt in th' anckle lay by him, And fitting it for sudden fight, Straight drew it up, t'attack the Knight. For getting up on stump and huckle, He with the foe began to buckle, Vowing to be reveng'd for breach Of Crowd and Shin upon the Wretch, Sole Author of all Detriment He and his Fiddle underwent. But Ralpho (who had now begun T' adventure Resurrection From heavy Squelch, and had got up Upon his Legs with sprained Crup) Looking about beheld the Bard To charge the Knight intranc'd prepar'd, He snatch't his Whiniard up, that fled When he was falling off his Steed, (As Rats do from a falling house) To hide it self from rage of blows; And wing'd with speed and fury, flew To rescue Knight from black and blew. Which e're he could atchieve, his Sconce The Leg encounter'd twice and once: And now 'twas rais'd, to smite agen, When Ralpho thrust himself between. He took the blow upon his Arm, To shield the Knight from further harm; And joining wrath with force, bestow'd O' th' wooden member such a load, That down it fell, and with it bore Crowdero, whom it prop'd before. To him the Squire did right nimbly run, And setting his bold foot upon His Trunk, thus spoke: What desp'rate Frenzie Made thee, (thou whelp of sin) to fancy Thy self and all that Coward Rabble

T' encounter us in battel able? How durst th', I say, oppose thy Curship 'Gainst Arms, Authority, and Worship? And Hudibras, or me provoke, Though all thy Limbs were heart of Oke, And th' other half of thee as good To bear out blows as that of Wood? Could not the whipping-post prevail With all its Rhet'rick, nor the Jail, To keep from flaying scourge thy skin, And ankle free from Iron Gin? Which now thou shalt——but first our care Must see how Hudibras doth fare. This said, he gently rais'd the Knight, And set him on his Bum upright: To rouze him from Lethargick dump; He tweak'd his Nose with gentle thump; Knock'd on his breast, as if't had been To raise the Spirits lodg'd within. They waken'd with the noise, did fly From inward Room to Window eye, And gently op'ning lid, the Casement, Lookt out, but yet with some amazement. This gladed Ralpho much to see, Who thus bespoke the Knight: Quoth he Tweaking his Nose, You are, great Sir, A Self-denying Conqueror; As high, victorious and great, As e'er fought for the Churches yet, If you will give your self but leave To make out what y' already have; That's Victory. The foe, for dread Of your Nine-worthiness, is fled, All save Crowdero, for whose sake You did th' espous'd Cause undertake: And he lies pris'ner at your feet, To be dispos'd as you think meet: Either for Life, or Death, or Sale, The Gallows, or perpetual Jail. For one wink of your pow'rful Eye

Must Sentence him to live or dye. His Fiddle is your proper purchase, Won in the service of the Churches; And by your doom must be allow'd To be, or be no more, a Crowd. For though success did not confer Just Title on the Conquerer; Though dispensations were not strong Conclusions whether right or wrong; Although Out-goings did not confirm, And Owning were but a mere term: Yet as the wicked have no right To th' Creature, though usurp'd by might, The property is in the Saint, From whom th' injuriously detain't; Of him they hold their Luxuries, Their Dogs, their Horses, Whores and Dice, Their Riots, Revels, Masks, Delights, Pimps, Buffoons, Fidlers, Parasites: All which the Saints have Title to, And ought t'enjoy, if th' had their due. What we take from them is no more Than what was ours by right before. For we are their true Landlords still, And they our Tenants but at will.

At this the Knight begun to rouse, And by degrees grow valorous. He star'd about, and seeing none Of all his foes remain but one, He snatch'd his weapon that lay near him, And from the ground began to rear him; Vowing to make Crowdero pay For all the rest that ran away. But Ralpho now in colder blood, His fury mildly thus withstood: Great Sir, quoth he, your mighty Spirit Is rais'd too high, this Slave does merit To be the Hangman's bus'ness sooner Than from your hand to have the honour

Of his destruction. I that am So much below in Deed and Name, Did scorn to hurt his forfeit Carcass, Or ill intreat his Fiddle or Case. Will you, Great Sir, that Glory blot In cold bloud, which you gain'd in hot? Will you employ your Conque'ring Sword, To break a Fiddle and your Word? For though I fought, and overcame, And quarter gave, 'twas in your name. For great Commanders always own What's prosperous by the Soldier done. To save, where you have pow'r to kill, Argues your Pow'r above your Will; And that your Will and Pow'r have less Than both might have of Selfishness. This Pow'r which now alive with dread He trembles at, if he were dead, Would no more keep the Slave in awe, Than if you were a Knight of Straw: For death would then b' his Conqueror, Not you, and free him from that terror. If danger from his life accreu, Or honour from his death to you; 'Twere Policy, and Honor too, To do as you resolv'd to do; But, Sir, 'twould wrong your valor much, To say it needs or fears a Crutch. Great Conquerors greater glory gain By Foes in Triumph led, than slain: The Lawrels that adorn their brows Are pull'd from living, not dead boughs, And living foes the greatest fame Of Cripple slain can be but lame. One half of him's already slain, The other is not worth your pain. Th' honor can but on one side light, As Worship did, when y'were dubb'd Knight. Wherefore I think it better far, To keep him Prisoner of War;

And let him fast in bonds abide, At Court of Justice to be try'd: Where if h' appear so bold or crafty; There may be danger in his safety; If any Member there dislike His Face, or to his Beard have pike; Or if his death will save, or yield, Revenge, or fright, it is reveal'd, Though he has quarter, ne'ertheless Y'have pow'r to hang him when you please. This hath been often done by some Of our great Conqu'rors, you know whom: And has by most of us been held Wise Justice, and to some reveal'd. For Words and Promises that yoke, The Conqu'ror, are quickly broke, Like Samson's Cuffs, though by his own Direction and advice put on. For if we should fight for the Cause By rules of military Laws, And only do what they call just, The Cause would quickly fall to dust. This we among our selves may speak, But to the Wicked or the Weak We must be cautious to declare Perfection-truths, such as these are.

This said, the high outrageous mettle Of Knight began to cool and settle. He lik'd the Squire's advice, and soon Resolv'd to see the bus'ness done: And therefore charg'd him first to bind Crowdero's hands on rump behind; And to its former place and use The Wooden member to reduce: But force it take an Oath before, Ne'er to bear Arms against him more.

Ralpho dispatch'd with speedy haste And having ty'd Crowdero fast,

He gave Sir Knight the end of Cord To lead the Captive of his Sword In triumph while the Steeds he caught, And them to further service brought. The Squire in state rode on before And on his nut-brown Whiniard bore The Trophee Fiddle and the Case, Plac'd on his shoulder like a Mace. The Knight himself did after ride, Leading Crowdero by his side, And tow'd him, if he lagg'd behind, Like Boat against the Tide and Wind. Thus grave and solemn they march on, Until quite through the Town th' had gone, At further end of which there stands An ancient Castle, that commands Th' adjacent parts; in all the fabrick You shall not see one stone nor a brick: But all of Wood, by pow'rful Spell Of Magick made impregnable, There's neither Iron-bar, nor Gate, Portcullis, Chain, nor Bolt, nor Grate: And yet men durance there abide, In Dungeon scarce three inches wide; With Roof so low, that under it They never stand, but lie, or sit, And yet so foul, that whoso is in, Is to the middle-leg in Prison, In Circle Magical confin'd, With Walls of subtle Air and Wind, Which none are able to break thorough, Until th' are freed by head of Borough. Thither arriv'd the advent'rous Knight And bold Squire from their Steeds alight, At th' outward Wall, near which [there] stands A Bastile built t'imprison hands; By strange enchantment made to fetter The lesser parts, and free the greater. For though the Body may creep through, The Hands in Grate are fast enough.

And when a Circle 'bout the Wrist Is made by Beadle Exorcist, The Body feels the Spur and Switch, As if 'twere ridden Post by 'witch At twenty miles an hour pace, And yet ne'er stirs out of the place. On top of this there is a Spire, On which Sir Knight first bids the Squire, The Fiddle, and its Spoils, the Case, In manner of a Trophee place. That done, they ope the Trap-dore-gate, And let Crowdero down thereat. Crowdero making doleful face, Like Hermit poor in pensive place, To Dungeon they the wretch commit, And the survivor of his feet: But th' other that had broke the peace, And head of Knighthood, they release, Though a Deli[n]quent false and forged, Yet b'ing a stranger, he's enlarged; While his Comrade that did no hurt, Is clapt up fast in prison for't, So Justice, while she winks at Crimes, Stumbles on Innocence sometimes.

The Argument of the Third CANTO.

The scatter'd Rout return and rally, Surround [t]he Place; the Knight does sally, And is made Pris'ner: then they scize Th' Inchanted Fort by storm, release Crowdero, and put the Squire in's place. I should have first said, Hudibras.

CANTO III.

AY me! what perils do environ
The Man that meddles with cold Iron!
What plaguy mischiefs and mishaps
Do dog him still with after-claps!
For though Dame Fortune seem to smile
And leer upon him for a while;
She'll after shew him, in the nick
Of all his Glories, a Dog-trick,
This any man may sing or say
I' th' Ditty call'd, What if a Day:
For Hudibras, who thought h' had won
The Field as certain as a Gun,
And having routed the whole Troop,
With Victory was Cock-a-hoop;

Thinks h' had done enough to purchase Thanksgiving Day among the Churches, Wherein his Mettle and brave Worth Might be explain'd by Holder-forth, And Register'd by Fame eternal, In Deathless Pages of Diurnal; Found in few minutes, to his Cost, He did but Count without his Host; And that a Turn-stile is more certain, Than in events of War Dame Fortune.

For now the late faint-hearted Rout O'erthrown and scatter'd round about, Chac'd by the horror of their fear From bloody fray of Knight and Bear, (All but the Dogs, who in pursuit Of the Knight's Victory stood to't, And most ignobly sought to get The honor of his blood and sweat) Seeing the Coast was free and clear O' th' Conquer'd and the Conquerer, Took heart again, and fac'd about, As if they meant to stand it out: For now the half-defeated Bear Attack'd by th' Enemy i' th' rear, Finding their number grew too great For him to make a safe retreat, Like a bold Chieftain fac'd about; But wisely doubting to hold out, Gave way to fortune, and with haste Fac'd the proud foe, and fled, and fac'd, Retiring still, until he found H' had got th' advantage of the ground; And then as valiantly made head, To check the foe, and forthwith fled; Leaving no Art untry'd, nor Trick Of Warrior stout and Politick, Until in spight of hot pursuit, He gain'd a Pass, to hold dispute On better terms, and stop the course

Of the proud foe. With all his force He bravely charg'd, and for a while Forc'd their whole Body to recoil: But still their numbers so increast He found himself at length opprest, And all evasions so uncertain, To save himself for better fortune, That he resolv'd, rather than yield, To die with honour in the field, And sell his Hide and Carcass at A price as high and desperate As e'er he could. This Resolution He forthwith put in execution, And bravely threw himself among The Enemy i'th' greatest throng. But what could single Valor do Against so numerous a foe? Yet much [he] did, indeed too much To be believ'd. where th' odds was such: But one against a multitude, Is more than mortal can make good. For while one party he oppos'd, His Rear was suddenly enclos'd, And no room left him for retreat, Or fight against a foe so great. For now the Mastives charging home To blows and handy-gripes were come; While manfully himself he bore, And setting his right foot before, He rais'd himself to shew how tall His person was above them all. This equal shame and envy stirr'd I' th' Enemy, that one should beard So many Warriors and so stout, As he had done, and stand it out, Disdaining to lay down his Arms, And yield on honorable terms. Enraged thus some in the rear Attack'd him, and some ev'ry where, Till down he fell, yet falling fought,

And being down still laid about; As Widdrington in doleful dumps Is said to fight upon his stumps.

But all, alas! had been in vain, And he inevitably slain, If Trulla and Cerdon in the nick To rescue him had not been quick. For Trulla, who was light of foot, As shafts which long-field Parthians shoot (But not so light as to be born Upon the Ears of standing Corn, Or [trip] it o'er the water quicker Than Witches when their staves they liquor, As some report) was got among The foremost of the Martial throng; Where pittying the vanquish'd Bear, She call'd to Cerdon who stood near Viewing the bloudy fight, to whom Shall we (quoth she) stand still bum drum, And see stout Bruin all alone By numbers basely overthrown? Such feats already h' has atchiev'd, In story not to be believ'd: And 'twould to us be shame enough, Not to a[t]tempt to fetch him off.

I would (quoth he) venture a Limb
To second thee, and rescue him:
But then we must about it straight,
Or else our aid will come too late.
Quarter he scorns, he is so stout,
And therefore cannot long hold out.
This said, they wav'd their weapons round
About their heads, to clear the ground;
And joining forces laid about
So fiercely, that th' amazed rout
Turn'd tail again, and straight begun,
As if the Devil drove, to run.
Mean while th' aproach'd the place where Bruin

Was now engag'd to mortal ruine: The conquering foe they soon assail'd; First Trulla stav'd, and Cerdon tail'd, Until their Mastives loos'd their hold: And yet alas! do what they could, The worsted Bear came off with store Of bloudy wounds, but all before. For as Achilles dipt in Pond, Was Anabaptized free from wound, Made proof against dead-doing steel All over but the Pagan heel, So did our Champion's Arms defend All of him but the other end, His Head and Ears, which in the Martial Encounter lost a Leathern parcel, For as an Austrian Archduke once Had one ear (which in Ducatoons Is half the Coyn) in Battel par'd Close to his head; so Bruin far'd: But tugg'd and pull'd on th'other side, Like Scrivener newly crucify'd; Or like the late-corrected Leathern Ears of the circumcised Brethren. But gentle Trulla into th' Ring He wore in's Nose, conveyed a string, With which she march'd before, and led The Warrior to a grassie Bed, As Authors write, in a cool shade, Which Eglentine and Roses made, Close by a softly-murm'ring stream Where Lovers us'd to loll and dream, There leaving him to his repose, Secured from pursuit of foes. And w[a]nting nothing but a Song, And a well-tun'd Theorho hung Upon a Bough, to ease the pain His tugg'd ears suffer'd, with a strain. They both drew up, to march in quest Of his great Leader, and the rest.

For Orsin (who was more renown'd For stout maintaining of his ground In standing fights than for pursuit, As being not so quick of foot) Was not long able to keep pace With others that pursu'd the Chace, But found himself left far behind, Both out of heart and out of wind; Griev'd to behold his Bear pursu'd So basely by a multitude, And like to fall, not by the prowess, But numbers of his Coward foes. He rag'd and kept as heavy a coyl as Stout Hercules for loss of Hylas, Forcing the Valleys to repeat The Accents of his sad regret. He beat his Breast, and tore his Hair, For loss of his dear Crony Bear: That Eccho from the hollow ground His doleful wailings did resound More wistfully by many times, Than in small Poets splay-foot Rhimes, That make her, in their ruthful stories, To answer to Inter'gatories, And most unconscionably depose To things of which she nothing knows: And when she has said all she can say, 'Tis wrested to the Lover's fancy. Quoth he, O whether, wicked Bruin, Art thou fled to my—Eccho, ruin? I thought th' hadst scorn'd to budge a step For fear. (Quoth Eccho) Marry guep. Am I not here to take thy [part?] Then what has quail'd thy stubborn heart? Have these Bones ratled, and this Head So often in thy quarrel bled? Nor did I ever winch or grudge it, For thy dear sake, (Quoth she) Mum budget. Think'st thou 'twill not be laid i' th' dish, Thou turn'dst thy back? Quoth Eccho, Pish.

To run from those th' hadst overcome Thus cowardly? Quoth Eccho, Mum. But what a-vengeance makes thee fly From me too, as thine Enemy? Or if thou hast no thought of me Nor what I have endur'd for thee, Yet shame and honor might prevail To keep thee thus from turning tail: For who would grutch to spend his bloud in His honors cause? Quoth she, a Puddin. This said, his grief to anger turn'd, Which in his manly stomach burn'd; Thirst of Revenge and Wrath, in place Of Sorrow now began to blaze. He vow'd the Authors of his woe Should equal vengeance undergo; And with their Bones and Flesh pay dear For what he suffer'd, and his Bear. This b'ing resolv'd, with equal speed And rage he hasted to proceed To action streight, and giving o'er To search for Bruin any more, He went in quest of Hudibras, To find him out, where e'er he was: And if he were above ground, vow'd He'd ferret him, lurk where he wou'd.

But scarce had he a furlong on This resolute adventure gone, When he encounter'd with that Crew Whom Hudibras did late subdue. Honor, Revenge, Contempt, and Shame, Did equally their breasts enflame. 'Mong these the fierce Magnano was, And Talgol foe to Hudibras; Cerdon and Colon, Warriors stout And resolute as ever fought: Whom furious Orsin thus bespoke,

Shall we (quoth he) thus basely brook The vile affront that paultry Ass

E

And feeble Scoundrel Hudibras, With that more paultry Ragamuffin Ralpho, with vapouring and huffing, Have put upon us like tame Cattel, As if th' had routed us in battel? For my part, it shall ne'er be sed. I for the washing gave my Head: Nor did I turn my back for fear Of them, but loosing of my Bear, Which now I'm like to undergo; For whether these fell wounds, or no, He has receiv'd in fight are mortal, Is more than all my skill can foretel. Nor do I know what is become Of him, more than the Pope of Rome. But if I can but find them out That cau'sd it, (as I shall no doubt, Where e'er th' in hugger-mugger lurk) I'll make them rue their handy-work; And wish that they had rather dar'd To pull the Devil by the Beard.

Ouoth Cerdon, noble Orsin th' hast Great reason to do as thou say'st, And so has every body here As well as thou hast, or thy Bear. Others may do as they see good; But if this Twig be made of Wood That will hold tack, I'll make the Fur Fly 'bout the Ears of that old Cur, And th' other mungrel Vermin, Ralph, That brav'd us all in his behalf. Thy Bear is safe and out of peril, Though lugg'd indeed, and wounded very ill. My self and Trulla made a shift To help him out at a dead lift; And having brought him bravely off, Have left him where he's safe enough, There let him rest; for if we stay, The Slaves may hap to get away.

This said, they all engag'd to join Their forces in the same design: And forthwith put themselves in search Of Hudibras upon their march. Where leave we them a while, to tell What the Victorious Knight befel: For such, Crowdero being fast In Dungeon shut, we left him last. Triumphant Laurels seem'd to grow No where so green as on his brow: Laden with which, as well as tir'd With conquering toil, he now retir'd Unto a neighb'ring Castle by, To rest his Body, and apply Fit Med'cines to each glorious bruise He got in fight Reds, Blacks, and Blews; To mollifie the uneasie pang Of ev'ry honorable bang. Which b'ing by skilful Midwife drest, He laid him down to take his rest.

But all in vain. H' had got a hurt O' th' inside of a deadlier sort, By Cupid made, who took his stand Upon a Widows Jointure-Land, (For he, in all his amorous battels No 'dvantage finds like Goods and Chattels) Drew home his Bow, and aiming right, Let fly an Arrow at the Knight. The shaft against a Rib did glance, And gall him in the Purtenance. But time had somewhat swag'd his pain, After he found his suit in vain, For that proud Dame for whom his soul Was burnt in's belly like a coal, (That belly that so oft did ake And suffer griping for her sake Till purging Comfits and Ants Eggs Had almost brought him off his Legs) Us'd him so like a base Rascallion,

That old Pyg- (what d'y' call him) malion, That cut his Mistress out of stone, Had not so hard-a-hearted-one. She had a thousand jadish tricks, Worse than a Mule that flings and kicks: 'Mong which one cross-grain'd freak she had, As insolent as strange and mad: She could love none but onely such As scorn'd and hated her as much. 'Twas a strange Riddle of a Lady; Not love, if any lov'd her, ha day! So Cowards never use their might, But against such as will not fight. So some diseases have been found Onely to seize upon the sound. He that gets her by heart must say her The back-way, like a Witches Prayer. Mean while the Knight had no small task, To compass what he durst not ask. He loves, but dares not make the motion; Her ignorance is his devotion. Like Caitiff vile, that for misdeed, Rides with his face to rump of Steed, Or rowing Scull, he's fain to love, Look one way, and another move; Or like a tumbler that does play His game, and look another way: Until he seize upon the Cony: lust so does he by Matrimony, But all in vain: her subtle snout Did quickly wind his meaning out; Which she return'd with too much scorn, To be by man of honor born. Yet much he bore, till the distress He suffer'd from his spightful Mistress Did stir his stomach, and the Pain He had endur'd from her disdain Turn'd to regret, so resolute, That he resolv'd to wave his suit, And either to renounce her quite,

Or for a while play least in sight,
This resolution b'ing put on,
He kept some months, and more had done;
But being brought so nigh by Fate,
The Victory h' atchiev'd so late
Did set his thoughts agog, and ope
A door to discontinu'd hope,
That seem'd to promise he might win
His Dame too now his hand was in;
And that his valor and the honor
H' had newly gain'd might work upon her:
These reasons made his mouth to water
With amorous longings to be at her.

Thought he unto himself, Who knows But this brave Conquest o'er my foes, May reach her heart, and make that stoop, As I but now have forc'd the Troop? If nothing can oppugne love, And virtue envious ways can prove, What may not he confide to do That brings both love and virtue too? But thou bring'st valor too and wit, Two things that seldom fail to hit. Valor's a Mouse-trap, Wit a Gin, Which Women oft are taken in. Then, Hudibras, why should'st thou fear To be, that art, a Conquerer? Fortune th' audacious doth juvare, But lets the timidous miscarry. Then while the honour thou hast got Is spick and span-new, piping hot, Strike her up bravely thou had'st best, And trust thy fortune with the rest.

Such thoughts as these the Knight did keep, More than his bangs or fleas, from sleep. And as an Owl that in a Barn Sees a Mouse creeping in the Corn, Sits still, and shuts his round blew eyes

As if he slept, until he spies The little beast within his reach, Then starts, and seizes on the wretch: So from his Couch the Knight did start, To seize upon the Widow's heart; Crying with hasty tone and hoarse, Ralpho, dispatch, to horse, to horse, And 'twas but time, for now the Rout We left engag'd to seek him out, By speedy marches were advanc'd Up to the Fort where he enscone'd, And had all th' avenues possest About the place, from East to West. That done, a while they made a halt, To view the Ground, and where t' assault: Then call'd a Councel, which was best, By siege or onslaught, to invest The enemy: and 'twas agreed, By storm and onslaught to proceed. This b'ing resolv'd, in comely sort, They now drew up t' attack the Fort. When Hudibras about to enter Upon another gate's adventure; To Ralpho call'd aloud to arm, Not dreaming of approaching storm. Whether Dame Fortune, or the care Of Angel bad, or Tutelare, Did arm or thrust him on a danger, To which he was an utter stranger: That foresight might, or might not blot The glory he had newly got; Or to his shame it might be sed, They took him napping in his bed: To them we leave it to expound, That deal in Sciences profound. His Courser scarce he had bestrid, And Ralpho that on which he rid, When setting ope the Postern Gate, To take the Field and sally at, The Foe appear'd, drawn up and drill'd,

Ready to charge them in the field. This somewhat startl'd the bold Knight, Surpriz'd with th' unexpected sight The bruises of his Bones and Flesh, He thought began to smart afresh: Till recollecting wonted Courage, His fear was soon converted to rage. And thus he spoke: The Coward Foe, Whom we but now gave quarter to, Look, yonder's rally'd, and appears, As if they had out-run their fears. The Glory we did lately get, The Fates command us to repeat, And to their wills we must succumb, Quocunque trahunt, 'tis our doom. This is the same numerick Crew Which we so lately did subdue, The self-same individuals that Did run, as Mice do from a Cat, When we courageously did wield Our Martial weapons in the field, To tug for Victory: and when We shall our shining blades agen Brandish in terror o'er our heads, They'll straight resume their wonted dreads. Fear is an Ague, that forsakes And haunts by fits those whom it takes. And they'll opine they feel the pain And blows, they felt to day, again. Then let us boldly charge them home, And make no doubt to overcome.

This said, his Courage to enflame, He call'd upon his Mistriss name, His Pistol next he cockt anew, And out his nut-brown Whiniard drew. And placing Ralpho in the front, Reserv'd himself to bear the brunt; As expert Warriors use: then ply'd With Iron heel his Courser's side, Conveying Sympathetick speed From heel of Knight to heel of Steed.

Mean while the foe with equal rage And speed advancing to engage, Both parties now were drawn so close, Almost to come to handiblows. When Orsin first let fly a stone At Ralpho; not so huge a one As that which Diomed did maul \mathscr{E} neas on the Bum withal; Yet big enough, if rightly hurl'd, T' have sent him to another world; Whether above-ground, or below, Which Saints twice dipt are destin'd to. The danger startled the bold Squire, And made him some few steps retire. But Hudibras advanc'd to's aid, And rouz'd his Spirits half dismay'd. He, wisely doubting lest the shot Of th' Enemy now growing hot, Might at a distance gall, prest close, To come, pell-mell, to handiblows: And that he might their aim decline, Advanc'd still in an oblique line; But prudently forbore to fire, Till breast to breast he had got nigher: As expert Warriors use to do, When hand to hand they charge the foe. This order the advent'rous Knight Most Soldier-like observ'd in fight: When Fortune (as she's wont) turn'd fickle And for the foe began to stickle. The more shame for her Goody-ship, To give so near a friend the slip. For Colon chusing out a stone, Levell'd so right, it thumpt upon His manly panch with such a force, As almost beat him off his Horse. He loos'd his weapon, and the Rein;

But laying fast hold on the Mane Preserv'd his seat: And as a Goose In death contracts his Talons loose; So did the Knight, and with one Claw The tricker of his Pistol draw. The Gun went off: and as it was Still fatal to stout Hudibras, In all his feats of Arms, when least He dreamt of it to prosper best; So now he far'd, the shot let fly At randome 'mong the Enemy, Pierc'd Talgol's Gabberdine, and grazing Upon his Shoulder, in the passing Lodg'd in Magnano's brass Habergeon, Who straight a Surgeon cry'd, a Surgeon. He tumbled down, and as he fell, Did Murther, murther, murther yell. This startled their whole Body so, That if the Knight had not let go His Arms, but been in warlike plight, H' had won (the second time the fight.) As if the Squire had but fal'n on, He had inevitably done: But he diverted with the care Of Hudibras his wound forbare To press th' advantage of his fortune, While danger did the rest dishearten. He had with Cerdon been engag'd In close encounter, which both wag'd So desp'rately, 'twas hard to say Which side was like to get the day. And now the busie work of death Had tir'd them so, th' agreed to breath, Preparing to renew the fight; When th' heard the disaster of the Knight And th' other party did divert And force their sullen Rage to part Ralpho prest up to Hudibras, And Cerdon where Magnano was; Each striving to confirm his party

With stout encouragements and hearty. Quoth Ralpho, Courage, valiant Sir, And let Revenge and Honour stir Your spirits up, once more fall on, The shatter'd Foe begins to run: For if but half so well you knew To use your Victory as subdue, They durst not, after such a blow As you have giv'n them, face us now; But from so formidable a Soldier Had fled like Crows when they smell Powder. Thrice have they seen your Sword aloft Wav'd o'er their heads, and fled as oft: But if you let them recollect Their spirits, now dismay'd and checkt, You'll have a harder game to play, Than yet y' have had to get the day.

Thus spoke the stout Squire; but was heard By Hudibras with small regard. His thoughts were fuller of the bang He lately took, than Ralph's harangue; To which he answer'd, Cruel fate Tells me thy Counsel comes too late. The knotted blood within my hose, That from my wounded body flows, With mortal Crisis doth portend My days to appropringue an end. I am for action now unfit, Either of Fortitude or Wit. Fortune my foe begins to frown, Resolv'd to pull my stomach down. I am not apt upon a wound, Or trivial basting, to despond: Yet I'd be loath my days to curtal. For if I thought my wounds not mortal, Or that we'd time enough as yet To make an honourable retreat, 'Twere the best course: but [if] they find We fly, and leave our Arms behind,

For them to seize on, the dishonor And danger too is such, I'll sooner Stand to it boldly, and take quarter, To let them see I am no starter. In all the trade of War, no feat Is nobler than a brave retreat. For those that run away, and fly, Take Place at least of th' enemy.

This said. the Squire with active speed, Dismounted from his bony Steed, To seize the Arms which by mischance Fell from the bold Knight in a trance. These being found out, and restor'd To Hudibras, their nat'ral Lord, The active Squire with might and main Prepar'd in haste to mount again. Thrice he assay'd to mount aloft, But by his weighty Bum as oft He was pull'd back: till having found Th' advantage of the rising ground, Thither he led his warlike Steed, And having plac'd him right, with speed Prepar'd again to scale the Beast. When Orsin, who had newly drest The bloudy scar upon the shoulder Of Talgol with Promethean Powder, And now was searching for the shot That laid Magnano on the spot, Beheld the sturdy Squire aforesaid Preparing to climb up his Horse side. He left his Cure, and laying hold Upon his Arms with Courage bold Cry'd out, 'Tis now no time to dally, The Enemy begins to rally: Let us that are unhurt and whole Fall on, and happy man be's dole.

This said, like to a Thunderbolt He flew with fury to th' assault,

Striving the Enemy to attack Before he reacht his Horse's back. Ralpho was mounted now, and gotten O'erthwart his Beast with active vau'ting. Wrigling his body to recover His seat, and cast his right Leg over; When Orsin rushing in, bestow'd On Horse and Man so heavy a load, The Beast was startled, and begun To kick and fling like mad, and run; Bearing the tough Squire like a Sack, Or stout King Richard on his back: Till stumbling, he threw him down, Sore bruis'd and cast into a swoun. Mean while the Knight began to rowse The sparkles of his wonted prowess; He thrust his Hand into his Hose, And found both by his Eyes and Nose, 'Twas only Choler, and not Bloud, That from his wounded Body flow'd. This, with the hazard of the Squire, Inflam'd him with despightful Ire; Courageously he fac'd about, And drew his other Pistol out, And now had half-way bent the Cock, When Cerdon gave so fierce a shock, With sturdy truncheon thwart his Arm That down it fell, and did no harm; Then stoutly pressing on with speed, Assay'd to pull him off his Steed. The Knight his Sword had onely left, With which he Cerdon's Head had cleft, Or at the least cropt off a Limb, But Orsin came and rescu'd him. He with his Lance attac'd the Knight Upon his quarters opposite. But as a Bark that in foul weather, Toss'd by two adverse winds together, Is bruis'd and beaten too and fro, And knows not which to turn him to:

So far'd the Knight between two foes, And knew not which of them t' oppose. Till Orsin charging with his Lance At Hudibras, by spightful chance Hit Cerdon such a bang, as stunn'd And laid him flat upon the ground. At this the Knight began to chear up, And raising up himself on stirrup, Cry'd out Victoria; lie thou there, And I shall straight dispatch another, To bear thee company in death: But first I'll halt awhile and breath. As well he might: for Orsin griev'd At th' wound that Cerdon had receiv'd Ran to relieve him with his lore And cure the hurt he made before. Mean while the Knight had wheel'd about, To breathe himself, and next find out Th' advantage of the ground, where best He might the ruffled foe infest. This b'ing resolv'd, he spurr'd his Steed; To run at Orsin with full speed, While he was busie in the care Of Cerdon's wound, and unaware: But he was quick, and had already Unto the part apply'd remedy; And seeing th' enemy prepar'd, Drew up, and stood upon his guard. Then like a Warrior right expert And skilful in the martial Art, The subtle Knight straight made a halt, And judg'd it best to stay th' assault, Until he had reliev'd the Squire, And then (in order) to retire; Or, as occasion should invite, With Forces join'd renew the fight. Ralpho by this time disentrane'd, Upon his Bum himself advanc'd, Though sorely bruis'd; his Limbs all o're With ruthless bangs were stiff and sore.

Right fain he would have got upon His feet again, to get him gone; When Hudibras to aid him came.

Quoth he, (and call'd him by his name) Courage, the day at length is ours, And we once more as Conquerors, Have both the Field and Honor won, The Foe is profligate and run; I mean all such as can, for some This hand hath sent to their long home; And some lie sprauling on the ground, With many a gash and bloody wound. Cæsar himself could never say He got two Victories in a day; As I have done, that can say, Twice I In one day, Veni, vidi, vici, The foe's so numerous, that we Cannot so often vincere As they perire, and yet enough Be left to strike an after-blow. Then lest they rally, and once more Put us to fight the bus'ness o'er, Get up, and mount thy Steed, dispatch, And let us both their motions watch.

Quoth Ralph, I should not, if I were In case for action, now be here; Nor have I turn'd my back, or hang'd An Arse, for fear of being bang'd: It was for you I got these harms, Advent'ring to fetch off your Arms. The blows and drubs I have receiv'd, Have bruis'd my body, and bereav'd My Limbs of strength: unless you stoop, And reach your hand to pull me up, I shall lie here, and be a prey To those who now are run away.

That shalt thou not (quoth Hudibras) We read, the Ancients held it was

More honorable far Servare Civem, than slay an adversary. The one we oft to day have done; The other shall dispatch anon. And though th' art of a different Church, I will not leave thee in the lurch. This said, he jogg'd his good Steed nigher, And steer'd him gently toward the Squire. Then bowing down his Body, stretcht His Hand out, and at Ralpho reacht; When Trulla, whom he did not mind, Charg'd him like Lightening behind. She had been long in search about Magnano's wound, to find it out: But could find none, nor where the shot That had so startl'd him was got. But having found the worst was past, She fell to her own work at last The pillage of the Prisoners, Which all in feat of Arms was hers: And now to plunder Ralph she flew, When Hudibras his hard fate drew To succor him; for as he bow'd To help him up, she laid a load Of blows so heavy, and plac'd so well, On th' other side, that down he fell.

Yield Scoundrel base, (quoth she) or dye; Thy Life is mine and Liberty. But if thou think'st I took thee tardy, And. dar'st presume to be so hardy, To try thy fortune o'er afresh, I'll wave my Title to thy flesh, Thy Arms and Baggage, now my right: And if thou hast the heart to try't, I'll lend [thee] back thy self awhile, And once more for that carcass vile Fight upon tick—Quoth Hudibras, Thou offer'st nobly, valiant Lass, And I shall take thee at thy word.

First let me rise, and take my sword; That sword which has so oft this day Through Squadrons of my foes made way, And some to other worlds dispatcht, Now with a feeble Spinster matcht, Will blush with bloud ignoble stain'd, By which no honor's to be gain'd. But if thou'lt take m' advice in this, Consider while thou may'st, what 'tis To interrupt a Victor's course, B' opposing such a trivial force. For if with Conquest I come off, (And that I shall do sure enough) Ouarter thou canst not have, nor grace, By Law of Arms in such a case; Both which I now do offer freely.

I scorn (quoth she) thou Coxcomb silly, (Clapping her hand upon her breech, To shew how much [s]he priz'd his speech) Quarter or Counsel from a foe: If thou canst force me to it, do. But lest it should again be sed, When I have once more won thy head, I took thee napping unprepar'd, Arm and betake thee to thy Guard.

This said, she to her Tackle fell,
And on the Knight let fall a peal
Of blows so fierce, and prest so home,
That he retir'd and follow'd's Bum.
Stand to't (quoth she) or yield to mercy
It is not fighting Arsie-versie
Shall serve thy turn—This stirr'd his spleen
More than the danger he was in,
The blows he felt, or was to feel,
Although the' already made him reel,
Honor, despight, revenge, and shame,
At once unto his stomach came;
Which fir'd it so, he rais'd his Arm

Above his Head, and rain'd a storm Of blows so terrible and thick, As if he meant to hash her quick. But she upon her truncheon took 'em; And by oblique diversion broke 'em; Waiting an opportunity To pay all back with usury, Which long she fail'd not of, for now The Knight with one dead-doing blow Resolving to decide the fight, And she with quick and cunning slight Avoiding it, the force and weight He charg'd upon it was so great, As almost sway'd him to the ground. No sooner she th' advantage found, But in she flew, and seconding With home-made thrust the heavy swing, She laid him flat upon his side, And mounting on his Trunk a-stride, Quoth she, I told thee what would come Of all thy vapouring base Scum. Say, will the Law of Arms allow I may have Grace, and Quarter now? Or wilt thou rather break thy word, And stain thine Honor, than thy Sword. A Man of War to damn his Soul, In basely breaking his Parole. And when before the Fight, th' hadst vow'd To give no quarter in cold blood: Now thou hast got me for a Tartar, To make m' against my will take quarter? Why dost not put me to the sword, But cowardly fly from thy word? Quoth Hudibras, the days thine own; Thou and thy stars have cast me down: My Laurels are transplanted now, And flourish on thy conqu'ring brow: My loss of Honor's great enough, Thou need'st not brand it with a scoff: Sarcasmes may eclipse thine own,

But cannot blur my lost renown:
I am not now in Fortune's power,
He that is down can fall no lower.
The ancient Hero's were illustrious
For b'ing benigne, and not blustrous,
Against a vanquish'd foe: their swords
Were sharp and trencheant, not their words;
And did in fight but cut work out
T' employ their courtesies about.

Quoth she, although thou hast deserv'd, Base Slubberdegullion, to be serv'd As thou did'st vow to deal with me, If thou had'st got the Victory; Yet I shall rather act a part That suits my Fame, than thy desert. Thy Arms, thy Liberty, beside All that's o' th' out-side of thy Hide, Are mine by Military Law, Of which I will not bate one straw: The rest, thy Life and Limbs, once more, Though doubly forfeit, I restore.

Quoth Hudibras, it is too late For me to treat, or stipulate; What thou Command'st I must obey: Yet those whom I expugn'd to day, Of thine own party, I let go, And gave them life and freedom too, Both Dogs and Bears, upon their parol, Whom I took pris'ners in this quarrel.

Quoth Trulla, Wh[e]ther thou or they Let one another run away,
Concerns not me; but was't not thou
That gave Crowdero quarter too?
Crowdero, whom in Irons bound,
Thou basely threw'st into Lob's pound;
Where still he lies, and with regret
His generous Bowels rage and fret.

But now thy Carcass shall redeem, And serve to be exchange for him.

This said, the Knight did straight submit, And laid his weapons at her feet.

Next he disrob'd his Gaberdine,
And with it did himself resigne.

She took it, and forthwith devesting
The Mantle that she wore, said jesting,
Take that, and wear it for my sake;
Then threw it o'er his sturdy back.
And as the French we conquer'd once
Now give us Laws for Pantaloons,
The length of Breeches, and the gathers
Port-cannons, Perriwigs, and Feathers;
Just so the proud insulting Lass
Array'd and dighted Hudibras.

Mean while the other Champions, [y]erst In hurry of the fight disperst, Arriv'd when Trulla 'd won the day, To share in th' Honor and the Prey, And out of Hudibras his Hide With vengeance to be satisfi'd; Which now they were about to pour Upon him in a wooden showr. But Trulla thrust her self between. And striding o'er his back agen, She brandisht o'er her head his sword, And vow'd they should not break her word; Sh' had given him quarter, and her blood Or theirs, should make their quarter good. For she was bound by Law of Arms To see him safe from further harms. In Dungeon deep Crowdero cast By Hudibras as yet lay fast, Where to the hard and ruthless stones His great Heart made perpetual mones. Him she resolv'd that Hudibras Should ransome, and supply his place.

This stopt the fury and the basting Which toward Hudibras was hasting. They thought it was but just and right, That what she had atchiev'd in fight, She should dispose of how she pleas'd: Crowdero ought to be releas'd; Nor could that any way be done So well as this she pitcht upon: For who a better could imagine? This therefore they resolv'd t' engage in. The Knight and Squire first they made Rise from the ground where they were laid; Then mounted both upon their Horses, But with their Faces to the Arses. Orsin led Hudibras's beast, And Talgol that which Ralpho prest, Whom stout Magnano, valiant Cerdon, And Colon waited as a guard on, All ush'ring Trulla, in the reer With th' Arms of either prisoner. In this proud order and array They put themselves upon their way, Striving to reach th' inchanted Castle, Where stout Crowdero in durance lay still. Thither with greater speed, than shows And triumphs over conquer'd foes Do use t' allow, or then the Bears Or Pageants born before Lord Mayors Are wont to use, they soon arriv'd In order Soldier-like contriv'd, Still marching in a warlike posture, As fit for Battel as for Muster. The Knight and Squire they first unhorse, And bending 'gainst their Fort their force, They all advanc'd, and round about Begirt the Magical Redoubt. Magnan' led up in this adventure, And made way for the rest to enter. For he was skilful in Black Art

No less than he that left the Fort; And with an Iron Mace laid flat A breach, which straight all enter'd at, And in the wooden Dungeon found Crowdero laid upon the ground. Him they release from durance base, Restor'd t' his Fiddle and his Case, And liberty, his thirsty rage With lushious vengeance to asswage. For he no sooner was at large, But Trulla straight brought on her charge, And in the self-same Limbo put The Knight and Squire where he was shut. Where leaving them i' th' wretched hole, Their bangs and durance to condole Confin'd and conjur'd into narrow Enchanted Mansion, to know sorrow; In the same order and array Which they advanc'd, they marcht away.

But Hudibras, who scorn'd to stoop To Fortune, or be said to droop, Chear'd up himself with ends of Verse, And sayings of Philosophers. Quoth he, Th' one half of Man, his Mind Is Sui juris unconfin'd, And cannot be laid by the heels, What e'er the other moiety feels. 'Tis not Restraint or Liberty That makes Men prisoners or free; But perturbations that possess The Mind or Æquanimities. The whole world was not half so wide To Alexander when he cry'd, Because h' had but one to subdue, As was a paultry narrow tub to Diogenes, who is not said (For ought that ever I could read) To whine, put finger i' th' eye, and sob Because h' had ne'er another Tub.

The ancient[s] make two several kinds Of Prowess in heroick minds, The Active and the Passive valiant; Both which are pari libra gallant: For both to give blows and to carry, In fights are equenecessary; But in defeats, the Passive stout Are always found to stand it out Most desp'rately, and to out-doe The Active, 'gainst a conquering foe. Though we with blacks and blews are suggil'd, Or, as the vulgar say are cudgel'd: He that is valiant, and dares fight, Though drubb'd, can lose no honor by't. Honour's a lease for lives to come, And cannot be extended from The legal Tenant: 'tis a Chattel, Not to be forfeited in Battel. If he that in the field is slain, Be in the Bed of Honor lain: He that is beaten may be sed To lie in Honor's Truckle-bed. For as we see th' eclipsed Sun By mortals is more gaz'd upon, Than when adorn'd with all his light He shines in Serene Sky most bright: So Valor in a low estate Is most admir'd and wonder'd at.

Quoth Ralph, How great I do not know We may by being beaten grow; But none that see how here we sit Will judge us overgrown with Wit. As gifted Brethren preaching by A Carnal Hour-glass, do imply Illumination can convey Into them what they have to say, But not how much; so well enough Know you to charge, but not to draw off. For who without a Cap and Bauble,

Having subdu'd a Bear and Rabble, And might with Honor have come off, Would put it to a second proof: A politick exploit, right fit For Presbyterian Zeal and Wit.

Quoth Hudibras, That Cuckolds tone, Ralpho, thou always harp'st upon: When tho[u] at any thing would'st rail, Thou mak'st Presbytery thy scale To take the height on't, and explain To what degree it is prophane, Whats'ever will not with thy (what d' ye call) Thy light Jump right thou call'st Synodical. As if Presbytery were a standard To size whats'ever's to be slander'd. Dost not remember how this day Thou to my Beard wast bold to say, That thou could'st prove Bear-baiting equal With Synods, Orthodox and legal? Do if thou can'st, for I deny't, And dare thee to't with all thy light:

Quoth Ralpho, Truely that is no Hard matter for a man to do, That has but any Guts in's Brains, And could believe it worth his pains, But since you dare and urge me to it, You'l find I've light enough to do it.

Synods are mystical Bear-gardens,
Where Elders, Deputies, Church-wardens,
And other Members of the Court,
Manage the Babylonish sport.
For Prolocutor, Scribe, and Bearward,
Do differ onely in a mere word.
Both are but several Synagogues
Of carnal Men, and Bears and Dogs:
Both Antichristian Assemblies,
To mischief bent as far's in them lies
Both stave and tail, with fierce contests,

The one with Men, the other Beasts. The diff'rence is, The one fights with The Tongue, the other with the Teeth; And that they bait but Bears in this, In th' other Souls and Consciences; Where Saints themselves are brought to stake For Gospel light, and Conscience sake; Expos'd to Scribes and Presbyters, Instead of Mastive Dogs and Curs; Then whom th' have less humanity, For these at Souls of Men will fly. This to the Prophet did appear, Who in a Vision saw a Bear, Prefiguring the beastly rage Of Church-rule in this latter Age: As is demonstrated at full By him that baited the Popes Bull. Bears naturally are Beasts of prey, That live by Rapine, so do they; What are their Orders, Constitutions, Church Censures, Curses, Absolutions, But sev'ral mystick chains they make, To tye poor Christians to the stake? And then set Heathen Officers, Instead of Dogs, about their Ears. For to prohibit and dispence, To find out, or to make offence: Of Hell and Heaven to dispose; To play with Souls at fast and lose; To set what Characters they please, And mulcts of sin or Godliness; Reduce the Church to Gospel-Order, By Rapine, Sacriledge, and Murder; To make Presbytery supreme, And Kings themselves submit to them; And force all people, though against Their Consciences, to turn Saints, Must prove a pretty thriving Trade, When Saints Monopolists are made. When pious frauds and boly shifts

Are dispensations and gifts, There Godliness becomes mere ware, And ev'ry Synod but a Fair.

Synods are whelps of th' Inquisition, A mungrel breed of like pernicion, And growing up became the Sires Of Scribes, Commissioners, and Triers; Whose bus'ness is, by cunning slight To cast a figure for mens Light; To find in lines of Beard and Face, The Phisiognomy of Grace; And by the sound and twang of Nose, If all be sound within disclose, Free from a crack or flaw of sinning, As Men try Pipkins by the ringing. By Black Caps underlaid with White, Give certain guess at inward Light; Which Serjeants at the Gospel wear, To make the Spiritual Calling clear. The Hand[k] erchief about the neck (Canonical Crabat of Smeck, From whom the Institution came When Church and State they set on flame, And worn by them as badges then Of Spiritual Warfaring Men) Judge rightly if Regeneration Be of the newest Cut in fashion. Sure 'tis an Orthodox opinion That Grace is founded in Dominion. Great Piety consists in Pride; To rule is to be sanctifi'd: To domineer and to controul Both o'er the Body and the Soul, Is the most perfect discipline Of Church-rule, and by right divine. Bell and the Dragons Chaplains were More moderate than these by far: For they (poor Knaves) were glad to cheat, To get their Wives and Children Meat:

But these will not be fobb'd off so, They must have Wealth and Power too, Or else with blood and desolation, They'll tear it out o' th' heart o' th' Nation, Sure these themselves from Primitive And Heathen Priesthood do derive, When Butchers were the only Clerks, Elders and Presbyters of Kirks, Whose Directory was to Kill; And some believe it is so still. The onely diff'rence is, that then They slaughter'd only Beasts, now Men. For then to sacrifice a Bullock, Or now and then a Child to Moloch, They count a vile Abomination, But not to slaughter a whole Nation. Presbytery does but translate The Papacy to a Free State, A Commonwealth of Popery, Where ev'ry Village is a See As well as Rome, and must maintain A Tithe Pig Metropolitane: Where ev'ry Presbyter and Deacon Commands the Keys for Cheese and Bacon; And ev'ry Hamlet's governed By's Holiness, the Church's Head, More haughty and severe in's place Than Gregory and Boniface. Such Church must (surely) be a Monster With many heads: for if we conster What in th' Apocalypse we find, According to th' Apostles mind, 'Tis that the Whore of Babylon With many heads did ride upon; Which Heads denote the sinful Tribe Of Deacon, Priest, Lay-Elder, Scribe.

Lay-Elder, Simeon to Levi, Whose little finger is as heavy As loins of Patriarchs, Prince-Prelate,

Archbishop-secular. This Zelot Is of a mungrel, divers kind, Clerick before, and Lay behind; A Lawless Linsy-woolsy Brother, Half of one Order, half another; A Creature of amphibious nature, On Land a Beast, a Fish in Water, That always preys on Grace, or Sin; A Sheep without, a Wolf within. This fierce Inquisitor has chief Dominion over Mens Belief And Manners: Can pronounce a Saint Idolatrous, or ignorant, When superciliously he sifts, Through coursest Boulter, others gifts. For all Men live and judge amiss Whose Talents jump not just with his. He'll lay on Gifts with hands, and place On dullest noddle light and grace, The manufacture of the Kirk, Whose Pastors are but th' Handiwork Of his Mechanick Paws, instilling Divinity in them by feeling. From whence they start up chosen Vessels, Made by Contact, as Men get Meazles. So Cardinals, they say, do grope At th' other end the new made Pope.

Hold, hold, quoth Hudibras, Soft fire,
They say, does make sweet Malt. Good Squire.
Festina lente, not too fast;
For haste (the Proverb says) makes waste.
The Quirks and Cavils thou dost make
Are false, and built upon mistake.
And I shall bring you, with your pack
Of Falacies, t' Elenchi back;
And put your Arguments in mood
And figure to be understood.
I'll force you by right ratiocination
To leave your Vitilitigation,

And make you keep to th' question close, And argue Dialecticûs.

The Question then, to state it first, Is which is better, or which worst, Synods or Bears. Bears I avow To be the worst, and Synods thou. But to make good th' Assertion, Thou say'st th' are really all one. If so, not worst; for if th' are idem, Why then, Tantundem dat tantidem. For if they are the same, by course Neither is better, neither worse. But I deny they are the same, More than a Maggot and I am. That both are Animalia, I grant, but not Rationalia: For though they do agree in kind, Specifick difference we find. And can no more make Bears of these, Than prove my Horse is Socrates.

That Synods are Bear-gardens too, Thou dost affirm; but I say no: And thus I prove it, in a word, Whats'ever Assembly's not impowr'd To censure, curse, absolve, and ordain, Can be no Synod: but Bear-garden Has no such pow'r, Ergo 'tis none. And so thy Sophistry's o'erthrown.

But yet we are beside the Question Which thou did'st raise the first contest on; For that was, Whether Bears are better Than Synod-men, I say Negatur. That Bears are Beasts, and Synods Men, Is held by all: They'r better then. For Bears and Dogs on four Legs go, As Beasts, but Synod-men on Two.

'Tis true, they all have Teeth and Nails; But prove that Synod-men have tails; Or that a rugged, shaggy Fur Grows o'er the Hide of Presbyter; Or that his snout and spacious Ears Do hold proportion with a Bear's. A Bear's a savage Beast, of all Most ugly and unnatural, Whelpt without form, until the Dam Have lickt him into shape and frame; But all thy light can ne'er evict That ever Synod-man was lickt; Or brought to any other fashion Than his own Will and Inclination.

But thou dost further yet in this Oppugne thy self and sense, that is, Thou would'st have Presbyters to go For Bears and Dogs, and Bearwards too. A strange Chimæra of Beasts and Men, Made up of pieces Heterogene, Such as in Nature never met In eodem Subjecto yet.

Thy other Arguments are all Supposures, Hypothetical, That do but beg, and we may chuse Either to grant them, or refuse. Much thou hast said, which I know when, And where, thou stol'st from other Men (Whereby 'tis plain thy light and gifts Are all but plagiary shifts;) And is the same that Ranter sed, That arguing with me, broke my head, And tore a handful of my Beard: The self-same Cavils then I heard, When b'ing in hot dispute about This Controversie, we fell out; And what thou know'st I answer'd then, Will serve to answer thee agen.

Quoth Ralpho, Nothing but th' abuse Of Humane Learning you produce; Learning that Cobweb of the Brain, Profane, erronious, and vain; A trade of knowledge as repleat As others are with fraud and cheat; An Art t' incumber Gifts and Wit, And render both for nothing fit; Makes light unactive, dull and troubled, Like little David in Saul's Doublet; A cheat that Scholars put upon Other mens reason and their own; A Fort of Error, to ensconce Absurdity and Ignorance; That renders all the avenues To Truth impervious and abstruse, By making plain things, in debate, By Art, perplext and intricate: For nothing goes for Sense or Light That will not with old rules jump right. As if Rules were not in the Schools Deriv'd from Truth, but Truth from Rules.

This Pagan, Heathenish invention Is good for nothing but Contention. For as in Sword-and-Buckler Fight, All blows do on the Target light: So when Men argue, the great'st part O' th' Contest falls on terms of Art, Until the Fustian stuff be spent, And then they fall to th' Argument.

Quoth Hudibras, Friend Ralph, thou hast Out-run the Constable at last;
For thou art fallen on a new Dispute, as sensless as untrue,
But to the former opposite,
And contrary as black to white;
Mere Disparata, that concerning
Presbytery, this Humane Learning;

Two things s' averse, they never yet
But in thy rambling fancy met.
But I shall take a fit occasion
To evince thee by Ratiocination,
Some other time, in place more proper
Than this w' are in: therefore let's stop here,
And rest our wearied bones a while,
Already tir'd with other toil.

He could reduce all things to Acts.

The old Philosophers thought to extract Notions out of Natural things, as Chymists do Spirits and Essences; and when they had refin'd them into the nicest subtleties, gave them as insignificant Names, as those Operators do their Extractions: But (as Seneca says) the subtler things are render'd, they are but the nearer to Nothing. So are all their definitions of things by Acts, the nearer to Nonsense.

ANNOTATIONS TO THE FIRST PART

Where Truth in person does appear.

Some Authors have mistaken Truth for a Real thing, when it is nothing but a right Method of putting those Notions, or Images of things (in the understanding of Man) into the same state and order, that their Originals hold in Nature, and therefore Aristotle says, ununquodque sicut se babet secundum esse, ita se babet secundum veritatem. ANNOTATIONS TO THE FIRST PART

And much of Terra Incognita
The Intelligible world could say.

The Intelligible world, is a kind of Terra del Fuego, or Psittacorum Regio, discover'd only by the Philosophers, of which they talk, like Parrots, what they do not understand.

No Nation in the World is more addicted to this occult Philosophy, than the Wild Irish, as appears by the whole practice of their Lives, of which see Cambden in his description of Ireland.

The Fraternity of the Rosy-Crucians is very like the Sect of the antient Gnostici who call'd themselves so, from the excellent Learning they pretended to, although they were really the most ridiculous Sots of all Mankind.

Vere Adeptus, is one that has Commenc'd in their Fanatique extravagance.

Thou that with Ale or viler Licquors Did'st inspire Withers, Pryn, and Vickars.

This Vickars was a Man of as great Interest and [Authority] in the late Reformation, as Pryn, or Withers, and as able a Poet; He Translated Virgils Eneids into as horrible Travesty in earnest, as the French Scaroon did in Burlesque, and was only out-done in his way by the Politick Author of Oceana.

We that are wisely mounted higher.

This Speech is set down as it was deliver'd by the Knight in his own words: but since it is below the Gravity of Heroical Poetry, to admit of Humor, but all men are oblig'd to speak wisely alike. And too much of so extravagant a Folly would become tedious, and impertinent, the rest of his Harangues have only his Sense exprest in other words, unless in some few places where his own words could not be so well avoided.

In Bloudy Cynarctomarchy.

Cynarctomarchy signifies nothing in the World, but a Fight between Dogs and Bears, though both the Learned and Ignorant agree, that in such words very great Knowledge is contained: and our Knight as one, or both of those, was of the same opinion.

The Indians fought for the Truth Of th' Elephant, and Monkeys Tooth.

The History of the White Elephant, and the Monkeys Tooth, which the Indians ador'd, is written by Monsieur Le Blanc. This Monkey's Tooth was taken by the Portuguese from those that worship'd it, and though they offer'd a vast Ransom for it, yet the Christians were perswaded by their Priests, rather to burn it. But as soon as the fire was kindled, all the People present were not able to indure the horrible stink that came from it, as if the Fire had been made of the same Ingredients, with which Seamen use to compose that kind of Granado's, which they call Stinkards.

The American Indians call a great Bird they have, with a white head a Penguin; which signifies the same thing in the Brittish Tongue: from whence (with other words of the same kind) some Authors have endeavour'd to prove, That the Americans are originally deriv'd from the Brittains.

This story in Le Blane, of a Bear that married a Kings Daughter, is no more strange than many others in most Travellers, that pass with allowance, for if they should write nothing but what is possible, or probable, they might appear to have lost their labor, and observed nothing, but what they might have done as well at home.

ANNOTATIONS TO THE FIRST PART

They would not suffer the stout'st Dame To swear by Hercules's Name.

The old Romans had particular Oaths for Men and Women to swear by, and therefore Macrobius says, Viri per Castorem non jurabant antiquitus, nec Mulieres per Herculem, Ædepol autem juramentum erat tam mulieribus quam viris commune, &c.

Make that Sarcasmous scandal true!

Abusive, or insulting had been better, but our Knight believ'd the Learned Languages, more convenient to understand in, then his own Mothertongue.

And is indeed the self-same case With theirs that swore t' Et cæteras.

The Convocation in one of the short Parliaments that usher'd in the long one (as Dwarfs are wont to do Knights Errant) made an Oath to be taken, by the Clergy, for observing of Canonical obedience; in which they injoyn'd their Brethren, out of the abundance of their Consciences, to swear to Articles with $\Phi_{\mathcal{C}}$.

Or the French League in which men vow'd To fight to the last drop of Bloud.

The Holy League in France, design'd and made for the Extirpation of the Protestant Religion, was the Original, out of which the Solemn League and Covenant here, was (with difference only of Circumstances) most faithfully Transcrib'd. Nor did the success of both differ more than the Intent and Purpose; for after the destruction of vast numbers of People of all sorts, both ended with the Murthers of two Kings, whom they had both sworn to defend: and as our Covenanters swore every Man, to run one before another in the way of Reformation, So did the French in the Holy League, to fight to the last drop of Bloud.

First Trulla stav'd, and Cerdon tail'd.

Staving and Tailing are terms of Art us'd in the Bear-Garden, and significe there only the parting of Dogs and Bears, though they are us'd Metaphorically, in several other Professions, for moderating, as Law, Divinity, Hectoring, &c.

Or like the late corrected Leathern Ears of the Circumcised Brethren.

Pryn, Bastwyck, and Burton, who laid down their Ears as Proxies for three Professions of the Godly Party, who not long after maintain'd their Right and Title to the Pillory, to be as good and lawful, as theirs, who first of all took possession of it in their Names.

By him that Baited the Popes Bull.

A Learned Divine in King James's time wrote a Polemick Work against the Pope, and gave it that unlucky Nick-Name, of The Popes Bull Baited.

Canonical Crabat of Smec.

SmeTymnius was a Club of Parliamentary Holders-forth, The Characters of whose Names and Talents were by themselves exprest, in that senseless insignificant word; They wore Handkerchers about their Necks for a Note of Distinction, (as the Officers of the Parliament Army then did) which afterwards degenerated into Carnal Crabats.

And leave your Vitilitigation.

Vitilitigation is a word the Knight was passionately in love with, and never fail'd to use it upon all possible occasions: and therefore to omit it, when it fell in the way, had argu'd too great a Neglect of his Learning, and Parts, though it means no more than a perverse humour of wrangling.

The Second PART of

HUDIBRAS.

The Argument of the first CANTO.

The Knight being clapp'd by th' heels in prison, The last unhappy Expedition,
Love brings his Action on the Case,
And lays it upon Hudibras.
How he receives the Ladies visit,
And cunningly sollicites his sute,
Which she deferrs: yet on Parol,
Redeems him from th' Inchanted Hole.

CANTO I.

But now t'observe Romantique method
Let rusty Steel a while be sheathed;
And all those harsh and rugged sounds
Of Bastinado's, Cuts, and Wounds
Exchang'd to Love's more gentle stile,
To let our Reader breathe a while:
In which, that we may be as brief as
Is possible, by way of Preface.
Is't not enough to make one strange,
That some mens fancies should ne'er change?
But make all people do, and say,
The same things still the self-same way:
Some Writers make all Ladies purloin'd,

And Knights pursuing like a Whirlwind: Others make all their Knights, in fits Of Jealousie, to lose their wits; Till drawing blood o'th' Dames, like Witches, Th' are forthwith cur'd of their Capriches. Some always thrive in their Amours, By pulling Plaisters off their Sores; As Cripples do to get an Alms, Just so do they, and win their Dames. Some force whole Regions, in despight O' Geography, to change their site: Make former times shake hands with latter, And that which was before, come after, But those that write in Rhime, still make The one Verse for the others sake: For, one for Sense, and one for Rhime, I think's sufficient at one time. But we forget in what sad plight We lately left the Captiv'd Knight, And pensive Squire both bruis'd in body, And conjur'd into safe Custody: Tir'd with Dispute, and speaking Latine, As well as basting, and Bear-baiting; And desperate of any course, To free himself by wit or force. His onely Solace was, That now His dog-bolt Fortune was so low: That either it must quickly end, Or turn about again, and mend: In which he found th' event, no less, Than other times beside his guess; There is a tall long-sided Dame, (But wondrous light) yeleped Fame, That like a thin Camelion Bourds He[r] self on Air, and eats her words: Upon her shoulders wings she wears, Like Hanging-sleeves, lin'd through with Ears,

And Eies, and Tongues, as Poets list, Made good by deep Mythologist.

With these, she through the Welkin flies,

And sometimes carries Truth, oft Lies; With Letters hung like Eastern Pidgeons; And Mercuries of farthest Regions; Diurnals writ for Regulation Of Lying, to inform the Nation: And by their publick use to bring down The rate of Whetstones in the Kingdom. About her neck a Pacquet-Male, Fraught with Advice, some fresh, some stale, Of Men that walk'd when they were dead, And Cows of Monsters brought to bed: Of Hailstones big as Pullets Eggs, And Puppies whelp'd with twice two legs: A Blazing-Star seen in the IVest, By six or seven Men at least. Two Trumpets she does sound at once, But both of clean contrary tones. But whether both with the same Wind, Or one before, and one behind, We know not; only this can tell, Th' one sounds vilely, th' other well. And therefore vulgar Authors name Th' one good, th' other Evil Fame. This tailing Gossip knew too well, What mischief Hudibras befel; And straight the spightful tidings bears, Of all, to th' unkind Widows Ears. Democritus ne'er laugh'd so loud To see Bauds carted through the crowd, Or Funerals with stately Pomp, March slowly on in solemn dump; As she laugh'd out, until her back As well as sides, was like to crack. She vow'd she would go see the Sight, And visit the distressed Knight, To do the Office of a Neighbor, And be a Gossip at his Labor: And from his wooden Jail the Stocks, To set at large his Fetter-locks, And by Exchange, Parole, or Ransome,

To free him from th' Inchanted Mansion. This b'ing resolv'd, she call'd for hood And Usher, Implements abroad, Which Ladies wear, beside a slender Young waiting Damsel to attend her. All which appearing, on she went, To find the Knight in Limbo pent: And 'twas not long before she found Him, and his stout Squire in the Pound; Both coupled in Inchanted Tether, By further Leg behind together: For as he sate upon his Rump, His Head like one in doleful dump, Between his knees, his hands apply'd Unto his Ears on either side. And by him, in another hole, Afflicted Ralpho, Cheek by Joul; She came upon him in his wooden Magicians Circle, on the sudden, As Spirits do t' a Conjurer, When in their dreadful shapes th' appear. No sooner did the Knight perceive her, But straight he fell into a Fever, Inflam'd all over with disgrace, To be seen by her in such a place; Which made him hang the head, and scowl, And wink and goggle like an Owl, He felt his Brains begin to swim, When thus the Dame accosted him; This place (quoth she) they say's Inchanted, And with Deli[n]quent Spirits haunted; That here are ty'd in Chains, and scourg'd, Until their guilty Crimes be purg'd; Look, there are two of them appear Like Persons I have seen somewhere: Some have mistaken Blocks and Posts, For Spectres, Apparations, Ghosts With Sawcer-eyes, and Horns; and some Have heard the Devil beat a Drum: But if our Eyes are not false Glasses,

That give a wrong account of Faces; That Beard and I should be acquainted, Before 'twas conjur'd and inchanted. For though it be disfigur'd somewhat, As if't had lately been in Combat; It did belong t' a worthy Knight, Howe'er this Goblin is come by't. When Hudibras the Lady heard To take kind notice of his Beard, And speak with such respect and honor, Both of the Beard, and the Beard's Owner, He thought it best to set as good A face upon it as he cou'd, And thus he spoke; Lady, your bright And radiant Eyes are in the right: The Beard's th' Identique Beard you knew, The same numerically true: Nor is it worn by Fiend or Elf, But its Proprietor himself. Oh Heavens! quoth she, can that be true? I do begin to fear 'tis you: Not by your Individual Whiskers, But by your Dialect and Discourse; That never spoke to Man or Beast, In notions vulgarly exprest. But what malignant Star, alass, Has brought you both to this sad pass? Quoth he, the fortune of the War, Which I am less afflicted for, Than to be seen with Beard and Face, By you, in such a homely case. Quoth she, Those need not be asham'd, For being honorably maim'd; If he that is in battel conquer'd, Have any Title to his own Beard. Though yours be sorely lugg'd and torn, It does your visage more adorn, Than if 'twere prun'd, and starch'd, and lander'd And cut square by the Russian Standerd. A torn Beard's like a tatter'd Ensign,

That's bravest which there are most rents in. That Petticoat about your Shoulders, Does not so well become a Soldiers, And I'm afraid they are worse handled, Although i'th' reer, your Beard the Van led. And those uneasie bruises make My heart for company to ake, To see so worshipful a friend I'th' Pillory set, at the wrong end. Quoth Hudibras, This thing call'd Pain, Is (as the Learn'd Stoicks maintain) Not bad simpliciter, nor good, But merely as 'tis understood. Sense is deceitful, and may faign, As well in counterfeiting pain, As other gross Phænomena's, In which it oft mistakes the Case. But since th' immortal Intellect That's free from Error and Defect, Whose objects still persist the same) Is free from outward bruise or maim, Which nought external can expose To gross material bangs or blows: It follows, we can ne'er be sure, Whether we pain or not endure: And just so far are sore and griev'd, As by the Fancy is believ'd. Some have been wounded with conceit, And dy'd of mere opinion streight. Others, though wounded sore in reason, Felt nor contusion nor discretion. A Saxon Duke did grow so fat, That Mice, (as Histories relate) Eat Grots and Labyrinths to dwell in His Postique parts, without his feeling; Then how is't possible a kick, Should e'er reach that way to the quick? Quoth she, I grant it is in vain, For one that's basted, to feel pain; Because the Pangs his bones endure,

Contribute nothing to the Cure: Yet Honor hurt, is wont to rage With Pain no Med'cine can assuage. Quoth he, That Honor's very squeemish That takes a basting for a blemish: For what's more honorable than scars, Or skin to tatters rent in Wars? Some have been beaten till they know What Wood a Cudgel's of by th' blow; Some kick'd, until they can feel whether A Shooe be Spanish or Neats-Leather: And yet have met, after long running, With some whom they have taught that cunning, The furthest way about, t' o'ercome, I' th' end does prove th' nearest home; By Laws of Learned Duellists, They that are bruis'd with Wood, or Fists, And think one beating may for once Suffice, are Cowards, and Pultroons: But if they dare engage t' a second, They're stout and gallant fellows reckon'd. Th' old Romans, freedom did bestow; Our Princes worship, with a blow: King Pyrrhus cur'd his splenetick And testy Courtiers with a kick. The Negus, when some mighty Lord, Or Potentate's to be restor'd And Pardon'd for some great offence With which he's willing to dispence: First has him laid upon his Belly, Then beaten back, and side, t' a 'felly, That done, he rises, humbly bows, And gives thanks for the gracious blows; Departs not meanly proud, and boasting, Of his magnificent Rib-roasting. The beaten Soldier, proves most manful, That like his Sword, endures the Anvile: And justly's held more formidable, The more his Valor's malleable. But he that fears a Bastinado,

Will run away from his own shadow. And though I'm now in durance fast, By our own Party basely cast, Ransome, Exchange, Parole, refus'd, And worse than by th' Enemy us'd; In close Catasta shut, past hope Of Wit, or Valor, to elope. As Beards, the nearer that they tend To th' Earth, still grow more reverend: And Cannons shoot the higher pitches, The lower we let down their Breeches: I'll make this low dejected fate Advance me to a greater height.

Quoth she, Y've almost made m' in Love With that which did my pity move: Great Wits, and Valors, like great States, Do sometimes sink with their own weights: The extreams of Glory, and of Shame, Like East and West, become the same: No Indian Prince has to his Palace More follow'rs than a Thief to th' Gallows. But if a beating seem so brave, What Glories must a whipping have? Such great Atchievements cannot fail, To cast Salt on a Womans Tail, For if I thought your nat'ral Talent Of Passive Courage, were so Gallant; As you strain hard to have it thought, I could grow amorous, and dote.

When Hudibras this language heard, He prick'd up's ears, and strok'd his Beard: Thought he, this is the Lucky bour, Wines work, when Vines are in the flower; This Crisis then I'll set my rest on, And put her boldly to the Question.

Madam, what you would seem to doubt, Shall be to all the world made out, How I've been Drubb'd, and with what Spirit, And Magnanimity, I bear it; And if you doubt it to be true,

I'll stake my self down against you: And if I fail in Love or Troth, Be you the Winner, and take both.

Quoth she, I've heard old cunning Stagers Say, Fools for Arguments use wagers. And though I prais'd your Valor, yet I did not mean to baulk your Wit, Which if you have, you must needs know What, I have told you before now, And you b' experiment have prov'd,

I cannot Love where I'm belov'd. Quoth Hudibras, 'tis a Caprich Beyond th' infliction of a Witch; So Cheats to play with those still aim, That do not understand the Game. Love in your heart as idly burns, As Fire in antique Roman-Urns, To warm the Dead, and vainly light Those only, that see nothing by't. Have you not power to entertain, And render Love for Love again? As no man can draw in his breath, At once, and force out Air beneath? Or do you love your self so much, To bear all Rivals else a Grutch? What Fate can lay a greater Curse, Than you upon your self would force; For Wedlock without love, some say, Is but a Lock without a Key. It is a kind of Rape to Marry One, that neglects, or cares not for ye: For, what does make it Ravishment, But b'ing against the Mind's Consent? A Rape, that is the more inhumane, For being acted by a Woman, Why are you fair, but to entice us To love you, that you may despise us? But though you cannot love, you say, Out of your own Fanatique way, Why should you not, at least, allow,

Those that love you, to do so too: For, as you fly me, and pursue Love more averse, so I do you: And am by your own Dollrine taught, To practise what you call a fault.

Quoth she, If what you say be true, You must fly me, as I do you, But 'tis not what we do, but say, In Love and Preaching, that must sway.

Quoth he, to bid me not to love, Is to forbid my Pulse to move, My Beard to grow, my Ears to prick up, Or (when I'm in a fit) to hickup: Command me to piss out the Moon, And 'twill as easily be done. Loves power's too great to be withstood By feeble humane [f]esh and blood. 'Twas he, that brought upon his knees The Hell'ring Kill-Cow Hercules; Reduc'd his Leager-lions skins T' a Petticoat, and made him spin: Seiz'd on his Club, and made it dwindle T' a feeble Distaff, and a Spindle. 'Twas he made Emperors Gallants To their own Sisters, and their Aunts; Set Popes, and Cardinals agog To play with Pages at Leap-frog; 'Twas he that gave our Senate purges, And fluxt the House of many a Burgess; Made those that represent the Nation Submit, and suffer amputation: And all the Grandees o' th' Cabal, Adjourn to Tubs, at spring and fall. He mounted Synod-men and rode 'em To Durty-lane, and little Sodom; Made 'em Corvett, like Spanish Jenets, And take the Ring at Madam-'Twas he that made Saint Francis do More than the Devil could tempt him [to]; In cold and frosty weather grow

Enamor'd of a Wife of Snow; And though she were of rigid temper, With melting flames accost and tempt her: Which after in enjoyment quenching, He hung a Garland on his Engine. Quoth she, if Love have these effects, Why is it not forbid our Sex? Why is't not damn'd, and interdicted, For Diabolical and wicked? And song, as out of tune, against, As Turk and Pope are by the Saints? I find, I've greater reason for it, Than I believ'd before t' abhor it. Quoth Hudibras, These sad effects Spring from your Heathenish neglects Of Love's great pow'r, which he returns Upon your selves with equal scorns; And those who worthy Love[rs] slight, Plague's with prepost'rous appetite; This made the beautious Queen of Crete To take a Town-Bull for her Sweet; And from her greatness stoop so low, To be the Rival of a Cow. Others to prostitute their great Hearts, To be Baboons, and Monkeys Sweet-hearts. Some with the Dev'l himself in League grow By's Representative a Negro, 'Twas this made Vestal-Maids love-sick, And venture to be bury'd Quick. Some by their Fathers and their Brothers, To be made Mistrisses, and Mothers: 'Tis this that Proudest Dames enamors On Lacquies, and Varlets des-Chambres Their haughty Stomachs overcomes, And makes 'em stoop to Durty Grooms, To slight the World, and to disparage

Quoth she, these Judgements are severe, Yet such, as I should rather bear, Than trust men with their Oaths, or prove

Claps, Issue, Infamy, and Marriage.

Their faith, and secresie in love. Says he, There is as weighty reason, For Secresie in Love as Treason. Love is a Burglarer, a Felon, That at the Windore-eie does steal in To rob the Heart, and with his prey Steals out again a closer way, Which whosoever can discover, He's sure (as he deserves) to suffer. Love is a fire, that burns and sparkles, In Men, as nat'rally as in Char-coals, Which sooty Chymists stop in holes, When out of Wood, they extract Coles; So Lovers, should their Passions choak, That though they burn, they may not smoak. 'Tis like that sturdy Thief that stole, And drag'd Beasts backwards, into's hole: So Love does Lovers; and us Men Draws by the Tails into his Den; That no impression may discover, And trace t' his Cave, the wary Lover. But if you doubt I should reveal What you entrust me under Seal, I'll prove my self as close and virtuous, As, your own Secretary, Albertus.

Quoth she, I grant you may be close In hiding what your aims propose:

Love-Passions are like Parables,
By which men still mean something else:
Though Love be all the worlds pretence,
Mony's the Mythologic fence,
The real substance of the shadow,
Which all Address and Courtship's made to.

Thought he, I understand your Play, And how to quit you your own way; He that will win his Dame, must do, As Love do's, when he bends his Bow: With the one hand thrust the Lady from, And with the other pull ber home. I grant, quoth he, Wealth is a great

Provocative, to am'rous heat; It is all Philters, and high Diet That makes Love Rampant, and to fly out: 'Tis Beauty always in the Flower, That buds and blossoms at fourscore: 'Tis that by which the Sun and Moon, At their own weapons are out-done; That makes Knights Errant fall in trances, And lay about 'em in Romances. 'Tis Virtue, Wit, and Worth, and all That Men Divine and Sacred call. For what is Worth in any thing, But so much Money as 'twill bring? Or what but Riches is there known, Which man can solely call his own; In which, no Creature goes his half, Unless it be to squint and laugh? I do confess, with Goods and Land, I'd have a Wife, at second hand; And such you are: Nor is't your person, My stomach's set so sharp, and fierce on, But 'tis (your better part) your Riches, That my enamor'd heart bewitches; Let me your fortune but possess, And settle your person how you please: Or make it o'er in trust to th' Devil, You'l find me reasonable and civil. Quoth she, I like this plainness better Than false Mock-Passion, Speech, or Letter, Or any feat of qualm or sowning, But hanging of your self, or drowning; Your onely way with me, to break Your mind, is breaking of your Neck: For as when Merchants break, o'erthrown Like Nine-Pins, they strike others down; So, that would break my heart, which done, My tempting fortune is your own. These are but trifles, ev'ry Lover Will damn himself, over and over, And greater matters undertake,

For a less worthy Mistriss sake: Yet th' are the onely ways to prove The unfeign'd realities of Love; For he that hangs, or beats out's brains, The Devils in him if he feigns.

Quoth Hudibras, this way's too rough, For mere experiment, and proof; It is no jesting, trivial matter, To swing in th' Air, or plunge in Water, And like a Water-witch, try love. That's to destroy, and not to prove: As if a man should be dissected, To find what part is disaffected: Your better way is to make over, In Trust, your fortune to your Lover; Trust is a Tryal, if it break, 'Tis not so desp'rate as a Neck: Beside, th' experiment's more certain, Men venture Necks to gain a Fortune; The Soldier do's it ev'ry day (Eight to the week) for sixpence pay: Your Pettifoggers damn their Souls, To share with Knaves in Cheating Fools: And Merchants vent'ring through the Main, Slight Pirats, Rocks, and Horns for gain. This is the way I advise you to, Trust me, and see what I will do.

Quoth she, I should be loath to run My self all th' hazard, and you none. Which must be done, unless some deed Of yours, aforesaid do precede; Give but your self one gentle swing, For tryal, and I'll cut the string: Or give that Reverend Head, a maul, Or two, or three, against a Wall; To shew you are a man of mettle, And I'll engage my self, to settle.

Quoth he, my Head's not made of brass, As Frier Bacon's noddle was:
Nor (like the Indian's scull) so tough,

That Authors say, 'twas Musket-proof: As it had need to be to enter, As yet, on any new Adventure; You see what bangs it has endur'd, That would, before new feats, be cur'd: But if that's all you stand upon; Here, strike me luck, it shall be done.

Quoth she, The matter's not so far gone As you suppose, Two words t' a Bargain, That may be done, and time enough, When you have given down-right proof: And yet 'tis no Fantastick pike, I have to love, nor coy dislike; 'Tis no implicite, nice Aversion T' your Conversation, Meen, or Person: But a just fear, lest you should prove, False, and perfidious in Love; For if I thought you could be true, I could love twice as much as you.

Quoth he, My faith as Adamantine As Chains of Destiny, I'll maintain; True as Apollo ever spoke, Or Oracle from heart of Oak. And if you'll give my flame but vent, Now in close hugger-mugger pent, And shine upon me but benignly, With that one, and that other Pigsny, The Sun and Day shall sooner part, Than Love, or you, shake off my heart. The Sun that shall no more dispense His own, but your bright influence; I'll carve your name on Barks of Trees, With True-loves knots, and Flourishes; That shall infuse eternal spring, And everlasting flourishing: Drink every Letter on't, in Stum; And make it brisk Champaign become; Where e'er you tread, your foot shall set The Primrose and the Violet; All Spices, Perfumes, and sweet Powders,

Shall borrow from your breath their Odors; Nature her Charter shall renew, And take all lives of things from you; The World depend upon your Eye, And when you frown upon it, die. Only our loves shall still survive, New Worlds and Natures to out-live; And, like to Heralds Moons, remain All Crescents, without change or wane. Hold, hold, quoth she, no more of this, Sir Knight, you take your aim amiss; For you will find it a hard Chapter, To catch me with Poetique Rapture, In which your Mastery of Art Doth shew it self and not your Heart; Nor will you raise in mine combustion, By dint of high Heroick fustion: She that with Poetry is won, Is but a Desk to write upon; And what men say of her, they mean, No more than that on which they lean. Some with Arabian Spices strive To embalin her cruelly alive; Or season her, as French Cooks use Their Haut-gusts, Buollies, or Ragusts; Use her so barbarously ill, To grind her Lips upon a Mill, Until the Facet Doublet doth Fit their Rhimes rather than her mouth; Her mouth compar'd t' an Oyster's, with A row of Pearl in't, stead of Teeth; Others, make Posies of her Cheeks, Where red, and whitest colors mix; In which the Lily, and the Rose For Indian Lake, and Ceruse goes. The Sun, and Moon, by her bright eyes, Eclips'd, and darkn'd in the Skies; Are but Black-patches that she wears, Cut into Suns, and Moons, and Stars, By which Astrologers, as well

As those in Heav'n above, can tell What strange Events they do foreshow Unto her Under-world below. Her Voice the Musick of the Spheres, So loud it deafens mortal ears; As wise Philosophers have thought, And that's the cause we hear it not. This has been done by some, who those Th' ador'd in Rhime, would kick in Prose; And in those Ribbins would have hung, Of which melodiously they sung. That have the hard fate, to write best Of those still that deserve it least; It matters not, how false, or forc'd, So the best things be said o' th' worst; It goes for nothing when 'tis sed, Onely the Arrow's drawn to th' head, Whether it be Swan or Goose They level at: So Shepherds use To set the same mark on the hip Both of their sound and rotten Sheep. For Wits that carry low or wide, Must be aim'd higher, or beside, The mark, which else they ne'er come nigh, But when they take their aim awry. But I do wonder you should chuse This way t' attaque me with your Muse, As one cut out to pass your tricks on, With Fulliams of Poetic fiction: I rather hop'd, I should no more Hear from you, o' th' Gallanting score: For hard dry-bastings use to prove The readiest Remedies of Love, Next a dry-diet; But if those fail, Yet this uneasie Loop-hold Fail In which y' are hamper'd by the fet-lock, Cannot but put y' in mind of Wedlock: Wedlock, that's worse than any hole here, If that may serve you for a Cooler; T' allay your Mettle, all agog

Upon a Wife, the heavi'r clog.

Nor rather thank your gentle Fate,
That, for a bruis'd or broken Pate,
Has freed you from those knobs, that grow
Much harder, on the Marry'd Brow:
But if no dread can cool your Courage,
From vent'ring on that Dragon, Marriage;
Yet give me Quarter, and advance
To nobler aims, your Puissance:
Level at Beauty, and at Wit,
The fairest mark is easiest hit.

Quoth Hudibras, I'm before-hand In that already, with your command: For where does Beauty, and high Wit, But in your Constellation, meet?

Quoth she, What does a Match imply, But likeness and equality?

I know you cannot think me fit,
To be th' Yoke-fellow of your Wit:
Nor take one of so mean Deserts,
To be the Partner of your Parts;
A Grace, which if I could believe,
I've not the conscience to receive.

That Conscience, Quoth Hudibras, Is mis-inform'd; I'll state the Case. A man may be a Legal Donor Of any thing whereof he's Owner; And may confer it where he lists, I' th' Judgment of all Casuists: Then Wit, and Parts, and Valor may Be ali'nated, and made away, By those that are Prop[r]ietors; As I may give or sell my Horse.

Quoth she, I grant the Case is true, And proper 'twixt your Horse and you; But whether I may take, as well As you may give away, or sell? Buyers you know are bid beware; And worse than Thieves Receivers are. How shall I answer Hue and Cry,

For a Roan-Gelding, twelve hands high: All spurr'd and switch'd, a Lock on's hoof, A sorrel-mane? can I bring proof, Where, when, by whom, and what y' are sold for, And in the open Market toll'd for? Or should I take you for a stray, You must be kept a year and day (Ere I can own you) here i' th' pound, Where, if y' are sought, you may be found: And in the mean time I must pay For all your Provender and Hay. Quoth he, It stands me much upon T' enervate this Objection, And prove my self, by Topic clear, No Gelding, as you would infer. Loss of Virilit [y's] averr'd To be the cause of loss of Beard, That does (like Embryo in the womb) Abortive on the Chin become. This first a Woman did invent, In envy of Mans ornament. Semiramis of Babylon, Who first of all cut men o' th' Stone: To mar their Beards, and laid foundation Of Sow-geldering operation. Look on this Beard, and tell me whether, Eunuchs [wear] such, or Geldings either. Next it appears, I am no Horse, That I can argue, and discourse, Have but two legs, and ne'er a tail. Quoth she, That nothing will avail; For some Philosophers of late here, Write, Men have four legs by Nature, And that 'tis Custom makes them go Erroneously upon but two; As 'twas in Germany made good, B' a Boy, that lost himself in a Wood; And growing down t' a man, was wont With Wolves upon all four to hunt. As for your reasons drawn from tayls,

We cannot say, they 'are true or false, Till you explain your self, and show,

B' experiment, 'tis so or no.

Quoth he, If you'll join issue ont't, I'll give you satisfactory account; So you will promise, if you lose, To settle all, and be my Spouse.

That never will be done (quoth she) To one that wants a Tayl, by me: For Tayls by Natures sure were meant, As well as Beards, for ornament: And though the Vulgar count them homely, In man or beast, they are so comely, So Gentee, Allamode, and handsom, I'll never marry man that wants one: And till you can demonstrate plain You have one equal to your Mane, I'll be torn piece-meal by a Horse, Ere I'll take you for better or worse. The Prince of Cambay's daily food, Is Aspe, Basilisque, and Toad, Which makes him have so strong a breath, Each night he stinks a Queen to death; Yet I shall rather lie in's Arms, Than yours, on any other tearms.

Quoth he, What Nature can afford, I shall produce upon my word; And if she ever gave that boon To man, I'll prove that I have one; I mean, by postulate Illation, When you shall offer just occasion; But since y' have yet deny'd to give My Heart, your Pris'ner, a Reprieve, But made it sink down to my heel, Let that at least your pity feel, And for the sufferings of your Martyr, Give its poor Entertainer quarter; And by Discharge, or Main-prise grant Delivery from this base Restraint. Quoth she, I grieve to see your Leg

Stuck in a hole here like a Peg, And if I knew which way to do't, (Your Honor safe) I'd let you out. That Dames by Fail-delivery Of Errant Knights have been set free, When by Enchantment they have been, And sometimes for it too, laid in; Is that which Knights are bound to do By Order, Oath, and Honor too: For what are they renown'd and famous else But aiding of distress'd Damosels? But for a Lady no ways Errant, To free a Knight, we have no w[a]rrant In any Authentical Romance, Or Classic Author yet of France: And I'd be loath to have you break An ancient Custom for a freak, Or Innovation introduce In place of things of antique use; To free your heels by any course, That might b' unwholesome to your Spurs: Which if I should consent unto, It is not in my power to do; For 'tis a service must be done ye, With solemn previous Ceremony. Which always has been us'd t' untie The Charms of those who here do lie; For as the Ancients heretofore To Honor's Temple had no dore, But that which thorough Virtue's lay; So, from this Dungeon, there's no way To honour'd freedom, but by passing That other Virtuous School of Lashing, Where Knights are kept in narrow lists, With wooden Lockets 'bout their wrists, In which they for a while are Tenants, And for their Ladies suffer Penance: Whipping, that's Virtues Governess, Tutress of Arts and Sciences; That mends the gross mistakes of Nature,

And puts new life into dull matter; That lays foundation for Renown, And all the honors of the Gown: Thus suffer'd, they are set at large, And freed with honor'ble discharge: Then in their Robes the Penitentials, Are straight presented with Credentials, And in their way attended on By Magistrates of every Town; And all respect and charges paid, They're to their ancient Seats convey'd. Now if you'll venture for my sake, To try the toughness of your back, And suffer (as the rest have done) The laying of a Whipping on, (And may you prosper in your suit, As you with equal vigor do't) I here engage to be your Bail, And free you from th' Unknightly Fail. But since our Sex's modesty Will not allow I should be by, Bring me on Oath, a fair account, And honor too, when you have don't; And I'll admit you to the place, You claim as due in my good grace. If Matrimony and Hanging go By Dest'ny, why not Whipping too? What med'cine else can cure the fits Of Lovers when they lose their Wits? Love is a Boy, by Poets styl'd, Then Spare the Rod, and spill the Child. A Persian Emp'ror whipp'd his Grannum The Sea, his Mother Venus came on; And hence some Rev'rend men approve Of Rosemary in making Love. As skilful Coopers hoop their Tubs With Lydian and with Phrygian Dubs; Why may not Whipping have as good A Grace, perform'd in Time and Mood; With comely movement, and by Art,

Raise Passion in a Lady's heart? It is an easier way, to make Love by, than that which many take. Who would not rather suffer Whipping, Than swallow Toasts of bits of Ribbin? Make wicked Verses, Treats, and Faces, And spell Names over, with Beer-glasses? Be under Vows to bang and die Loves Sacrifice, and all a lie? With China-Oranges and Tarts, And whining Plays, lay baits for Hearts? Bribe Chamber-maids with love and money, To break no Roguish jeasts upon ye; For Lilies limn'd on Cheeks, and Roses, With painted perfumes, hazard Noses? Or vent'ring to be brisk and wanton, Do Penance in a Paper Lanthorn? All this you may compound for, now By suff'ring what I offer you: Which is no more than has been done, By Knights for Ladies long agone: Did not the Great La Mancha do so, For the Infanta Del Taboso? Did not th' Illustrious Bassa make Himself a Slave for Misse's sake? And with Bulls Pizle, for her love, Was taw'd as gentle as a Glove? Was not young Florio sent (to cool His flame from Biancafiore) to School, Where Pedant made his Pathick Bum For her sake suffer Martyrdom? Did not a certain Lady whip, Of late, her Husband's own Lordship? And though a Grandee of the House, Clawd him with Fundamental blows, Ty'd him stark-naked to a Bed-post, And firk'd his hide as if sh' had rid post; And after in the Sessions-Court, Where Whipping's judg'd, had honor for't? This swear you will perform, and then

I'll set you from th' Inchanted Den, And the Magician Circle clear.

Quoth he, I do profess and swear, And will perform what you enjoyn, Or may I never see you mine.

Amen (quoth she) Then turn'd about, And bid her Squire let him out. But ere an Artist could be found T' undo the Charms another bound, The Sun grew low, and left the Skies, Put down (some write) by Ladies eyes. The Moon pull'd off her veil of Light, That hides her face by day from sight, (Mysterious Veil, of brightness made, That's both her lustre, and her shade) And in the Night as freely shon, As if her Rays had been her own: For Darkness is the proper Sphere, Where all false Glories use t' appear. The twinkling Stars began to muster, And glitter with their borrow'd luster, While Sleep the weary'd World reliev'd, By counterfeiting Death reviv'd. Our Vot'ry thought it best t' adjorn His Whipping-penance till the morn, And not to carry on a Work Of such importance, in the Dark, With erring haste, but rather stay, And do't i' th' open face of Day; And in the mean time, go in quest Of next Retreat to take his Rest.

THE ARGUMENT.

The Knight and Squire in hot Dispute, Within an Ace of falling out; Are parted with a sudden fright Of strange Alarm, and stranger Sight; With which adventuring to stickle, They're sent away in nasty pickle.

Is strange how some men's Tempers suit (Like Bawd and Brandee) with Dispute, That for their own Opinions stand fast, Only to have them claw'd and canvast. That kept their Consciences in Cases, As Fidlers do their Crowds and Bases, Ne'er to be us'd but when they're bent To play a fit for Argument. Make true and false, unjust and just, Of no use but to be discust. Dispute and set a Paradox, Like a strait Boot upon the Stocks, And stretch it more unmercifully, Than Helmont, Mountaign, White, or Tully. So th' antient Stoicks in their Porch, With fierce dispute maintain'd their Church, Beat out their Brains in fight and study,

To prove that Virtue is a Body,
That Bonum is an Animal,
Made good with stout Polemique Braul:
In which, some hundreds on the place
Were slain outright, and many a face
Retrench'd of Nose, and Eyes, and Beard,
To maintain what their Sect averr'd.
All which the Knight and Squire in wrath
Had like t' have suffer'd for their faith;
Each striving to make good his own,
As by the sequel shall be shown.
The Sun had long since in the Lap
Of Thetis, taken out his Nap,
And like a Lobster boyl'd, the Morn
From black to red began to turn.

When Hudibras, whom thoughts and aking 'Twixt sleeping kept all night, and waking, Began to rouse his drousie eyes, And from his Couch prepar'd to rise; Resolving to dispatch the Deed He vow'd to do, with trusty speed. But first, with knocking loud and bauling, He rous'd the Squire, in Truckle lolling, And, after many Circumstances, Which vulgar Authors in Romances, Do use to spend their time and wits on, To make impertinent Description; They got (with much ado) to Horse, And to the Castle bent their Course, In which he to the Dame before To suffer whipping Duty swore: Where now arriv'd, and half unharnest, To carry on the work in earnest, He stopp'd and paus'd upon the sudden, And with a serious forehead plodding, Sprung a new Scruple in his head, Which first he scratch'd and after sed; Whether it be direct infringing An Oath, if I should wave this swinging, And what I've sworn to bear, forbear,

And so b' Equivocation swear; Or whether 't be a lesser Sin, To be forsworn, than act the thing, Are deep and subtle points, which must, T' inform my Conscience, be discust, In which to err a little, may To errors infinite make way: And therefore I desire to know Thy Judgment, ere we farther go. Quoth Ralpho, since you do injoin't I shall enlarge upon the Point. And for my own part do not doubt Th' Affirmative may be made out. But first to state the Case aright, For best advantage of our light: And thus 'tis: Whether 't be [a] Sin, To claw and curry your own skin Greater, or less, than to forbear, And that you are forsworn, forswear. But first, o' th' first: The Inward Man, And Outward, like a Clan and Clan, Have always been at Daggers-drawing, And one another Clapper-clawing: Not that they really cuff or fence, But in a Spiritual Mistique sence, Which to mistake, and make 'em squabble, In literal fray, 's abhominable; 'Tis Heathenish, in frequent use, With Pagans, and Apostate Jews, To offer Sacrifice of Bridewels: Like modern Indians to their Idols, And mungrel Christians of our times, That expiate less with greater Crimes, And call the foul Abhomination, Contrition, and Mortification. Is't not enough w're bruis'd and kicked, With sinful members of the wicked; Our Vessels, that are sanctifi'd, Profan'd and curri'd, back and side; But we must claw our selves, with shameful,

And Heathen stripes, by their example? Which (were there nothing to forbid it) Is impious because they did it. This therefore may be justly reckon'd A heinous sin. Now to the second, That Saints may claim a Dispensation To swear and forswear on occasion; I doubt not, but it will appear, With pregnant light. The point is clear. Oaths are but words, and words but wind, Too feeble implements to bind; And hold with deeds proportion, so As shadows to a substance do. Then when they strive for place, 'tis fit The weaker Vessel should submit: Although your Church be opposite To ours, as Black Friers are to White, In Rule and Order: Yet I grant You are a Reformado Saint; And what the Saints do claim as due, You may pretend a Title to: But Saints, whom Oaths or Vows oblige, Know little of their Priviledge; Farther (I mean) than carrying on Some self-advantage of their own, For if the Dev'l, to serve his turn, Can tell Truth; why the Saints should scorn When it serves theirs, to swear, and lie, I think, there's little reason why: Else h' has a greater pow'r than they, Which 'twere impiety to say. W' are not commanded to forbear, Indefinitely, at all to swear. But to swear idly; and in vain, Without self-interest or gain. For, breaking of an Oath, and Lying, Is but a kind of Self-denying, A Saint-like virtue, and from hence, Some have broke Oaths by Providence: Some, to the Glory of the Lord,

Perjur'd themselves, and broke their word: And this, the constant Rule and Practise Of all our late Apostles Acts is, Was not the Cause at first begun With Perjury, and carry'd on? Was there an Oath the Godly took, But, in due time and place, they broke? Did we not bring our Oaths in first, Before our Plate, to have them burst, And cast in fitter models, for The present use of Church and War? Did not our Worthies of the House, Before they broke the Peace, break Vows? For having freed us, first, from both Th' Allegiance and Supremacy Oath; Did they not, next, compell the Nation, To take, and break the Protestation? To swear, and after to recant The Solemn League and Covenant? To take th' Engagement, and disclaim it, Enforc'd by those, who first did frame it? Did they not swear at first, to fight For the KING's Safety, and His Right? And after march'd to find him out, And charg'd him home with Horse and Foot? And yet still had the confidence, To swear it was in his defence? Did they not swear to live and die With Essex, and streight laid him by? If that were all, for some have swore As false as they, if th' did no more. Did they not swear to maintain Law, In which that swearing made a Flaw? For Protestant Religion Vow, That did that Vowing disallow? For Priviledge of Parliament, In which that swearing made a Rent? And, since, of all the three, not one Is left in being, 'tis well known. Did they not swear, in express words;

To prop and back the House of Lords? And after turn'd out the whole House-ful Of Peers, as dang'rous, and unuseful? So Cromwel with deep Oaths and Vows, Swore all the Commons out o' th' House, Vow'd that the Red-coats would disband, I marry would they at their Command. And troul'd'em on, and swore, and swore, Till th' Army turn'd 'em out of Door; This tells us plainly, what they thought, That Oaths and swearing goes for nought. And that by them th' were onely meant, To serve for an Expedient. What was the Publick Faith found out for, But to slur men of what they fought for? The Publick Faith, which ev'ry one Is bound t' observe, yet kept by none; And if that go for nothing, why Should Private Faith have such a tye? Oaths were not purpos'd more than Law, To keep the Good and Just in aw, But to confine the Bad and Sinful, Like Moral Cattle in a Pinfold. A Saint's of th' heavenly Realm a Peer: And as no Peer is bound to swear, But on the Gospel of his Honor, Of which he may dispose, as Owner; It follows, though the thing be forgery, And false, th' affirm, it is no perjury, But a mere Ceremony, and a breach Of nothing, but a form of speech, And goes for no more when 'tis took, Than mere saluting of the Book. Suppose the Scriptures are of force, They 're but Commissions of Course, And Saints have freedom to digress, And vary from 'em as they please; Or misinterpret them, by private Instructions, to all Aims they drive at, Then why should we our selves abridge

And Curtail our own Priviledge? Quakers (that like to Lanthorns, bear Their light within 'em) will not swear. Their Gospel is an Accidence, By which they construe Conscience, And hold no sin so deeply red, As that of breaking Priscian's head; (The Head and Founder of their Order, That stirring Hats held worse than murder) These thinking th' are obliged to Troth In swearing, will not take an Oath; Like Mules, who if th' have not their will To keep their own pace, stand stock still; But they are weak, and little know What Free-born Consciences may do, 'Tis the temptation of the Devil, That makes all humane actions evil: For Saints may do the same things by The Spirit, in Syncerity, Which other men are tempted to, And at the Devils instance do; And yet the Actions be contrary, Just as the Saints and Wicked vary. For as on land there is no Beast, But in some Fish at Sea's exprest; So in the Wicked there's no Vice, Of which the Saints have not a spice; And yet that thing that's pious in The one, in th' other is a Sin. Is't not Ridiculous, and Nonsence, A Saint should be a slave to Conscience? That ought to be above such Fancies, As far, as above Ordinances, She's of the Wicked, as I guess, B' her looks, her language, and her dress, And though, like Constables, we search For false Wares, one anothers Church: Yet all of us hold this for true, No Faith is to the wicked due; For Truth is Precious and Divine,

Too rich a Pearl for Carnal Swine. Quoth Hudibr[a]s, All this is true, Yet 'tis not fit that all men knew Those Mysteries and Revelations; And therefore Topical Evasions Of subtle Turns, and Shifts of sence, Serve best with th' Wicked for pretence, Such as the learned Fesuits use, And Presbyterians, for excuse, Against the Protestants, when th' happen To find their Churches taken napping. As thus: A breach of Oath is Duple. And either way admits a scruple, And may be ex parte of the Maker, More criminal, than the injur'd Taker. For he that strains too far a Vow. Will break it like an o'er-bent Bow: And he that made, and forc'd it, broke it, Not he that for convenience took it: A broken Oath is, quatenus Oath, As sound t' all purposes of Troth, As broken Laws are ne'er the worse, Nay till th' are broken, have no force, What's Justice to a man, or Laws, That never comes within their Claws? They have no pow'r, but to admonish, Cannot controul, coerce, or punish, Until they 're broken, and then touch Those only that do make them such. Beside, no Engagement is allow'd, By men in Prison made, for Good; For when they 're set at liberty, They 're from th' Engagement too, set free: The Rabbins write, when any Jew Did make to God, or Man, a Vow, Which afterward he found untoward, And stubborn to be kept, or too hard; Any three other 'Fews o' th' Nation, Might free him from the Obligation: And have not two Saints pow'r to use,

A greater Priviledge than three Fews? The Court of Cons[c]ience, which in Man Should be supream and Soveraign: Is't fit, should be subordinate, To ev'ry petty Court i' th' State, And have less Power than the lesser, To deal with Perjury at pleasure? Have it's proceedings disallow'd, or Allow'd, at fancy of Py-powder? Tell all it does, or does not know, For swearing ex Officio? Be forc'd t' impeach a broken hedge, And Pigs unring'd at Vis. Franc. Pledge. Discover Thievees, and Bawds, Recusants, Priests, Witches, Eves-droppers, and Nusance; Tell who did play at Games unlawful, And who fill'd Pots of Ale but half full. And have no pow'r at all, nor shift, To help it self at a dead lift? Why should not Conscience have Vacation As well as other Courts o' th' Nation? Have equal power to adjourn Appoint Appearance and Retorn? And make as nice distinctions serve To split a Case; as those that carve Invoking Cuckolds names, hit joints, Why should not tricks as slight, do points? Is not the High-Court of Justice sworn To judge that Law that serves their turn? Make their own Jealousies High-Treason, And fix 'em whomsoe'er they please on? Cannot the Learned Councel there, Make Laws in any shape appear? Mould 'em as Witches do their Clay, When they make Pictures to destroy? And vex 'em into any form, That fits their purpose to do harm? Rack 'em until they do confess, Impeach of Treason, whom they please. And most perfidiously condemn,

Those that engag'd their Lives for them? And yet do nothing in their own sense, But what they ought by Oath and Conscience! Can they not juggle, and, with slight Conveyance, play with wrong and right; And sell their blasts of wind as dear, As Lapland Witches botl'd Air? Will not Fear, Favor, Bribe, and Grutch, The same Case sev'ral ways adjudge; As Seamen with the self-same Gale Will sev'ral different courses sail; As when the Sea breaks o'er its bounds, And overflows the level grounds; Those Banks and Dams, that like a Screen, Did keep it out, now keep it in: So when Tyrannical Usurpation Invades the freedom of a Nation, The Laws o' th' Land that were intended To keep it out, are made defend it. Do's not in Chanc'ry ev'ry man swear, What makes best for him in his Answer? Is not the winding up Witnesses, And nicking more than half the bus'ness? For Witnesses, like Watches, go Just as they're set, too fast or slow. And where in Conscience, th' are strait lac'd; 'Tis ten to one, that side is cast. Do not your Juries give their Verdict As if they felt the Cause not heard it? And as they please make Matter of Fact Run all on one side, as th' are packt? Nature has made Mans breast no IVindores, To publish what he does within doors; Nor what dark secrets there inhabit, Unless his own rash folly blob it. If Oaths can do a man no good, In his own bus'ness, why they shou'd In other matters do him hurt, I think there's little reason for't. He that imposes an Oath, makes it,

Not he, that for convenience takes it: Then how can any man be said To break an Oath he never made? These Reasons may perhaps look odly To th' Wicked, though they evince the Godly; But if they will not serve to clear My Honor, I am ne'er the near. Honor is like that glassy Bubble That finds Philosophers such trouble, Whose least part crackt, the whole does fly, And Wits are crack'd, to find out why. Quoth Ralpho, Honor's but a Word, To swear by only, in a Lord: In other men 'tis but a Huff, To vapour with, instead of proof, That like a Wen, looks big, and swels, Is sensless, and just nothing else. Let it (quoth he) be what it will, It has the World's opinion still. But as Men are not Wise that run The slightest hazard, they may shun: There may a Medium be found out To clear to all the World the doubt; And that is, if a man may do't By Proxy whipt, or Substitute. Though nice, and dark the Point appear, (Quoth Ralph) it may hold up and clear. That Sinners may supply the place Of suff'ring Saints is a plain Case. Justice gives Sentence, many times, On one man for another's Crimes, Our Brethren of New-England use Choice Malefactors to excuse, And hang the Guiltless in their stead, Of whom the Churches have less need. As lately 't happen'd: in a Town, There liv'd a Cobler, and but one, That out of DoEtrine could cut Use, And mend mens Lives as well as Shooes, This precious Brother having slain,

In times of Peace, an Indian, (Not out of Malice but mere Zeal Because he was an Infidel) The mighty Tottipottymoy Sent to our Elders an Envoy, Complaining sorely of the Breach, Of League, held forth by Brother Patch, Against the Articles in force Between both Churches, his and ours: For which he crav'd the Saints to render Into his hands, or hang th' Offender: But they maturely having weigh'd, They had no more but him o' th' Trade, (A man, that serv'd them in a double Capacity, to Teach, and Cobble) Resolv'd to spare him, yet to do The Indian Hoghan Moghan too Impartial justice, in his stead did Hang an old Weaver that was Bed-rid. Then wherefore may not you be skip'd, And in your room another whip'd: For all Philosophers, but the Sceptick, Hold Whipping may be Sympathetick. It is enough, Quoth Hudibras, Thou hast resolv'd, and clear'd the Case, And canst in Conscience, not refuse, From thy own Doctrine, to raise Use: I know thou wilt not (for my sake) Be tender-Conscienc'd of thy back: Then strip thee of thy Carnal Ferkin, And give thy outward-fellow a ferking. For when thy Vessel, is new hoop'd, All Leaks of sinning will be stop'd. Quoth Ralpho, You mistake the matter, For in all Scruples of this Nature, No man includes himself, nor turns The Point upon his own Concerns. As no man of his own self catches The Itch, or amorous French aches: So no man does himself convince

By his own Doctrine of his Sins.

And though all cry down Self, none means His own self in a literal Sense.

Beside, it is not only Foppish,

But Vile, Idolatrous, and Popish,

For one man, out of his own Skin,

To frisk and whip another's Sin:

As Pedants out of School-boys breeches,

Do claw and curry their own Itches.

But in this Case it is profane,

And sinful too, because in vain:

For we must take our Oaths upon it,

You did the deed, when I have done it.

Quoth Hudibras, That's answer'd soon; Give us the Whip, we'll lay it on.

Quoth Ralpho, That we may swear true, 'Twere properer that I whip'd you: For when with your consent 'tis done,

The AE is really your own.

Quoth Hudibras, It is in vain (I see) to argue 'gainst the grain; Or, like the Stars, incline men to, What they're averse themselves to do, For when Disputes are weari'd out, 'Tis Interest still resolves the doubt. But since no reason can confute ye, I'll try to force you to your Duty; For so it is, how e'er you mince it, As ere we part I shall evince it; And curry (if you stand out) whether You will or no, your stubborn Leather. Canst thou refuse to bear thy part, I' [th'] publick Work, base as thou art? To higgle thus, for a few blows, To gain thy Knight an opulent Spouse? Whose wealth his bowels yern to purchase, Merely for th' Interest of the Churches; And when he has it in his claws, Will not be hide-bound to the Cause; Nor shalt thou find him a Curmudgin,

If thou dispatch it without grudging: If not, resolve before we go, That you and I must pull a Crow. Y' had best (quoth Ralpho) as the Antients Say wisely, Have a care o' th' main chance, And look before you ere you leap; For, as you sow, you are like to reap. And were y' as good as George a Green, I shall make bold to turn agen; Nor am I doubtful of the Issue In a just Quarrel; and mine is so. Is't fitting for a man of Honor, To whip the Saints like Bishop Bonner, A Knight t' usurp the Beadles Office, For which y' are like to raise brave Trophies: But I advise you (not for fear, But for your own sake) to forbear, And for the Churches, which may chance From hence, to spring a variance; And raise among themselves new Scruples, Whom common danger hardly couples. Remember how in Arms and Politicks, We still have worsted all your holy Tricks, Trappan'd your party with Intregue, And took your Grandees down a peg, New-modell'd th' Army, and Cashier'd All that to Legion SMEC adher'd, Made a mere Utensil o' your Church And after left it in the lurch, A Scaffold to build up our own, And when w' had done with't, pull'd it down. O'er-reach'd your Rabbins of the Synod And snap'd their Cannons with a Why-not. (Grave Synod-men that were rever'd For solid Face and depth of Beard) Their Classique-model prov'd a Maggot, Their Directory an Indian Pagod. And drown'd their Discipline like a Kitten, On which th' had been so long a sitting; Decry'd it as a Holy Cheat,

Grown out of Date, and Obsolete, And all the Saints o' the first Grass, As Casting Foles of Balams Ass. At this the Knight grew high in Chafe, And staring furiously on Ralph, He trembl'd and lookt pale with Ire, Like Ashes first, then Red as Fire. Have I (quoth he) been ta'en in fight, And for so many Moons lay'n by't; And when all other means did fail, Have been exchang'd for Tubs of Ale: Not but they thought me worth a Ransom, Much more considerable and handsom, But for their own sakes, and for fear, They were not safe, when I was there? Now to be baffl'd by a Scoundrel, An upstart Sect'ry and a Mungrel, Such as breed out of peccant humors Of our own Church, like Wens, and Tumors And like a Maggot in a Sore, Would that which gave it life, devour. It never shall be done, nor said: With that he seiz'd upon his Blade. And Ralpho too, as quick, and bold, Upon his Basket-hilt laid hold, With equal readiness prepar'd

To draw, and stand upon his Guard. When both were parted on the sudden, With hideous clamour, and a loud one, As [i]f all sorts of Noise had been

To wave the Fight, and mount to Horse; And to secure, by swift retreating, Themselves from danger of worse beating. Yet neither of them would disparage, By utt'ring of his mind, his Courage, Which made 'em stoutly keep their ground With horror and disdain, wind-bound. And now the cause of all their fear, By slow degrees approach'd so near, They might distinguish diffrent noise Of Horns, and Pans, and Dogs, and Boys, And Kettle Drums, whose sullen Dub Sounds like the hooping of a Tub: But when the Sight appear'd in view, They found it was an antique Show, A Triumph, that for Pomp, and State, Did proudest Romans emulate; For as the Aldermen of Rome For foes at Training overcome, And not enlarging Territory, (As some mistaken write in Story) Being mounted in their best Aray, Upon a Carre, and who but they? And follow'd with a world of Tall Lads, That merry Ditties trol'd, and Ballads; Did ride, with many a good morrow, Crying, hey for our Town through the Burrough: So when this Triumph drew so nigh, They might particulars descry, They never saw two things so Pat, In all respects, as this, and that. First he that led the Cavalcate, Wore a Sowgelder's Flagellate, On which he blew so strong a Levet, As well fee'd Lawyer on his Breviate. When over one another's heads They charge (three Ranks at once) like Suedes. Next Pans, and Kettles of all keys, From Trebles down to double-Base, And after them upon a Nag,

That might pass for a forehand Stag, A Cornet rode, and on his Staff, A Smock display'd, did proudly wave. Then Bagpipes of the loudest Drones, With snuffing broken-winded tones; Whose blasts of Air in Pockets shut, Sound filthier than from the Gut, And make a viler noise than Swine In windy-weather, when they whine. Next, one upon a pair of Panniers, Full fraught with that, which for good manners Shall here be nameless, mixt with Grains Which he dispenc'd among the Swains, And busily upon the Crowd, At random round about bestow'd. Then mounted on a horned Horse, One bore a Gauntlet and Gilt-spurs, Ty'd to the Pummel of a long Sword, He held reverst the point turn'd downward. Next after, on a raw-bon'd Steed, The Conqueror's Standard-bearer rid, And bore aloft before the Champion A Petticoat displaid, and Rampant; Near whom the Amazon triumphant Bestrid her Beast, and on the Rump on't Sate Face to Tayl, and Bum to Bum, The Warrier whileme overcome: Arm'd with a Spindle and a Distaff, Which as he rode, she made him twist off; And when he loiter'd, o'er her Shoulder, Chastiz'd the Reformado Souldier. Before the Dame, and round about, March'd Whifters, and Staffiers on foot, With Lacquies, Grooms, Valets, and Pages, In fit and proper equipages; Of whom, some Torches bore, some Links, Before the proud Virago-Minx, That was both Madam, and a Don, Like Nero's Sporus, or Pope Fone; And at fit Periods the whole Rout

Set up their throats with clam'rous shout. The Knight transported, and the Squire Put up their Weapons, and their Ire; And Hudibras, who us'd to ponder On such Sights, with judicious wonder, Could hold no longer to impart His Animadversions, for his Heart.

Quoth he, In all my life till now, I ne'er saw so prophane a Show. It is a Paganish invention, Which Heathen Writers often mention: And he, who made it, had read Goodwin (I warrant him) and understood him: With all the Grecians Speeds and Stows: That best describe those Antient Shows, And has observ'd all fit Decorums, We find describ'd by old Historians. For as a Roman Conqueror, That put an end to forrain War, Ent'ring the Town in Triumph for it, Bore a Slave with him, in his Chariot: So this insulting Female Brave, Carries behind her here, a Slave, And as the Ancients long ago, When they in field defy'd the foe, Hung out their Mantles della Guer; So her proud Standard-bearer here, Waves, on his Spear, in dreadful manner, A Tyrian-Pet[t]icoat for a Banner: Next Links, and Torches, heretofore Still born before the Emperor: And as in Antique Triumphs, Eggs Were born for mystical intregues; There's one in Truncheon, like a Ladle, That carries Eggs too, fresh or adle; And still at random, as he goes, Among the Rabble-rout bestows.

When the Grey Mares the better Horse. When o'er the Breeches greedy Women, Fight, to extend their vast Dominion, And in the cause impatient Grizel Has drubb'd her Husband with Bulls Pizle, And brought him under Covert-Baron, To turn her Vassail with a Murrain; When Wives their Sexes shift, like Hares, And ride their Husbands, like Night-Mares, And they in mortal Battle vanquish'd, Are of their Charter dis-enfranchis'd, And by the right of War, like Gils, Condemn'd to Distaff, Horns, and Wheels; For when men by their Wives are Cow'd, Their Horns of course are understood.

Quoth Hudibras, Thou still giv'st sentence Impertinently, and against sense. 'Tis not the least disparagement, To be defeated by th' event: No[r] to be beaten by main force, That does not make a man the worse, Although his shoulders, with Batoon, Be claw'd and cudgell'd to some tune; A Taylers Prentice has no hard Measure, that's bang'd with a true yard: But to turn Tail, or run away, And without blows give up the Day; Or to surrender ere the Assault, That's no man's fortune, but his fault: And renders men of Honor less Than all th' Adversity of Success, And only unto such this Shew Of Horns, and Petticoats, is due. There is a lesser Profanation, Like that the Romans call'd Ovation, For as Ovation was allow'd For Conquest, purchas'd without blood, So men decree those lesser Shows, For Viet'ry gotten without blows. By dint of sharp hard words, which some

K 2 147

Give Battle with, and overcome; These mounted in a Chair Curule, Which Moderns call a Cucking-stool, March proudly to the River's side, And o'er the Waves in Triumph ride. Like Dukes of Venice, who are sed The Adriatique Sea to wed, And have a gentler Wife, than those, For whom the State decrees those Shows. But both are Heathenish and come From th' Whores of Babylon and Rome, And by the Saints should be withstood, As Antichristian and Lewd, And we, as such, should now contribute Our utmost struglings to prohibite. This said, they both advanc'd, and rod, A Dog-trot through the bawling Crowd, T'attack the Leader, and still prest, Till they approach'd him breast to breast. Then Hudibras, with face and hand, Made signs for Silence, which obtain'd: What means (quoth he) this dev'ls Procession With men of Orthodox profession? 'Tis Ethnique and Idolatrous, From Heathenism deriv'd to us. Does not the Whore of Babylon ride Upon her Horned Beast astride, Like this proud Dame, who either is A Type of her, or she of this? Are things of Superstitious function, Fit to be us'd in Gospel Sunshine? It is an Antichristian Opera, Much us'd in midnight times of Popery; A running after self-inventions Of wicked and profane Intentions; To scandalize that Sex, for scolding, To whom the Saints are so beholding, Women, who were our first Apostles, Without whose aid w' had all been lost else; Women, that left no stone unturn'd,

In which the Cause might be concern'd: Brought in their Childrens Spoons and Whistles, To purchase Swords, Carbines, and Pistols: Their Husbands, Cullies, and Sweet-hearts, To take the Saints and Churches parts: Drew several gifted Brethren in, That for the Bishops would have been, And fix'd them constant to the Party, With motives pow'rful and hearty: Their Husbands rob'd, and made hard shifts T' administer unto their Guifts; All they could rap, and run and pilfer, To scraps, and ends of Gold and Silver: Rub'd down the Teachers, tir'd and spent, With holding forth for Parliament; Pamper'd and edifi'd their Zeal With Marrow-puddings many a Meal; Enabled them, with store of meat, On controverted Points to eat; And cram'd them till their guts did ake, With Cawdle, Custard, and Plum-cake. What have they done, or what left undone, That might advance the Cause at London? March'd rank and file, with Drum and Ensign, T' entrench the City, for defence, in; Rais'd Rampiers with their own soft hands, To put the Enemy to stands; From Ladies down to Oyster-wenches, Labour'd like Pioneers in Trenches, Fell to their Pick-axes and Tools, And help'd the men to dig like Moles? Have not the Handmaids of the City, Chosen o' their Members a Committee? For raising of a Common-Purse, Out of their Wages, to raise Horse? And do they not as Triers sit, To judge what Officers are fit? Have they? At [that] an Egg, let fly, Hit him directly o'er the eye, And running down his Cheek, besmear'd,

With Orange-tawny-slime, his Beard: But Beard, and slime being of one Hue, The wound the less appear'd in view. Then he that on the Panniers rode, Let fly o' th' other side a load; And quickly charg'd again, gave fully In Ralpho's face, another Volley. The Knight was startl'd with the smell, And for his sword began to feel: And Ralpho smother'd with the stink, Grasp'd his: when one that bore a Link, O' th' sudden, clap'd his flaming Cudgel, Like Linstock, to the Horse's touch-hole; And streight another with his Flambeaux, Gave Ralpho's, o'er the eyes, a damn'd blow. The Beasts began to kick, and fling, And forc'd the Rout to make a Ring. Through which they quickly broke their way, And brought them off from further fray; And though disorder'd in Retreat, Each of them stoutly kept his seat: For quitting both their Swords and Rains, They grasp'd with all their strength the manes; And to avoid the foes pursuit, With spurring put their Cattle to't, And till all four were out of wind, And danger too, ne'r lookt behind. After th' had paus'd a while, supplying Their spirits spent with fight and flying, And Hudibras recruited force, Of Lungs, for action or discourse: Quoth he, that man is sure to lose, That fouls his hands with durty foes: For where no honor's to be gain'd, 'Tis thrown away in being maintain'd, 'Twas ill for us, we had to do With so dishonorable a Foe: For though the Law of Arms does bar The use of venom'd shot in War, Yet by the nauseous smell, and noisom,

Their Case-shot sayours strong of poison; And doubtless have been chew'd with teeth Of some that had a stinking breath: Else when we put it to the push, They had not giv'n us such a brush. But as those Pultroons that fling durt, Do but defile, but cannot hurt; So all the Honor they have won, Or we have lost, is much at one. 'Twas well we made so resolute A brave Retreat, without pursuit; For if we had not, we had sped Much worse, to be in Triumph led; Than which, the Ancients held no state, Of Man's life more unfortunate. But if this bold Adventure e'er Do chance to reach the Widows ear, It may, b'ing destin'd to assert Her Sex's Honor, reach her heart, And as such homely Treats (they say) Portend good fortune, so this may. Vespasian being dawb'd with durt, Was destin'd to the Empire for't: And from a Scavinger did come To be a mighty Prince in Rome: And why may not this foul Address Presage in Love the same success? Then let us streight to cleanse our wounds, Advance in quest of nearest Ponds; And after (as we first design'd) Swear I've perform'd what she enjoin'd.

CANTO III.

THE ARGUMENT.

The Knight with various doubts possest
To win the Lady, goes in Quest
Of Sidrophel the Rosy-crucian,
To know the Dest'nies resolution;
With whom being met, they both chop Logick
About the Science Astrologick.
Till falling from Dispute, to Fight,
The Conjurer's worsted by the Knight.

Oubtless the pleasure is as great Of being cheated, as to cheat. As lookers-on feel most delight, That least perceive a Juglers slight; And still the less they understand, The more th' admire his slight of hand. Some with a noise, and greasie light, Are snapt, as men catch Larks by night; Ensnar'd and hamper'd by the Soul, As Noozes by the legs catch Foul. Some with a Med'cine, and Receipt, Are drawn to nibble at the Bait; And though it be a two-foot Trout, 'Tis with a single hair pull'd out. Others believe no Voice t' an Organ; So sweet as Lawyer in his Bar-gown.

Until, with subtle Cobweb-cheats, Th' are catch'd in knotted Law, like Nets: In which, when once they are imbrangled, The more they stir, the more th're tangled; And while their Purses can dispute, There's no end of th' immortal Suit. Others still gape t' anticipate The Cabinet designs of Fate, Apply to Wisards to fore-see What shall, and what shall never be: And as those Vulturs do foreboad, Believe Events prove bad, or good. A flam more sensless than the Roguery Of old Aruspicy and Augury. That out of Garbages of Cattle, Presag'd th' events of Truce, or Battle; From flight of Birds, or Chickins pecking, Success of great'st attempts would reckon; Though Cheats, yet more intelligible, Than those that with the Stars do fribble. This Hudibras by proof found true, As in due time and place we'll shew. For He, with Beard and Face made clean, Being mounted on his Steed agen, (And Ralpho got a Cock-horse too Upon his Beast, with much ado) Advanc'd on for the Widows house, T' acquit himself and pay his Vows; When various thoughts began to bustle, And with his inward man to justle. He thought what danger might accrue, If she should find he swore untrue: Or, if his Squire, or he should fail, And not be punctual in their Tale; It might at once the ruine prove Both of his Honor, Faith, and Love. But if he should forbear to go, She might conclude h' had broke his Vow; And that he durst not now for shame Appear in Court to try his Claim.

This was the Pen'worth of his thought, To pass time, and uneasie trot. Quoth he, in all my past Adventures, I ne'er was set so on the Tenters, Or taken tardy with Dilemma, That, every way I turn, does hem me; And with inextricable doubt, Besets my puzled Wits about: For though the Dame has been my Bail, To free me from enchanted Fail: Yet as a Dog committed close For some offence, by chance breaks loose, And quits his Clog; but all in vain, He still draws after him his Chain. So though my Ankle she has quitted, My Heart continues still committed. And like a Bayl'd and Main-priz'd Lover, Although at large, I am bound over. And when I shall appear in Court, To plead my Cause, and answer for't Unless the Judge do partial prove, What will become of Me and Love? For, if in our account we vary, Or but in Circumstance miscarry, Or if she put me to strict proof, And make me pull my Doublet off, To shew by evident Record, Writ on my skin, I've kept my word: How can I e'er expect to have her, Having demurr'd unto her favour? But Faith, and Love, and Honor lost, Shall be reduc'd t' a Knight o' th' Post: Beside, that Stripping may prevent What I'm to prove by Argument; And justifie I have a Tail, And that way too, my proof may fail. Or that I could enucleate, And solve the Problems of my Fate; Or find by Necromantick Art, How far the Dest'nies take my part;

For if I were not more than certain, To win, and wear her, and her Fortune, I'd go no farther in this Courtship, To hazard Soul, Estate, and Worship. For though an Oath obliges not, Where any thing is to be got, (As thou hast prov'd,) yet 'tis profane And sinful, when men swear in vain. Quoth Ralph, Not far from hence doth dwell A cunning man, hight Sidrophel, That deals in Destinies dark Counsels, And sage Opinions of the Moon sells; To whom all People far and near, On deep importances repair. When Brass and Pewter hap to stray, And Linnen slinks out of the way; When Geese and Pullen are seduc'd, And Sows of sucking Pigs are chews'd; When Cattle feel Indisposition, And need th' opinion of Physitian; When Murrain reigns in Hogs, or Sheep, And Chickens languish of the Pip; When Yeast, and outward means do fail, And have no pow'r to work on Ale; When Butter does refuse to come, And Love proves cross and humorsome: To him with Questions, and with Urine, They for discoviry flock, or Curing. Quoth Hudibras, This Sidrophel I've heard of, and should like it well, If thou canst prove the Saints have freedom, To go to Sorc'rers when they need 'em. Says Ralpho, There's no doubt of that: Those Principles I quoted late, Prove that the Godly may alledge For any thing their Priviledge; And to the Dev'l himself may go, If they have motives thereunto. For as there is a War between

The Dev'l and them, it is no Sin,

If they, by subtle Stratagem, Make use of him, as he does them. Has not this present Parliament A Legar to the Devil sent, Fully empower'd to Treat about Finding revolted Witches out: And has not he, within a year, Hang'd threescore of them in one Shire? Some only for not being drown'd, And some for sitting above ground, Whole days and nights upon their breeches, And feeling pain, were hang'd for Witches. And some for putting Knavish tricks Upon Green-Geese, and Turkey Chicks, Or Pigs, that suddenly deceast, Of griefs unnat'ral, as he guest; Who after prov'd himself a Witch, And made a Rod for his own breech. Did not the Dev'l appear to Martin Luther, in Germany, for certain; And would have gull'd him with a Trick, But Mart. was too too Politick? Did he not help the Dutch to purge, At Antwerp, their Cathedral Church? Sing catches to the Saints at Mascon, And tell them all they came to ask him? Appear in divers shapes to Kelly? And speak i' th' Nun at Londons Belly? Meet with the Parliament's Committee At Woodstock, on a Pars'nal Treaty? At Sarum take a Cavalier I' th' Cause's service, Prisoner? As Withers in immortal Rime Has register'd to after-time? Do not our great Reformers use This Sidrophel to foreboad News? To write of Victories next year, And Castles taken yet i' th' Air; Of Battels fought at Sea, and Ships Sunk, two years hence, the last Eclips?

A Total O'erthrow giv'n the King In Cornwal, Horse, and Foot, next Spring? And has not he point-blank foretold Whats'er the close Committee would? Made Mars and Saturn for the Cause, The Moon for fundamental Laws? The Ram, and Bull, and Goat declare Against the Book of Common Pray'r? The Scorpion take the Protestation, And Bear engage for Reformation? Made all the Royal Stars recant, Compound, and take the Covenant. Quoth Hudibras, The case is clear, The Saints ma' imploy a Conjurer; As thou hast prov'd it by their practice No Argument like matter of fact is: And we are best of all led to Mens Principles by what they do. Then let us strait advance in quest Of this profound Gymnosophist: And as the Fates, and He advise, Pursue, or wave this Enterprise. This said, he turn'd about his Steed, And eftsoons on th' adventure rid, Where, leave we Him and Ralph a while, And to the Conj'rer turn our stile: To let our Reader understand What's useful of him, before hand. He had been long t'wards Mathematicks, Opticks, Philosophy, and Staticks, Magick, Horoscopy, Astrology, And was old Dog at Physiology; But, as a Dog that turns the spit, Bestirs himself, and plies his feet, To climb the Wheel; but all in vain, His own weight brings him down again: And still he's in the self-same place, Where at his setting out he was. So in the Circle of the Arts, Did he advance his nat'ral Parts;

Till falling back still, for retreat, He fell to Juggle, Cant, and Cheat; For as those Foruls that live in Water Are never wet, he did but smatter; Whate'er he labour'd to appear, His understanding still was clear. Yet none a deeper knowledge boasted, Since old Hodg Bacon, and Bod Grosted, Th' Intelligible world he knew, And all, men dream on't, to be true: That in this World, there's not a Wart, That has not there a Counterpart; Nor can there on the face of Ground, An Individual Beard be found, That has not, in that foreign Nation, A fellow of the self-same fashion; So cut, so color'd, and so curl'd, As those are, in th' Inferior World. H' had read Dee's Prefaces before The Dev'l, and Euclide o'er and o'er. And all th' Intregues, 'twixt him and Kelly, Lescus, and th' Emperor, [would] tell ye. But with the Moon was more familiar Than e'er was Almanack well willer. Her secrets understood so clear, That some believ'd he had been there. Knew when she was in fittest mood, For cutting Corns, or letting blood: When for anointing Scabs and Itches, Or to the Bum applying Leeches; When Sows and Bitches may be spade, And in what Sign best Sider's made, Whether the Wane be, or Increase, Best to set Garlick, or sow Pease. Who first found out the Man i' th' Moon, That to the Ancients was unknown; How many Dukes, and Earls, and Peers, Are in the Planetary Spheres, Their Airy Empire: and command Their sev'ral strengths by Sea and Land;

What factions th' have, and what they drive at In publick Vogue, and what in private; With what Designs and Interests, Each Party manages Contests, He made an Instrument to know If the Moon shine at full or no. That would as soon as e'er she shon, strait Whether 'twere Day or Night demonstrate; Tell what her D'ameter t' an Inch is, And prove she is not made of Green Cheese: It would demonstrate, that the Man in The Moon's a Sea Mediterranean. And that it is no Dog, nor Bitch, That stands behind him at his breech; But a huge Caspian Sea, or Lake With Arms which Men for Legs mistake, How large a Gulph his Tail composes, And what a goodly Bay his Nose is; How many German Leagues by th' scale, Cape-Snout's from Promontary-Tayl: He made a Planetary Gin, Which Rats would run their own heads in, And come o' purpose to be taken, Without th' expence of Cheese or Bacon; With Lute-strings he would counterfeit Maggots, that crawl on dish of meat, Quote Moles and Spots, on any place O' th' body, by the Index-face: Detect lost Maidenheads, by sneezing, Or breaking wind of Dames, or pissing. Cure Warts and Corns, with application Of Med'cines, to th' Imagination. Fright Agues into Dogs, and scare With Rimes the Tooth-ach and Catarrh. Chase evil spirits away by dint Of Cickle, Horseshove, Hollow-flint. Spit fire out of a Walnut-shell, Which made the Roman Slaves rebell. And fire a Mine in China, here, With Sympathetick Gunpowder.

He knew whats'ever's to be known, But much more than he knew, would own. What Med'cine 'twas that Paracelsus Could make a man with, as he tells us. What figur'd Slats are best to make, On wat'ry surface, Duck or Drake. What Bowling-stones, in running race Upon a Board, have swiftest pace. Whether a Pulse beat in the black List of a Dapl'd Louse's back. If Systole or Diastole move Quickest, when he's in wrath, or love: When two of them do run a race, Whether they Gallop, Trot, or Pace, How many scores a Flea will jump, Of his own length, from Head to Rump; Which Socrates, and Chærephon In vain, essay'd so long agon; Whether his Snout a perfect Nose is, And not an Elephant's Proboscis, How many different Specieses Of Maggots breed in rotten Cheese, And which are next of kin to those Engendred in a Chandler's nose. Or those not seen, but understood, That live in Vinegar and IV ood; A paultry Wretch, he had, half-starv'd, That him in place of Zany serv'd; Hight IV hachum, bred to dash and draw, Not Wine, but more unwholesome Law: To make 'twixt words and lines, huge gaps, Wide as Meridians in Maps. To squander Paper, and spare Ink, Or cheat men of their words, some think; From this, by merited degrees, He to more high Advancement rise: To be an Under-Conjurer, Or Journy-man Astrologer: His bus'ness was to pump and wheedle, And Men with their own keys unriddle.

To make them to themselves give answers, For which they pay the Necromancers. To fetch and carry Intelligence, Of whom, and what, and where, and whence, And all Discoveries disperse, Among th' whole pack of Conjurers; What Cutpurses have left with them, For the right owners to redeem; And, what they dare not vend, find out, To gain themselves, and th' Art, repute. Draw Figures, Schemes, and Horoscopes, Of Newgate, Bridewell, Brokers Shops. Of Thieves ascendent in the Cart, And find out all by rules of Art. Which way a Serving-man that's run With Cloaths or Mony away, is gone: Who pick'd a Fob, at Holding-forth, And where a Watch, for half the worth, May be redeem'd; or Stolen Plate Restor'd, at Conscionable rate. Beside all this, he serv'd his Master In quality of Poetaster: And Rimes appropriate could make, To ev'ry month i' th' Almanack. When Terms begin, and end, could tell, With their Returns, in Doggerel. When the Exchequer opes and shuts, And Sowgelder, with safety cuts. When Men may Eat and Drink their fill, And when be temp'rate if they will. When use, and when abstain from vice, Figs, Grapes, Phlebotomy, and Spice. And as in Prisons, mean Rogues beat Hemp, for the service of the Great; So Whachum beat his durty brains, T' advance his Masters Fame and Gains; And like the Devil's Oracles, Put into Dogrel-Rimes his Spells, Which over ev'ry months blank-page I' th' Almanack, strange Bilks presage.

He would an Elegy compose On Maggots squeez'd out of his Nose; In Lyrick numbers write an Ode on His Mistriss, eating a Black-pudden: And when imprison'd Air escap'd her, It puft him with Poetick Rapture: His Sonnets charm'd th' attentive Crowd, By wide-mouth'd Mortal troul'd aloud; That, circl'd with his long-ear'd Guests, Like Orpheus look'd, among the Beasts, A Carman's Horse could not pass by, But stood ty'd up to Poetry, No Porter's Burthen past along, But serv'd for Burthen to his Song. Each Windore, like a Pill'ry appears, With heads thrust through, nail'd by the ears: All Trades run in as to the sight Of Monsters, or their dear delight; The Gallow-tree, when cutting Purse, Breeds bus'ness for Heroick Verse, Which none does hear, but would have hung T've been the Theme of such a Song. Those two together long had liv'd, In Mansion prudently contriv'd; Where neither Tree, nor House could bar The free detection of a Star; And nigh an Antient Obelisk Was rais'd by him, found out by Fisk, On which was written, not in words, But Hieroglyphick Mute of Birds, Many rare pithy Saws concerning The worth of Astrologick Learning: From top of this there hung a Rope, To which he fastned Telescope; The Spectacles, with which the Stars He reads in smallest Characters. It hapned as a Boy, one night, Did fly his Tarsel of a Kite, The strangest long-wing'd Hauk that flies, That like a Bird of Paradise,

Or Heralds Martlet, has no legs, Nor hatches young ones, nor lay[s] Eggs; His Train was six yards long, milk-white, At th' end of which there hung a Light, Enclos'd in Lanthorn made of Paper, That far off like a Star did appear. This Sidrophel by chance espy'd, And with Amazement staring wide, Bless us, quoth he, What dreadful wonder Is that, appears in Heaven yonder? A Comet, and without a Beard? Or Star, that ne'er before appear'd; I'm certain, 'tis not in the Scrowl, Of all those Beasts, and Fish, and Fowl, With which, like Indian Plantations, The Learned stock the Constellations: Nor those that drawn for Signs have bin, To th' Houses where the Planets Inn. It must be supernatural, Unless it be that Cannon-Ball, That, shot in th' Air, point-blank, upright, Was born to that prodigious height, That learn'd Philosophers maintain, It ne'er came backwards, down agen; But in the Aery Region yet, Hangs like the Body o' Mahomet. For if it be above the Shade, That by the Earths round bulk is made, 'Tis probable, it may, from far, Appear no Bullet but a Star. This said, He to his Engine flew, Plac'd near at hand, in open view, And rais'd it, till it levell'd right, Against the Glow-worm Tail of Kite. Then peeping through, (Bless us quoth he) It is a Planet now I see; And if I err not, by his proper Figure, that's like Tobacco-stopper, It should be Saturn: yes 'tis clear: 'Tis Saturn, But what makes him there?

He's got between the Dragon's Tail. And farther leg behind, o' th' Whale; Pray Heaven, divert the fatal Omen, For 'tis a Prodigy not common, And can no less than the Worlds end, O[r] Natures funeral portend. With that he fell again to pry Through Perspective more wistfully, When by mischance, the fatal string That kept the Tow'ring Fowl on wing, Breaking, down fell the Star: Well shot, Quoth Whachum, who right wisely thought H' had levell'd at a Star, and hit it: But Sidrophel more subtle-witted, Cry'd out, What horrible and fearful, Portent is this, to see a Star fall; It threatens Nature, and the doom Will not be long before it come. When Stars do fall, 'tis plain enough, The Day of 'Judgment's not far off: As lately 'twas reveal'd to Sedgwick, And some of us find out by Magick. Then, since the time we have to live, In this world's shortned, Let us strive, To make our best advantage of it, And pay our losses with our profit.

This feat fell out, not long before The Knight upon the forenam'd score, In quest of Sidrophel advancing, Was now in prospect of the Mansion: Whom he discovering, turn'd his Glass, And found far off, 'twas Hudibras.

Whachum (quoth he) look yonder; some To try, or use our Art, are come: The one's the Learned Knight; seek out, And pump 'em, what they come about. Whachum advanc'd with all submissness, T' accost 'em, but much more, their bus'ness. He held the Stirrup, while the Knight, From Leathern Bare-Bones did alight,

And taking from his hand, the Bridle, Approach'd the dark Squire to unriddle, He gave him first the time o' th' day, And welcom'd him, as he might say: He ask'd them whence they came, and whither Their business lay? Quoth Ralpho, hither; Did you not lose Quoth Ralpho, Nay; Quoth Whachum, Sir, I meant your way, Your Knight ——Quoth Ralpho, is a Lover, And pains intollerable doth suffer, For Lovers hearts are not their own hearts, Nor Lights nor Lungs, and so forth downwards, What time—Quoth Ralpho, Sir too long, Three years it off and on, has hung-Quoth he, I meant what time o' th' day 'tis. Quoth Ralpho, between seven and eight 'tis. Why then (quoth Whachum) my small Art Tells me, the Dame has a hard Heart, Or great Estate-Quoth Ralph, a Joynter, Which makes him have so hot a mind t' her. Mean while the Knight was making water, Before he fell upon the matter; Which having done, the Wizard steps in, To give him [suitable] Reception; But kept his bus'ness at a Bay, Till Whachum put him in the way. Who having now by Ralpho's light, Expounded th' Errand of the Knight, And what he came to know, drew near, To whisper in the Conj'rers ear. Which he prevented thus: What was't Quoth he, that I was saying last, Before these Gentlemen arriv'd? Quoth Whachum, Venus you retriv'd, In opposition with Mars, And no benigne friendly Stars T' allay th' effect. Quoth Wizard, So! In Virgo? Ha! quoth IV hachum, No. Has Saturn nothing to do in't? One tenth of's Circle to a minute.

'Tis well, quoth he——Sir you'll excuse This rudeness, I am forc'd to use, It is a Scheme, and face of Heaven As the Aspects are dispos'd, this Even, I was contemplating upon, When you arriv'd: but now I've done.

Quoth Hudibras, If I appear Unseasonable in coming here At such a time, to interrupt Your Speculations, which I hop'd Assistance from, and come to use, 'Tis fit that I ask your excuse.

By no means, Sir, Quoth Sidrophel, The Stars your coming did foretel: I did expect you here, and know, Before you speak, your bus'ness too.

Quoth Hudibras, Make that appear, And I shall credit whatsoe'er You tell me after, on your word, Howe'er unlikely, or absurd.

You are in Love, Sir, with a Widow, Quoth he, that does not greatly heed you; And [for] three years has rid your Wit And Passion without drawing Bit: And now your bus'ness is, to know If you shall carry her, or no.

Quoth Hudibras, you're in the right, But how the Devil you come by't, I cann't imagine; for the Stars I'm sure, can tell no more than a Horse, Nor can their Aspects (though you pore You[r] Eyes o[u]t on 'em) tell you more Than the Oracle of Sive and Sheers, That turns as certain as the Spheres; But if the Devils of your Counsel, Much may be done, my noble Donzel, And 'tis on this accompt I come, To know from you my fatal Doom.

Quoth Sidrophel, If you suppose, Sir Knight, that I am one of those,

I might suspect, and take the Alarm, Your bus'ness is but to inform, But if it be; 'tis ne'er the near, You have a wrong Sow by the Ear, For I assure you, for my part, I only deal by Rules of Art, Such as are lawful, and judge by Conclusions of Astrology: But for the Devil, know nothing by him, But only this, that I defie him. Quoth he, Whatever others deem ye I understand your Metonymie; Your words of second hand intention, When things by wrongful names you mention; The Mystick sense of all your Terms, That are indeed but Magick Charms, To raise the Devil, and mean one thing, And that is, down-right Conjuring: And in its self more warrantable, Than Cheat, or Canting to a Rabble, Or putting Tricks upon the Moon, Which by confederacy are done. Your Ancient Conjurers were wont To make her from her Sphere dismount, And to their Incantations stoop, They scorn'd to pore through Telescope, Or idly play at bo-peep with her, To find out cloudy, or fair weather, Which ev'ry Almanack can tell, Perhaps, as learnedly, and well, As you your self-Then friend I doubt You go the farthest way about. Your Modern Indian Magician Makes but a hole i' th' Earth to piss in, And streit resolves all Questions by't, And seldom fails to be i'th' right, The Rosy-crucian way's more sure, To bring the Devil to the Lure, Each of 'em has a sev'ral Gin, To catch Intelligences in.

Some by the Nose with fumes trappan 'um, As Dunstan did the Devil's Grannum. Others with Characters and Words, Catch 'em as Men in Nets do Birds. And some with Symbols, Signs, and Tricks, Engrav'd in Planetary Nicks. With their own influences, will fetch 'em, Down from their Orbs, arrest and catch 'em; Make 'em depose, and answer to All Questions, e'er they let them go. Bumbastus, kept a Devil's Bird Shut in the Pummel of his Sword, That taught him all the cunning Pranks, Of past and future Mountebanks. Kelly did all his Feats upon The Devil's Looking-Glass, a Stone, Where playing with him at Bo-peep, He solv'd all Problems ne'er so deep. Agrippa kept a Stygian-Pug, I' th' garb and habit of a Dog, That was his Tutor; and the Curr Read to th' occult Philosopher, And taught him subtly to maintain All other Sciences are vain. To this, quoth Sidrophello, Sir, Agrippa was no Conjurer, Nor Paracelsus, no nor Behman; Nor was the Dog a Cacodæmon, But a true Dog, that would shew tricks For th' Emperor, and leap o'er sticks; Would fetch and carry, was more civil, Than other Dogs, but yet no Devil; And whatsoe'er he's said to do. He went the self-same way we go. As for the Rosie-cross Philosophers, Whom you will have to be but Sorcerers; What they pretend to, is no more, Than Trismegistus did before, Pythagoras, old Zoroaster, And Appollonius their Master;

SECOND PART, CANTO III

To whom they do confess they ow, All that they do, and all they know. Quoth Hudibras, Alas what is't to us, Whether 'twere said by Trismegistus: If it be nonsence, false, or mystick, Or not intelligible, or sophistick. 'Tis not Antiquity, nor Author, That makes truth truth, although time's daughter; 'Twas he that put her in the Pit, Before he pull'd her out of it. And as he eats his Sons, just so He feeds upon his Daughters too. Nor do's it follow, cause a Herald Can make a Gentleman scarce a year old, To be descended of a Race, Of ancient Kings in a small space; That we should all Opinion hold Authentick, that we can make old. Quoth Sidrophel, It is no part Of prudence, to cry down an Art; And what it may perform, deny Because you understand not why. (As Averrhois play'd but [a] mean trick, To damn our whole Art for Excentrick) For who knows all that knowledge contains? Men dwell not on the Tops of Mountains, But on their sides, or rising's seat; So 'tis with knowledge's vast height, Do not the Hist'ries of all Ages Relate miraculous presages, Of strange turns in the World's affairs, Foreseen b' Astrologers, Soothsayers, Chaldeans, Learn'd Genethliacks, And some that have writ Almanacks? The Median Emp'rour dreamt, his Daughter, Had pist all Asia under water, And that a Vine, sprung from her banches, O'erspread his Empire, with its branches; And did not Soothsayers expound it, As after by th' event he found it?

When Casar in the Senate fell, Did not the Sun eclips'd foretel, And in resentment of his slaughter, Look'd pale for almost a year after? Augustus having, b' oversight, Put on his left Shooe, 'fore his right, Had like to have been slain that day, By Soldiers mutining for pay. Are there no myriads of this sort, Which Stories of all times report? Is it not ominous in all Countreys, When Crows and Ravens croak upon Trees? The Roman Senate, when within The City-walls an Owl was seen, Did cause their Clergy with Lustrations, (Our Synod calls Humiliations,) The round-fac'd Prodigy t' avert From doing Town or Country hurt. And if an Owl have so much pow'r, Why should not Planets have much more? That in a Region, far above Inferior fowls o' th' Air, move, And should see farther, and fore-know, More than their Augury below: Though that once serv'd the Polity Of mighty States to govern by; And this is that we take in hand, By pow'rful Art to understand. Which, how we have perform'd, all Ages Can speak th' Events of our presages, Have we not lately in the Moon Found a New World to th' Old unknown? Discover'd Sea and Land, Columbus And Magellan could never compass? Made Mountains, with our Tubes, appear And Cattle grazing on 'em there? Quoth Hudibras, You lie so ope, That I, without a Telescope, Can find your Tricks out, and descry Where you tell truth, and where you lie.

SECOND PART, CANTO III

For Anaxagoras long agon, Saw Hills, as well as you i' th' Moon; And held the Sun was but a piece Of Red-hot-Ir'n as big as Greece; Believ'd the Heavens were made of Stone, Because the Sun had voided one; And rather than he would recant Th' Opinion, suffer'd Banishment. But what, alas, what is't to us, Whether i' th' Moon, men thus, or thus, Do eat their Porridge, cut their Corns, Or whether they have Tails or Horns? What Trade from thence can you advance But what we nearer have from France? What can our Travellers bring home, That is not to be learnt at Rome? What Politicks, or strange Opinions, That are not in our own Dominions? What Science can be brought from thence, In which we do not here Commence? What Revelations, or Religions, That are not in our Native Regions? Are sweating Lanthorns, or Screen-Fans Made better there, than th' are in France? Or do they teach to sing and play O' th' Gittarr there a newer [way]? Can they make Plays there, that shall fit The Publick Humor with less Wit? Write wittier Dances, quainter Shows, Or fight with more ingenious Blows? Or does the Man i'th' Moon look big, And wear a huger Periwig, Shew in his Gate, or Face, more tricks Than our own Native Lunaticks? But if w' out-do him here at home, What good of your design can come? As wind i' th' Hypochondrias pent Is but a blast if downward sent; But if it upwards chance to fly, Becomes new Light and Prophecy:

So when our Speculations tend,
Above their just and useful end,
Although they promise strange and great,
Discoveries of things far fet,
They are but idle Dreams and Fancies,
And savor strongly of the Ganzas,
Tell me but what's the nat'ral cause,
Why on a Sign, no Painter draws
The Full-Moon ever, but the Half,
Resolve that with your Jacobs-staff;
Or why wolves raise a Hubbub at her,
And Dogs howl when she shines in water;
And I shall freely give my Vote,
You may know something more remote.

At this deep Sidrophel look'd wise, And staring round with Owl-like Eies, He put his face into a posture Of Sapience, and began to bluster; For having three times shook his head To stir his wit up, thus he said.

Art has no mortal enemies Next Ignorance, but Owls and Geese; Those Consecrated Geese in Orders, That to the Capitol were Warders: And being then upon Petrol With noise alone beat off the Gaul. Or those Athenian Sceptick Owls, That will not credit their own Souls; Or any Science understand, Beyond the reach of Eye, or Hand: But meas'ring all things by their own Knowledge, hold, Nothing's to be known. Those whole-sale Criticks, that in Coffee-Houses, cry down all Philosophy. And will not know, upon what ground In Nature, we our doctrine found; Although with pregnant evidence, We can demonstrate it to sence. As I just now have done to you, Fortelling what you came to know.

SECOND PART, CANTO III

Were the Stars only made to light Robbers and Burglarers by night? To wait on Drunkards, Thieves, Gold-finders, And Lovers solacing behind Dores? Or giving one another Pledges Of Matrimony under Hedges? Or Witches Simpling, and on Gibbets Cutting from Malefactors snippets? Or from the Pillory tips of Ears Of Rebel-Saints, and Perjurers? Only to stand by and look on, But not know what is said or done? Is there a Constellation there, That was not born and bred up here? And th[ere]fore cannot be to learn, In any inferior Concern. Were they not, during all their lives, Most of 'em Pirats, Whores, and Thieves? And is it like they have not still In their old Pra&tises some skill? Is there a Planet that by Birth Does not derive its House from Earth? And therefore probably must know What is, and hath been done below? Who made the Ballance, or whence came The Bull, the Lion, and the Ram? Did not we here, the Argo rigg Make Berenice's Periwig? Whose Liv'ry does the Coachman wear? Or who made Cassiopæa's Chair? And therefore as they came from hence, With us may hold Intelligence. Plato deny'd, The World can be Govern'd without Geometry, (For Mony b'ing the common Scale Of things by measure, weight, and tale; In all th' affairs of Church and State, 'Tis both the Ballance and the Weight:) Then much less can it be without Divine Astrology made out,

That puts the other down in worth, As far as Heaven's above Earth. These reasons (quoth the Knight) I grant Are something more significant Than any that the Learned use, Upon this subject to produce; And yet, th' are far from satisfactory T' establish and keep up your Factory. The Egyptians say, The Sun has twice Shifted his setting and his rise; Twice has he risen in the West, As many times set in the East; But whether that be true, or no, The Devil any of you know. Some hold, the Heavens, like a Top, Are kept by Circulation up; And 'twere not for their wheeling round, They'd instantly fall to the ground: As sage Empedocles of old, And from him Modern Authors [hold]. Plato believ'd the Sun and Moon, Below all other Planets run. Some Mercury, some Venus seat Above the Sun himself in height. The learned Scaliger complain'd 'Gainst what Copernicus maintain'd, That in Twelve hundred years, and odd, The Sun had left his antient Road. And nearer to the Earth, is come 'Bove Fifty thousand miles from home: Swore 'twas a most notorious Flam, And he that had so little Shame To vent such Fopperies abroad, Deserv'd to have his Rump well claw'd; Which Monsieur Bodin hearing, swore That he deserv'd the Rod much more, That durst upon a truth give doom, He knew less than the Pope of Rome. Cardan believ'd, Great States depend Upon the tip o' th' Bears Tails end;

SECOND PART, CANTO III

That as she whisk'd it t'wards the Sun, Strow'd Mighty Empires up and down; Which others say must needs be false, Because your true Bears have no Tails. Some say, the Zodiack-Constellations Have long since chang'd their antique Stations Above a Sign; and prove the same, In Taurus now, once in the Ram; Affirm the Trigons chop'd and chang'd, The Watry with the Fiery rang'd; Then how can their effects still hold To be the same they were of old. This, though the Art were true, would make Our Modern Soothsayers mistake; And is one cause they tell more lies, In Figures and Nativities, Than th' old Chaldean Conjurers, In so many hundred thousand years; Beside their Nonsense in translating, For want of Accidence and Latine. Like Idus and Calendæ Englisht The Quarter-days, by skilful Linguist, And yet with Canting, Slight, and Cheat 'Twill serve their turn to do the feat; Make Fools believe in their fore-seeing Of things before they are in Being; To swallow Gudgeons ere th' are catch'd, And count their Chickens ere th' are hatch'd, Make them the Constellations prompt, And give 'em back their own accompt: But still the best to him that gives The best price for't, or best believes. Some Towns and Cities, some, for brevity, Have cast the Versal World's Nativity; And made the Infant-Stars confess, Like Fools or Children, what they please: Some calculate the hidden fates Of Monkeys, Puppy-Dogs, and Cats, Some Running-Nags, and Fighting-Cocks; Some Love, Trade, Law-Suits, and the Pox;

Some take a measure of the lives Of Fathers, Mothers, Husbands, Wives, Make Opposition, Trine, and Quartile; Tell who is barren, and who fertile, As if the Planet's first aspect The tender Infant did infect In Soul and Body, and instill All future good, and future ill: Which, in their dark fatalities lurking, At destin'd Periods fall a working; And break out like the hidden seeds Of long diseases into deeds, In Friendships, Enmities, and strife, And all th' emergencies of Life: No sooner does he peep into, The World, but he has done his do, Catch'd all Diseases, took all Physick, That cures, or kills a man that is sick; Marry'd his punctual dose of Wives, Is Cuckolded, and Breaks, or Thrives. There's but [the] twinkling of a Star Between a Man of Peace and War, A Thief and Justice, Fool and Knave, A huffing Offi[c]er and a Slave, A crafty Lawyer and Pick-pocket, A great Philosopher and a Blockhead, A formal Preacher and a Player, A learn'd Physitian and Man-slayer. As if Men from the Stars did suck Old-age, Diseases, and ill-luck, Wit, Folly, Honor, Virtue, Vice, Trade, Travel, Women, Claps, and Dice; And draw with the first Air they breath, Battel, and Murther, sudden Death. Are not these fine Commodities, To be imported from the Skies? And vended here among the Rable, For staple Goods, and warrantable? Like Mony by the Druids borrow'd, I' th' other World to be restor'd.

SECOND PART, CANTO III

Quoth Sidrophel, To let you know You wrong the Art and Artists too: Since Arguments are lost on those That do our Principles oppose; I will (although I've don't before) Demonstrate to your sense once more, And draw a Figure that shall tell you What you perhaps forget, befel you; By way of Horary inspection, Which some accompt our worst erection. With that, He Circles draws, and Squares With Cyphers, Astral Characters; Then looks 'em o'er, to understand 'em, Although set down Hab-nab, at random. Quoth he, This Scheme o' th' Heavens set Discovers how in fight you met At Kingston with a Maypole Idol, And that y' were bang'd both back and side well: And though you overcame the Bear, The Dogs beat you at Brentford Fair; Where sturdy Butchers broke your Noddle, And handl'd you like a Fop-doodle. Quoth Hudibras, I now perceive You are no Conj'rer, b' your leave, That Paultry story is untrue, And forg'd to cheat such Gulls as you. Not true? quoth he, How e'er you vapor, I can, what I affirm, make appear; Whachum shall justifie 't [t'] your face, And prove he was upon the place: He play'd the Saltinbanco's part, Transform'd t' a Frenchman by my Art, He stole your Cloak, and pick'd your Pocket, Chews'd, and Caldes'd ye like a Block-head: And what you lost I can produce If you deny it, here i' th' house. Quoth Hudibras, I do believe, That Argument's Demonstrative; Ralpho, bear witness, and go fetch us A Constable to seize the Wretches:

For though th' are both false Knaves and Cheats, Impostors, Juglers, Counterfets, I'll make them serve for perpendiculars, As true, as e'er were us'd by Brick-layers; They 're guilty by their own Confessions, Of Felony; and at the Sessions Upon the Bench I will so handle 'em, That the Vibration of this Pendulum Shall make all Taylors Yards, of one Unanimous opinion: A thing he long has vapour'd of, But now shall make it out by proof. Quoth Sidrophel, I do not doubt, To find friends, that will bear me out: Nor have I hazarded my Art, And Neck, so long on the States part, To be expos'd i' th' end to suffer, By [such] a Braghadochio Huffer. Huffer, quoth Hudibras, This Sword Shall down thy false throat, Crain that word, Ralpho, make haste, and call an Officer, To apprehend this Stygian Sophister; Mean while I'll hold 'em at a Bay. Lest he and Whachum run away. But Sidrophel, who from th' Aspect Of Hudibras, did now erect, A Figure worse portending far, Than that of most malignant Star: Believ'd it now the fittest moment, To shun the danger that might come on't, While Hudibras was all alone, And he and Whachum, two to one; This being resolv'd, He spy'd by chance, Behind the Dore, an Iron Lance, That many a sturdy Limb had gor'd, And Legs, and Loyns, and Shoulders bord. He snatch'd it up, and made a Pass, To make his way through Hudibras. Whachum had a Fire-Fork, With which he yow'd to do his Work.

SECOND PART, CANTO III

But Hudibras was well prepar'd, And stoutly stood upon his Guard. He put by Sidrophello's thrust, And in, right manfully, he rusht, The weapon from his gripe he wrung, And laid him on the earth along. Whachum his Seacole-Prong threw by, And basely turn'd his back to fly. But Hudib[r] as gave him a twitch As quick as Lightning in the Breech. Just in the place, where Honor's lodg'd, As wise Philosophers have judg'd; Because a kick in that part more Hurts Honor, than deep wounds before. Quoth Hudibras, the Stars determine You are my Prisoners, base Vermine. Could they not tell you so, as well As what I came to know, foretel? By this, what Cheats you are, we find, That in your own Concerns are blind: Your Lives are now at my dispose, To be redeem'd by fine or blows: But who his Honor would defile. To take, or sell two lives so vile; I'll give you Quarter, but your Pillage, The Conqu'ring Warrier's Crop and Tillage, Which with his Sword he reaps, and plows; That mine, the Law of Arms allows. This said [in haste], in haste he fell To romaging of Sidrophel. First, He expounded both his Pockets, And found a Watch, with Rings and Lockets, Which had been left with him, t' erect A Figure for, and so detect. A Copper-Plate, with Almanacks Engrav'd upon't, with other knacks, Of Booker's, Lillie's, Sarah Jimmers, And Blank-Schemes to discover Nimmers; A Moon-Dial, with Napier's bones, And several Constellation-stones,

M 2 179

Engrav'd in Planetary hours, That over Mortals had strange powers To make 'em thrive in Law, or Trade; And stab, or poyson, to evade; In Wit, or Wisdom to improve, And be victorious in Love. Whachum had neither Cross nor Pile, His Plunder was not worth the while; All which the Conqu'ror did discompt, To pay for curing of his Rump. But Sidrophel, as full of tricks, As Rota-men of Politicks, Streight cast about to over-reach Th' unwary Conqu'ror with a fetch, And make him glad, (at least) to quit His Victory, and fly the Pit, Before the Secular Prince of Darkness Arriv'd to seize upon his Carkass. And, as a Fox, with hot pursuit, Chac'd through a Warren, cast about To save his credit, and among Dead Vermin on a Gallows hung; And while the Dogs ran underneath, Escap'd (by counterfeiting Death) Not out of Cunning, but a Train Of Atoms justling in his Brain, As learn'd Philosophers give out: So Sidrophello cast about, And fell to's wonted Trade again, To feign himself in earnest slain, First, stretch'd out one leg, then another, And seeming in his Breast to smother, A broken Sigh; Quoth he, Where am I, Alive, or Dead? Or which way came I Through so immense a space so soon? But now, I thought my self i' th' Moon; And that a Monster with huge Whiskers, More formidable than a Switzers, My body through and through had dril'd, And Whachum by my side, had kill'd,

SECOND PART, CANTO III

Had cross-examin'd both our Hose, And plunder'd all we had to lose; Look there he is, I see him now, And feel the place I am run through. And there lies Whachum by my side, Stone-dead, and in his own blood dy'd. Oh! Oh! with that he fetch'd a Grone, And fell again into a swoun. Shut both his Eies, and stopt his Breath, And, to the Life, out-acted Death. That Hudibras, to all appearing, Believ'd him to be dead as Herring. He held it now no longer safe, To tarry the return of Ralph; But rather leave him in the Lurch; Thought he, he has abus'd our Church, Refus'd to give himself one firk, To carry on the Publick work. Despis'd our Synod-men like Durt. And made their Discipline his sport; Divulg'd the secrets of their Classes, And their Conventions prov'd High Places; Disparag'd their Tith-Pigs, as Pagan, And set at nought their Cheese and Bacon; Rail'd at their Covenant, and jear'd Their rev'rend Parsons to my Beard, For all which Scandals to be quit, At once, this Juncture falls out fit. I'll make him henceforth, to beware, And tempt my fury, if he dare: He must (at least) hold up his hand, By twelve Free-holders to be scan'd, Who by their skill in Palmistry, Will quickly read his Destiny; And make him glad to read his Lesson, Or take a turn for't at the Session: Unless his Light and Gifts prove truer, Than ever yet they did, I'm sure; For if he scape with Whipping now, 'Tis more than he can hope to do,

And that will disingage my Conscience, Of th' Obligation, in his own sense. I'll make him now by force abide, What he by gentle means deny'd, To give my Honor satisfaction, And right the Brethren in the Action. This being resolv'd with equal speed, And Conduct, he approach'd his Steed; And with Activity unwont, Essay'd the lofty Beast to mount; Which once atchiev'd, he spurr'd his Palfry, To get from th' Enemy, and Ralph, free; Left Danger, Fears, and Foes behind, And beat, at least three lengths, the Wind.

AN HEROICAL EPISTLE

O F

HUDIBRAS

ТО

SIDROPHEL.

Ecce iterum Crispinus—

Without Trepanning of your Scull, As often as the Moon's at Full:
'Tis not amiss, ere y' are giv'n o'er, To try one desp'rate Med'cine more:
For where your Case can be no worse, The desp'rat'st is the wisest course. Is't possible, that you, whose Ears Are of the Tribe of Issachars, And might (with equal Reason) either For Merit, or extent of Leather, With William Pryn's, before they were Retrench'd, and Crucifi'd compare,

Should yet be deaf against a noise So roaring as the Publick Voice? That speaks your virtues free and loud, And openly in ev'ry croud, As loud as one that sings his part T' a Wheel-barrow or Turnip Cart,-Or your new Nicknam'd old Invention, To cry Green Hastings with an Engine. (As if the vehemence had stun'd, And torn your Drum-heads with the sound) And 'cause your Folly's now no news, But over-grown and out of use. Persuade your self there's no such matter, But that 'tis vanish'd out of Nature, When Folly, as it grows in years, The more extravagant appears. For who but you could be possest With so much Ignorance, and Beast, That neither all mens Scorn, and Hate, Nor being Laugh'd and Pointed at, Nor bray'd so often in a Morter, Can teach you wholesome Sense, and Nurture? But (like a Reprobate) what course S'ever's us'd, grow worse and worse? Can no Transfusion of the Blood, That makes Fools Cattle, do you good? Nor putting Pigs t' a Bitch to Nurse, To turn 'em into Mungrel-Curs, Put you into a way, at least, To make your self a better Beast? Can all your critical Intrigues Of trying sound from rotten Eggs; Your several Newfound Remedies, Of curing Wounds, and Scabs in Trees; Your Arts of Fluxing them from Claps, And Purging their infected Saps, Recoviring Shankers, Chrystallines, And Nodes and Botches in their Rindes, Have no effect to operate Upon that duller Block, your Pate,

AN HEROICAL EPISTLE

But still it must be lewdly bent To tempt your own due Punishment——? And like your whimsey'd Chariots draw The Boys to course you without Law? As if the Art you have so long Profest, of making old Dogs young, In you had Virtue to renew Not only Youth, but Childhood too. Can you, that understand all Books By Judging only with your Looks, Resolve all Problems with your Face, As others do with B's, and A's, Unriddle all that Mankind knows With solid bending of your Brows, All Arts and Sciences advance, With screwing of your Countenance, And with a penetrating Eye, Into th' abstrusest Learning pry, Know more of any Trade b' a hint, Than those that have been bred up in't, And yet have no Art true, or false To help your own bad Naturals? But still the more you strive t' appear, Are found to be the wretcheder. For Fools are known by looking wise, As Men find Woodcocks by their Eies. Hence 'tis, that 'cause y' have gain'd o'th' Colledge, A Quarter-share (at most) of Knowledge, And brought in none, but spent Repute, Y' assume a Pow'r as absolute To Judge and Censure, and Controll, As if you were the sole Sir Poll And saucily pretend to know More than your Dividend comes to, You'll find the thing will not be done, With Ignorance, and Face alone: No though y' have purchas'd to your Name, In History so great a Fame, That now your Talent's so well known, For having all Belief outgrown;

That ev'ry strange Prodigious Tale Is measur'd by your German Scale,— By which the Virtuosi try The Magnitude of ev'ry Ly, Cast up to what it does amount: And place the big'st to your account. That all those stories that are lai'd Too truely to you, and those made. Are now still charg'd upon your score, And lesser Authors nam'd no more. Alas that Faculty destroys Those soonest, it designs to raise. And all your vain Renown will spoil, As Guns o're-charg'd the more recoyl. Though he that has but Impudence To all things has a fair Pretence And put among his wants, but shame, To all the world may lay his claim: Though you have try'd that nothing's born With greater ease than Publique Scorn; That all affronts do still give Place To your Impenetrable Face; That makes your way through all affairs, As Pigs through Hedges creep with theirs. Yet as 'tis Counterfeit and Brass You must not think 'twill always pass For all Impostors, when they'r known, Are past their Labor, and undone. And all the best that can befall An Artificial Natural, Is that which Madmen find, as soon As once th' are broke loose from the Moon And proof against her Influence, Relapse to ere so little Sense To turn stark Fools, and Subjects fit For sport of Boys, and Rabble-wit.

Annotations

TO THE SECOND PART.

But now t' observe, &c.

The beginning of this Second Part may perhaps seem strange and abrupt to those who do not know, that it was written of purpose, in imitation of Virgil, who begins the IV Book of his Eneides* in the very same manner, At Regina gravi, Or. And this is enough to satisfie the curiosity of those who believe that Invention and Fancy ought to be measur'd (like Cases in Law) by Precedents, or else they are in the power of the Critick.

A Saxon Duke did grow so fat.

This History of the Duke of Saxony, is not altogether so strange as that of a Bishop his Country-man, who was quite eaten up with Rats, and Mice.

King Pyrrhus cur'd his Splenetick, And testy Courtiers with a kick.

Pyrrhus King of Epirus, who as Pliny says, had this occult Quality in his Toe, Pollicis in dextro Pede tactu Lienosis medebatur. L. 7. C. 11.

In close Catasta shut, &c.

Catasta is but a pair of Stocks in English, But Heroical Poetry must not admit of any vulgar word (especially of paultry signification) and therefore some of our Modern Authors are fain to import forrain words from abroad, that were never before heard of in our Language.

'Twas he that made St. Francis do, &c.

The antient Writers of the Lives of Saints, were of the same sort of People, who first writ of Knight-Errantry, and as in the one, they rendred the brave Actions of some very great Persons ridiculous, by their prodigious Lies, and sottish way of describing them: So they have abus'd the Piety of some very devout Persons, by imposing such stories upon them, as this upon St. Francis.

This made the beautious Queen of Crete.

The History of Pasiphaë is common enough, only this may be observ'd, That though she brought the Bull a Son and Heir; yet the Husband was fain to father it, as appears by the Name, perhaps because the Countrey being an Island, he was within the four Seas, when the Infant was begotten.

As your own Secretary Albertus.

Albertus Magnus was a Sweedish Bishop, who wrote a very Learned Work, De Secretis Mulierum.

Unless it be to squint and laugh.

Pliny in his Natural History affirms that Uni animalium homini oculi depravantur, unde Cognomina Strabonum & Pætorum. Lib. 2.

As Fryer Bacon's Noddle was.

The Tradition of Frier Bacon and the Brazen-Head, is very commonly known, and considering the times he liv'd in, is not much more strange then what another great Philosopher of his Name, has since deliver'd up of a Ring, that being ty'd in a string, and held like a Pendulum in the middle of a Silver Bowl, will vibrate of it self, and tell exactly against the sides of the Divining Cup, the same thing with, Time is, Time was, Occ.

Or like some Indians Sculls so tough, That Authors say th'are Musket proof.

Amer[ic]an Indians, among whom (the same Authors affirm) that there are others, whose Sculls are so soft, to use their own words, Ut Digito perforari possunt.

Or Oracle from Heart of Oak.

Jupiters Oracle in Epirus, near the City of Dodona. Ubi Nemus erat Jovi sacrum, Querneum totum in quo Jovis Dodonæi Templum fuisse narratur.

Semiramis of Babylon.

Semiramis, Queen of Assyria, is said to be the first that invented Eunuchs. Semiramis teneros mares castravit omnium Prima. Am. Marcel. L. 14. p. 22. Which is something strange in a Lady of her Constitution, who is said to have receiv'd Horses into her embraces (as another Queen did a Bull) But that perhaps may be the reason, why she after thought Men not worth the while.

For some Philosophers of late here.

S. K. D. in his Book of Bodies; who has this story of the German-Boy, which he endeavours to make good by several Natural Reasons; By which those who have the Dexterity to believe what they please, may be fully satisfied of the probability of it.

That Bonum is an Animal.

Bonum is such a kind of Animal, as our Modern Virtuosi, from Don Quixot, will have Windmils under sail to be. The same Authors are of opinion, That all Ships are Fishes while they are afloat, but when they are run on ground, or laid up in the Dock, become Ships again.

Has not this present Parliament, A Ledger to the Devil sent?

The Witchfinder in Suffolk, who in the Presbyterian times had a Commission to discover Witches, of whom (right or wrong) he caus'd 60 to be hang'd within the compass of one year, and among the rest an old Minister, who had been a painful Preacher for many years.

Did he not help the Dutch to purge, At Antwerp their Cathedral Church?

In the beginning of the Civil Wars of Flanders, the common people of Antwerp, in a tunult, broke open the Cathedral Church, to demolish Images and Shrines: and did so much mischief in a small time, that Strada writes, There were several Devils seen very busic among them, otherwise it had been impossible.

Sing Catches to the Saints at Mascon.

This Devil of Mascon deliver'd all his Oracles, like his Forefathers, in Verse, which he sung to Tunes: He made several Lampoons upon the Hugonots, and foretold them many things, which afterwards came to pass; as may be seen in his Memoires, written in French.

Appear in divers shapes to Kelly, And speak i'th' Nun at Loudon's Belly.

The History of Dr. Dee and the Devil, published by Mer. Causabon, Isae. Fil. Prebend of Canterbury, has a large accompt of all those Passages; in which the stile of the true and false Angels appears to be penn'd by one and the same person. The Nun of Loudon in France, and all her tricks have been seen by many Persons of Quality of this Nation, yet living, who have made very good observations upon the French Book written upon that occasion.

Meet with the Parliaments Committee At Woodstock on a Pers'nal Treaty:

A Committee of the long Parliament sitting in the Kings House in Woodstock-Park, were terrify'd with several Apparitions, the particulars whereof were then the News of the whole Nation.

At Sarum took a Cavalier.

Withers has a long story in Doggerel, of a Soldier of the Kings Army, who being a Prisoner at Salisbury, and drinking a health to the Devil upon his knees, was carried away by him through a single pane of Glass.

ANNOTATIONS TO THE SECOND PART

Since old Hodg-Bacon,

Roger Bacon, commonly called Frier Bacon, liv'd in the Reign of our Edward the I. and for some little skill he had in the Mathematicks, was, by the Rabble, accounted a Conjurer, and had the sottish story of the Brazen Head father'd upon him, by the ignorant Monks of those days. Robert Grosthead was Bishop of Lincoln in the Reign of Hen. III. He was a Learned Man for those times, and for that reason suspected by the Clergy to be a Conjurer, for which crime being degraded by Pope Innocent the IV. and summon'd to app[e]ar at Rome, he appeal'd to the Tribunal of Christ; which our Lawyers say is illegal, if not a Præmunire, for offering to sue in a Forraign Court.

This Fisk was a late famous Astrologer, who flourish'd about the time of Subtle and Face, and was equally celebrated by Ben. Johnson.

Unless it be that Cannon-ball.

This experiment was try'd by some Forreign Virtuoso's, who planted a Piece of Ordnance point-blanc against the Zenith, and having fir'd it, the Bullet never rebounded back again, which made them all conclude, that it sticks in the mark; but Des Gartes was of opinion, That it does but hang in the Air.

As lately was reveal'd to Sedgwyck.

Bumbastus kept a Devils Bird, &c.

Paracelsus is said to have kept a small Devil pris'ner in the Pummel of his Sword, which was the reason, perhaps, why he was so valiant in his Drink; Howsoever it was to better purpose than Annibal carry'd poyson in his, to dispatch himself, if he should happen to be surpriz'd in any great extremity, for the Sword would have done the Feat alone, much better, and more Soldier-like. And it was below the Honor of so great a Commander, to go out of the World like a Rat.

Agrippa kept a Stygian Pug.

Cornelius Agrippa had a Dog, that was suspected to be a Spirit, for some tricks he was wont to do, beyond the capacity of a Dog, as it was thought; but the Author of Magia Adamica has taken a great deal of pains to vindicate both the Doctor and the Dog, from that aspersion, in which he has shown a very great respect and kindness for them both.

That the vibration of this Pendulum, Shall make all Taylors Yards, of one Unanimous opinion.

The device of the Vibration of a Pendulum, was intended to settle a certain Measure of Ells and Yards, &c. (that should have its foundation in Nature) all the world over: For by swinging a weight at the end of a string, and calculating (by the motion of the Sun, or any Star) how long the Vibration would last, in proportion to the length of the String, and weight of the Pendulum; they thought to reduce it back again, and from any part of time, compute the exact length of any string, that must necessarily vibrate in so much space of time: So that if a man should ask in China for a Quarter of an Hour of Satin or Taffeta, they would know perfectly what it meant. And all Mankind learn a new way to measure things no more by the Yard, Foot, or Inch, but by the Hour, Quarter, and Minute.

The Third and Last Part.

The ARGUMENT of the FIRST CANTO of the Third Part.

The Knight and Squire resolve at once,
The one the other to renounce.
They both approach the Ladie's Bower,
The Squire t' inform, the Knight to wooe her.
She treats them with a Masquerade,
By Furies and Hobgoblins made:
From which the Squire conveys the Knight,
And steals him, from himself, by Night.

CANTOI.

'TIS true, no Lover has that Pow'r T' enforce a desperate Amour, As he that has two Strings to's Bow, And burns for Love and Money too: For then he's Brave and Resolute, Disdains to render in his Suit, H'as all his Flames and Raptures double, And hangs or drowns with half the trouble.

While those who sillily pursue The simple downright way and true, Make as unlucky Applications, And steer against the Stream their passions. Some forge their Mistresses of Stars: And when the Ladies prove averse, And more untoward to be won, Then by Caligula the Moon, Cry out upon the Stars for doing Ill Offices, to cross their wooing; When onely by themselves they're hindred, For trusting those they made her kindred: And still the harsher and hide-bounder The Damsels prove, become the fonder. For what mad Lover ever dy'd, To gain a soft and gentle Bride? Or for a Lady tender-hearted, In purling Streams or Hemp departed? Leap'd headlong int' Elizium, Through th' Windows of a dazling Room? But for some cross ill-natur'd Dame, The am'rous Fly burnt in his flame. This to the Knight could be no News, With all Mankind so much in use; Who therefore took the wiser course, To make the most of his Amours, Resolv'd to try all sorts of ways, As follows in due Time and Place.

No sooner was the bloody Fight
Between the Wizard and the Knight
With all th' Appurtenances over,
But he relaps'd again t' a Lover:
As he was always wont to doe
When h' had discomfited a Foe,
And us'd the onely Antick Philters
Deriv'd from old Heroick Tilters.
But now Triumphant and Victorious,
He held th' Atchievement was too glorious
For such a Conquerour, to meddle

THIRD PART, CANTO I

With Petty Constable, or Beadle; Or fly for Refuge to the Hostess Of th' Inns of Court and Chanc'ry, Justice: Who might, perhaps, reduce his Cause To th' Ordeal Tryal of the Laws; Where none escape, but such as branded With red-hot Irons have past Bare-handed; And if they cannot reade one Verse I' th' Psalms, must sing it, and that's worse. He therefore, judging it below him, To tempt a shame the Devil might owe him, Resolv'd to leave the Squire for Bail And Mainprize for him, to the Gaol, To answer, with his Vessel, all That might disastrously befall. He thought it now the fittest juncture, To give the Lady a Rencounter; T' acquaint her with his Expedition, And Conquest o're the fierce Magician; Describe the manner of the Fray, And shew the spoils he brought away; His bloody Scourging aggravate, The Number of the Blows and Weight: All which might probably succeed, And gain belief h'had done the deed. Which he resolv'd t' enforce, and spare No pawning of his Soul, to swear; But, rather then produce his Back, To set his Conscience on the Rack: And, in pursuance of his urging Of Articles perform'd, and scourging, And all things else upon his part, Demand delivery of her Heart, Her Goods, and Chattels, and good Graces, And Person, up to his embraces. Thought he, the ancient Errant Knights Wone all their Ladies Hearts in Fights, And cut whole Giants into fitters, To put them into amorous twitters; Whose stubborn Bowels scorn'd to yield

Until their Gallants were half kill'd:
But when their Bones were drubb'd so sore
They durst not wooe one Combat more,
The Ladies Hearts began to melt,
Subdu'd with Blows their Lovers felt.
So Spanish Heroes with their Lances
At once wound Bulls and Ladies fancies:
And he acquires the noblest Spouse
That Widow's greatest Herds of Cows.
Then what may I expect to doe,
Wh' have quell'd so vast a Buffalo?

Mean while the Squire was on his way, The Knight's late Orders to obey; Who sent him for a strong Detachment Of Beadles, Constables and Watchmen, T' attack the Cunning-man for Plunder Committed falsely on his Lumber, When he, who had so lately sack'd The Enemy, had done the Fact, Had rifled all his Pokes and Fobs Of Gimeracks, Whims and Figgumbobs, Which he by hook or crook had gather'd, And for his own Inventions father'd: And when they should, at Gaol-delivery, Unriddle one another's Thievery, Both might have evidence enough To render neither halter-proof. He thought it desperate to tarry, And venture to be Accessary: But rather wisely slip his Fetters, And leave them for the Knight, his Betters. He call'd to mind th' unjust foul play He would have offer'd him that day, To make him curry his own Hide, Which no Beast ever did beside, Without all possible evasion, But of the Riding Dispensation. And therefore much about the hour, The Knight (for reasons told before)

THIRD PART, CANTO I

Resolv'd to leave him to the Fury Of Justice and an unpack'd Jury. The Squire concurr'd t' abandon him, And serve him in the self-same Trim; T' acquaint the Lady what h'had done, And what he meant to carry on; What Project 'twas he went about, When Sidrophel and he fell out; His firm and stedfast Resolution, To swear her to an Execution; To pawn his inward Ears, to marry her, And Bribe the Devil himself to carry her. In which both dealt, as if they meant Their Party Saints to represent, Who never fail'd, upon their sharing In any Prosperous Arms-Bearing, To lay themselves out, to supplant Each other Cosin-German Saint. But e'r the Knight could doe his Part, The Squire had got so much the Start, H'had to the Lady done his Errand, And told her all his Tricks afore-hand. Just as he finish'd his Report, The Knight alighted in the Court; And having ty'd his Beast t' a Pale, And taken time for both to stale, He put his Band and Beard in order, The Sprucer to accost and board her; And now began t' approach the Door: When she, wh' had spy'd him out before, Convey'd th' Informer out of sight, And went to entertain the Knight. With whom encountring after Longees Of humble and submissive Congects, And all due Ceremonies paid, He stroak'd his Beard, and thus he said: Madam, I do, as is my Duty, Honour the Shadow of your Shoe-tye: And now am come, to bring your Ear A Present you'l be glad to hear;

At least I hope so. The thing's done, Or may I never see the Sun; For which I humbly now demand Performance at your gentle Hand: And that you'ld please to doe your part, As I have done mine to my smart. With that he shrugg'd his sturdy Back, As if he felt his Shoulders ake. But she, who well enough knew what (Before he spoke) he would be at, Pretended not to apprehend The Mystery of what he mean'd: And therefore wish'd him to expound His dark expressions less profound. Madam, quoth he, I come to prove How much I've suffer'd for your Love, Which (like your Votary) to win, I have not spar'd my tatter'd skin: And, for those meritorious Lashes, To claim your favour and good Graces. Quoth she, I do remember once I freed you from th' inchanted Sconce; And that you promis'd, for that favour, To bind your Back to th' good Behaviour, And for my Sake and Service vow'd To lay upon't a heavy Load, And what 'twould bear t' a scruple prove, As other Knights do oft make love. Which whether you have done or no, Concerns your self, not me, to know. But if you have, I shall confess, Y' are honester then I could guess. Quoth he, If you suspect my troth, I cannot prove it but by Oath; And, if you make a question on't, I'll pawn my Soul, that I have don't. And he that makes his Soul his Surety, I think, does give the best security. Quoth she, Some say, the Soul's secure Against Distress and Forfeiture;

THIRD PART, CANTO I

Is free from Action, and exempt From Execution and Contempt; And to be summon'd to appear In th' other world, 's illegal here: And therefore few make any account, Int' what incumbrances they run't. For most Men carry things so even Between this World, and Hell and Heaven, Without the least offence to either, They freely deal in all together; And equally abbor to quit This World for both, or both for it. And when they pawn and damn their Souls, They are but Pris'ners on Parols. For that, quoth he, 'tis rational, They may be accomptable in all. For when there is that intercourse Between Divine and Humane Pow'rs, That all that we determine here Commands Obedience every where; When Penalties may be commuted For Fines, or Ears, and Executed; It follows, nothing binds so fast As Souls in Pawn and Mortgage past. For Oaths are th' onely Tests and Scales Of Right and Wrong, and True and False: And there's no other way to try The Doubts of Law and Justice by. Quoth she, What is it you would Swear? There's no believing till I hear: For till th' are understood, all Tales (Like Nonsense) are not True, nor False. Quoth he, When I resolv'd t' obey What you commanded th' other day, And to perform my Exercise. (As Schools are wont) for your fair eyes; T' avoid all Scruples in the Case, I went to doe't upon the Place. But as the Castle is inchanted By Sidrophel the Witch, and haunted

With evil Spirits, as you know, Who took my Squire and me for two; Before I'd hardly time to lay My weapons by, and disarray, I heard a Formidable Noise Loud as the Stentrophonick Voice, That Roar'd far off, Dispatch and Strip, I'm ready with the Infernal Whip, That shall devest thy Ribs of Skin, To expiate thy lingring Sin. Th' hast broke perfidiously thy Oath, And not perform'd thy plighted Troth; But spar'd thy Renegado Back, Where th' hadst so great a Prize at Stake: Which now the Fates have order'd me For Penance and Revenge to Flay, Unless thou presently make baste. Time is, Time was: and there it ceas'd. With which though startled, I confess, Yet th' Horrour of the thing was less Then th' other Dismal apprehension Of Interruption or Prevention. And therefore snatching up the Rod, I laid upon my Back a load; Resolv'd to spare no Flesh and Bloud, To make my Word and Honour good. Till tir'd, and taking Truce at length, For new Recruits of Breath and Strength, I felt the Blows still ply'd as fast, As if th' had been by Lovers plac'd In Raptures of Platonick Lashing, And chast Contemplative Bardashing. When facing bastily about, To stand upon my Guard and Scout, I found th' Infernal Cunning-man, And th' Under-witch, his Caliban, With Scourges (like the Furies) arm'd, That on my outward Quarters storm'd. In hast I snatch'd my weapon up, And gave their Hellish Rage a stop;

Call'd thrice upon your Name, and fell Courageously on Sidrophel: Who now transform'd himself t' a Bear, Began to roar aloud and tear; When I as furiously prest on, My weapon down his Throat to run, Laid hold on him: but he broke loose, And turn'd himself into a Goose, Div'd under Water, in a Pond, To bide himself from being found. In vain I sought him, but as soon As I perceiv'd him fled and gone, Prepar'd with equal Haste and Rage, His Under-Sorcerer t' ingage. But bravely Scorning to defile My Sword with feeble bloud and vile; I judg'd it better from a Quick-Set-Hedge to cut a knotted Stick, With which I furiously laid on; Till in a harsh and dolefull tone It roar'd, Oh hold for pity, Sir, I am too great a Sufferer, Abus'd, as you have been, b' a Witch, But conjur'd int' a worse Caprich: Who sends me out on many a Jaunt, Old Houses in the Night to haunt, For opportunities t' improve Designs of Thievery or Love; With Drugs convey'd in Drink or Meat, All Feats of Witches counterfeit; Kill Pigs and Geese with poudred Glass, And make it for Inchantments pass; With Cow-itch meazle like a Leper, And choak with Fumes of Guiny-Pepper; Make Leachers and their Punks with Dewtry Commit phantastical Advorutry; Bewitch Hermetick-men to run Stark staring mad with Manicon; Believe Mechanick Virtuosi Can raise 'em Mountains in Potosi;

And sillier then the Antick Fools, Take Treasure for a Heap of Coals: Seek out for Plants with Signatures, To Quack of Universal Cures; With Figures ground on Panes of Glass, Make People on their Heads to pass; And mighty heaps of Coyn increase, Reflected from a single piece: To draw in Fools, whose Nat'ral Itches Incline perpetually to Witches; And keep me in continual Fears, And Danger of my Neck and Ears: When less Delinquent have been scourg'd, And Hemp on wooden Anvils forg'd, Which others for Cravats have worn About their Necks, and took a Turn. I pity'd the sad Punishment The wretched Caitiffe underwent, And held my Drubbing of his Bones Too great an honour for Pultrones; For Knights are bound to feel no Blows From paltry and unequal Foes, Who when they slash and cut to pieces, Doe all with civillest addresses: Their Horses never give a blow, But when they make a Leg and Bow. I therefore spar'd his Flesh, and prest him About the Witch with many a Question. Quoth he, For many years he drove A kind of Broking-Trade in Love, Employ'd in all th' Intrigues and Trust Of feeble Speculative Lust; Procurer to th' Extravagancy And crazy Ribaldry of Fancy. By those the Devil had forsook, As things below him, to provoke. But b'ing a Virtuoso, able To Smatter, Quack, and Cant, and Dabble, He held his Talent most Adroit For any Mystical Exploit;

As others of his Tribe had done, And rais'd their Prizes Three to One. For one Predicting Pimp has th' Odds Of Chauldrons of plain downright Bauds. But as an Elf (the Devil's Valet) Is not so slight a thing to get, For those that doe his business best, In Hell are us'd the ruggedest; Before so meriting a Person Could get a Grant, but in Reversion, He serv'd two Prentiships and longer I' th' Myst'ry of a Lady-Monger. For (as some write) A Witche's Ghost, As soon as from the Body loos'd, Becomes a Puiny-Imp it self, And is another Witche's Elf. He after sea[r]ching far and near, At length found one in Lancashire, With whom he bargain'd beforehand, And, after Hanging, entertain'd. Since which h' has plaid a thousand Feats, And practis'd all Mechanick Cheats: Transform'd himself to th' ugly Shapes Of Wolves, and Bears, Baboons, and Apes; Which he has vary'd more then Witches, Or Pharaoh's Wizards could their Switches; And all with whom h' has had to doe, Turn'd to as Monstrous Figures too. Witness my self, whom h' has abus'd, And to this Beastly shape reduc'd, By feeding me on Beans and Pease, He crams in nasty Crevises, And turns to Comfits by his Arts, To make me relish for Disserts, And one by one with Shame and Fear Lick up the candid Provender. Beside—But as h' was running on, To tell what other Feats h' had done, The Lady stopt his full Career, And told him, now 'twas time to hear:

If half those things (said she) be true, (Th' are all (quoth he) I sivear by you:) Why then (said she) that Sidrophel Has damn'd himself to th' Pit of Hell; Who, mounted on a Broom, the Nag And Hackney of a Lapland Hag, In Quest of you came bither Post, Within an Hour (I'm sure) at most; Who told me all you swear and say, Ouite contrary another way; Vow'd, that you came to him to know If you should carry me or no; And would have hir'd him and his Imps, To be your Match-makers and Pimps, T' ingage the Devil on your side, And steal (like Proserpine) your Bride. But he disdaining to embrace So filthy a Design and base, You fell to vapouring and buffing, And drew upon him, like a Ruffin; Surpriz'd him meanly, unprepar'd, Before h' had time to mount his Guard; And left him dead upon the Ground. With many a Bruise and desperate wound: Swore you had broke and robb'd bis House, And stole his Talismanique Louse, And all his New-found Old Inventions, With flat Felonious Intentions; Which he could bring out, where he had, And what he bought 'em for and paid; His Flea, bis Morpion, and Punese, H' had gotten for his proper ease, And all in perfect Minutes made, By th' ablest Artists of the Trade; Which (he could prove it) since he lost, He has been eaten up almost; And all together might amount To many hundreds on account: For which h' had got sufficient warrant To seize the Malefactors Errant,

Without capacity of Bail, But of a Cart's or Horse's Tail; And did not doubt to bring the Wretches, To serve for Pendulums to IV atches; Which modern Virtuoso's say, Incline to Hanging every way. Beside he swore, and swore 'twas true, That e're he went in Quest of you, He set a Figure to discover If you were fled to Rye or Dover; And found it clear, that, to betray Your selves and me, you fled this way; And that he was upon pursuit, To take you somewhere hereabout. He vow'd h' had had Intelligence Of all that past before and since: And found, that e're you came to bim, Y' had been ingaging Life and Lim About a case of tender Conscience, Where both abounded in your own Sense; Till Ralpho, by his Light and Grace, Had clear'd all Scruples in the Case; And prov'd that you might swear, and own Whatever's by the Wicked done. For which, most basely to requite The Service of his Gifts and Light, You strove t' oblige him by main force, To scourge his Ribs in stead of yours, But that he stood upon his Guard, And all your vapouring outdar'd: For which, between you both, the Feat Has never been perform'd as yet. While thus the Lady talk'd, the Knight Turn'd th' Outside of his eyes to white. (As men of Inward Light are wont To turn their Opticks in upon't.) He wonder'd how she came to know What he had done, and meant to doe: Held up his Affidavit hand, As if h' had been to be arraign'd:

Cast tow'rds the Door a ghastly look, In dread of Sidrophel, and spoke. Madam, if but one word be true Of all the Wizard has told you, Or but one single Circumstance In all th' Apocryphal Romance, May dreadfull Earthquakes swallow down This Vessel, that is all your own; Or may the Heavens fall, and cover These Reliques of your constant Lover. You have provided well, quoth She, (I thank you) for your self and me; And shewn your Presbyterian wits Jump punctual with the Jesuits. A most compendious way and civil, At once to cheat the World, the Devil, And Heav'n and Hell, your Selves and Those On whom you vainly think t' impose. Why then (quoth he) may Hell surprize. That trick (said she) will not pass twice: I've learn'd how far I'm to believe Your pinning Oaths upon your Sleeve. But there's a better way of Clearing What you would prove then downright Swearing; For if you have perform'd the Feat, The Blows are visible as yet Enough to serve for satisfaction Of nicest scruples in the Action. And if you can produce those Knobs, Although th' are but the Witche's Drubs, I'll pass them all upon account, As if your natural Self had don't. Provided that they pass th' Opinion Of able Juries of old Women, Who, us'd to judge all matt'r of Facts For Bellies, may doe so for Backs.

Madam, (quoth he) your Love's a Million, To doe is less then to be willing, As I am, were it in my pow'r,

T' obey what you command, and more. But for performing what you hid, I thank you as much as if I did. You know I ought to have a care To keep my Wounds from taking Air: For Wounds in those that are all Heart Are dangerous in any Part.

I find (quoth she) my Goods and Chattels Are like to prove but meer drawn Battels; For still the longer we contend, We are but farther off the end. But granting now we should agree, What is it you expect from me? Your plighted Faith (quoth he) and Word You past in Heaven on Record, Where all Contracts, to have and t' hold, Are everlastingly inrol'd. And if 'tis counted Treason, here To race Records, 'tis much more there. Quoth she, There are no Bargains driv'n Nor Marriages clapp'd up in Heaven: And that's the reason, as some guess, There is no Heav'n in Marriages; Two things that naturally press Too narrowly, to be at ease. Their bus'ness there is onely Love, Which Marriage is not like t' improve. Love, that's too generous, t' abide To be against its Nature ty'd: For where 'tis of it self inclin'd, It breaks loose when it is confin'd; And like the Soul, its harbourer, Debarr'd the freedom of the Air, Disdains against its will to stay, But struggles out, and flies away: And therefore never can comply, T' endure the Matrimonial tye, That binds the Female and the Male, Where th' one is but the other's Bail;

02

Like Roman Gaolers, when they slept, Chain'd to the Prisoners they kept. Of which the True and Faithfull'st Lover Gives best security, to suffer.

Marriage is but a Beast, some say, That carries double in foul way; And therefore 'tis not to b' admir'd, It should so suddenly be tir'd: A bargain at a venture made Between two Part'ners in a Trade, ([F]or what's inferr'd by T' have, and t' hold, But something past away, and sold?) That as it makes but one of two, Reduces all things else as low: And at the best is but a Mart Between the one and th' other part, That on the Marriage-day is paid, Or hour of Death, the Bet it laid. And all the rest of Bett'r or worse Both are but losers out of Purse. For when upon their ungot Heirs Th' intail themselves, and all that's theirs, What blinder Bargain e're was driven, Or Wager laid at six and seven? To pass themselves away, and turn Their Children's Tenants e're th' are born? Beg one another Idiot To Guardians, e're they are begot; Or ever shall, perhaps, by th' one, Who's bound to wouch 'em for his own, Though got b' Implicit Generation, And General Club of all the Nation: For which she's fortify'd no less Then all the Island, with four Seas; Exacts the Tribute of her Dow'r In ready Insolence and Pow'r; And makes him pass away, to Have And Hold, to her, himself, her slave, More wretched then an Ancient Villain, Condemn'd to Drudgery and Tilling; While all he does upon the By, She is not bound to justifie, Nor at her proper cost and charge Maintain the Feats be does at large. Such hideous Sots were those obedient Old Vassals to their Ladies Regent; To give the Cheats the Eldest hand In Foul Play, by the Laws o' th' Land; For which so many a legal Cuckold Has been run down in Courts, and truckled. A Law that most unjustly yokes All Johns of Stiles to Joans of Nokes, Without distinction of Degree, Condition, Age, or Quality; Admits no Pow'r of Revocation, Nor valuable Consideration, Nor Writ of Error, nor Reverse Of Judgement past For better or worse; Will not allow the Priviledges That Beggars challenge under Hedges, Who, when th' are griev'd, can make dead Horses Their Spiritual Judges of Divorces; While nothing else but Rem in Re. Can set the proudest Wretches free: A Slavery beyond enduring, But that 'tis of their own procuring. As Spiders never seek the Fly, But leave him, of himself, t' apply: So men are by themselves betray'd, To quit the freedom they injoy'd, And run their Necks into a Nooze, They'ld break 'em after, to break loose. As some, whom Death would not depart, Have done the Feat themselves by Art. Like Indian-Widows, gone to Bed In Flaming Curtains to the Dead: And Men as often dangled for't, And yet will never leave the Sport.

Nor do the Ladies want excuse For all the Strategems they use, To gain th' advantage of the Set, And lurch the Amorous Rook and Cheat. For as a Pythagorean Soul Runs through all Beasts, and Fish, and Fowl, And has a smack of ev'ry one: So Love does, and has ever done. And therefore, though 'tis ne'r so fond, Takes strangely to the Vagabond. 'Tis but an Ague that's reverst, IV hose hot fit takes the Patient first, That after burns with cold as much As Ir'n in Greenland does the touch; Melts in the Furnace of desire, Like Glass, that's but the Ice of Fire; And when his heat of Fancy's over, Becomes as hard and frail a Lover. For when he's with Love-powder laden, And Prim'd, and Cock'd by Miss, or Madam, The smallest sparkle of an Eye Gives Fire to his Artillery; And off the loud Oaths go, but while Th' are in the very Act, recoil. Hence 'tis, so few dare take their chance Without a sep'rate maintenance: And Widows, who have try'd one Lover, Trust none again, till th' have made over. Or if they doe, before they marry, The Foxes weigh the Geese they carry: And e're they venture o're a stream, Know how to size themselves and them. Whence witty'st Ladies always choose To undertake the heaviest Goose. For now the World is grown so wary, That few of either Sex dare marry, But rather trust on tick t' Amours, The Crose and Pile for Bett'r or Worse: A Mode that is held honourable, As well as French and fashionable.

For when it falls out for the best, Where both are incommoded least, In Soul and Body two unite, To make up one Hermaphrodite; Still Amorous, and fond, and Billing, Like Philip and Mary on a Shilling, Th' have more Punctilio's and Capriches Between the Petticoat and Breeches, More petulant Extravagancies, Then Poets make 'em in Romances. Though, when their Heroes 'spouse the Dames, We hear no more of Charms and Flames: For then their late attracts decline, And turn as eager as Prick'd Wine; And all their Catterwauling tricks, In earnest to as jealous Piques: Which th' Ancients wisely signify'd, By th' yellow Manto's of the Bride. For Jealousie is but a kind Of Clap and Grincam of the Mind, The natural effect of Love, As other Flames and Aches prove: But all the mischief is, the doubt On whose account they first broke out. For though Chineses go to Bed, And lie in in their Ladies stead, And for the pains they took before, Are nurs'd and pamper'd to doe more: Our Green-men doe it worse, when th' hap To fall in labour of a Clap; Both lay the Child to one another: But who's the Father, who the Mother, 'Tis hard to say in multitudes, Or who imported the French Goods. But Health and Sickness b'ing all one, Which both ingag'd before to own, And are not with their Bodies bound To Worship onely when th' are sound; Both give and take their equal shares Of all they suffer by false Wares:

A Fate no Lover can divert With all his caution, Wit, and Art. For 'tis in vain to think to guess At Women by Appearances, That Paint and Patch their Imperfections Of Intellectual Complexions, And daub their Tempers o're with Washes As artificial as their Faces; Wear under Vizard-Masks their Talents And Mother Wits before their Gallants; Until th' are hamper'd in the Nooze, Too fast to dream of breaking loose: When all the Flaws they strove to hide Are made unready, with the Bride, That with her Wedding-cloaths undresses Her Complaisance and Gentilesses; Tries all her Arts, to take upon her The Government from th' easie owner, Until the Wretch is glad to wave His lawfull Right, and turn her Slave; Finds all his Having, and his Holding, Reduc'd t' eternal Noise and Scolding, The Conjugal Petard, that tears Down all Portcullices of Ears, And makes the Volly of one Tongue For all their Leathern Shields too strong, When onely arm'd with Noise and Nails, The Female Silk-worms ride the Males, Transform 'em into Rams and Goats, Like Sirens with their charming Notes, Sweet as a Screech-Owl's Serenade, Or those inchanting murmurs made By th' Husband Mandrake and the Wife, Both bury'd (like themselves) alive.

Quoth he, these Reasons are but strains Of wanton, over-heated Brains, Which Ralliers in their Wit or Drink Do rather wheedle with, then think. Man was not Man in Paradise,

Untill he was Created twice, And had his better half, his Bride, Carv'd from th' Original, his side, T' amend bis Natural defects, And perfect his recruited Sex. Inlarge his Breed, at once, and lessen The Pains and labour of increasing, By changing them for other cares, As by his dry'd-up Paps appears. His Body, that stupendious Frame, Of all the World the Anagram, Is of two equal parts compact In Shape and Symmetry exact. Of which the Left and Female side Is to the Manly Right a Bride, Both joyn'd together with such Art, That nothing else but Death can part. Those Heav'nly Attracts of yours, your Eyes, And Face, that all the World surprize, That dazle all that look upon ye, And scorch all other Ladies Tawny; Those ravishing and charming Graces, Are all made up of two Half Faces, That in a Mathematick Line, Like those in other Heavens, join. Of which if either grew alone, 'Trould fright as much to look upon: And so would that sweet Bud, your Lip, Without the other's fellowship. Our Noblest Senses act by Pairs, Two Eyes to see, to hear two Ears; Th' Intelligencers of the Mind, To wait upon the Soul design'd. But those that serve the Body alone, Are single and confin'd to one. The World is but two Parts, that meet, And close at th' Æquinoctial, fit; And so are all the Works of Nature, Stamp'd with her signature on Matter: Which all her Creatures, to a Leaf,

Or smallest Blade of Grass, receive. All which sufficiently declare How intirely Marriage is her care, The onely method that she uses, In all the wonders she produces. And those that take their rules from her, Can never be deceiv'd, nor err. For what secures the Civil Life But parons of Children and a Wife; That lie, like Hostages, at stake, To pay for all Men undertake? To whom it is as necessary, As to be born and breath, to marry; So Universal, all Mankind In nothing else is of one mind. For in what stupid Age, or Nation, Was Marriage ever out of Fashion? Unless among the Amazons, Or Vestal Friers, and Cloister'd Nuns, Or Stoicks, who, to bar the Freaks And loose Excesses of the Sex. Preposterously would have all Women Turn'd up to all the World in common. Though Men would find such mortal Fewds In sharing of their publick Goods, 'Twould put them to more charge of Lives, Then th' are supply'd with now by Wives; Until they Graze, and wear their Cloaths, As Beasts doe, of their Native Growths: For simple wearing of their Horns, Will not suffice to serve their turns. For what can we pretend t' inherit, Unless the Marriage-deed will bear it? Could claim no Right to Lands or Rents. But for our Parents settlements. Had been but younger Sons o' th' Earth, Debarr'd it all, but for our Birth. What Honours, or Estates of Peers Could be preserv'd but by their Heirs? And what security maintains

Their Right and Title, but the Banes? What Crowns could be Hereditary, If greatest Monarchs did not marry, And with their Consorts consummate Their weightiest Interests of State? For all th' Amours of Princes are But Guarranties of Peace or War. Or what but Marriage has a Charm, The Rage of Empires to disarm, Make Bloud and Desolation cease, And Fire and Sword unite in Peace, When all their fierce contests for Forrage Conclude in Articles of Marriage? Nor does the Genial Bed provide Less for the Interests of the Bride; Who else had not the least Pretence T' as much as Due Benevolence: Could no more Title take upon her To Vertue, Quality, and Honour, Then Ladies Errant, unconfin'd, And Feme-Coverts to all Mankind. All Women would be of one piece, The vertuous Matron, and the Miss; The Nymphs of chast Diana's Train, The same with those in Lewkner's-lane; But for the difference Marriage makes 'Twixt Wives, and Ladies of the Lakes. Besides, the joys of Place and Birth, The Sexes Paradise on Earth; A privilege so sacred held, That none will to their Mothers yield; But rather then not go before, Abandon Heaven at the Door. And if th' indulgent Law allows A greater freedom to the Spouse; The reason is, because the Wife Runs greater hazards of her Life; Is trusted with the Form and Matter Of all Mankind by carefull Nature. Where Man brings nothing but the Stuff,

She frames the wondrous Fabrick off: Who therefore, in a streight, may freely Demand the Clergy of her Belly, And make it save her, the same way, It seldom misses to betray. Unless both parties wisely enter Into the Liturgy-Indenture. And though some fits of small contest Sometimes fall out among the Best, That is no more then every Lover Does from his Hackney-Lady suffer. That makes no Breach of Faith and Love, But rather (sometime) serves t' improve. For, as in Running, ev'ry Pace Is but between two Legs a Race, In which both doe their uttermost To get before, and win the Post; Yet when th' are at their race's ends, Th' are still as kind and constant friends, And to relieve their weariness, By turns give one another ease: So all those false Alarms of strife Between the Husband and the Wife, And little Quarrels, often prove To be but new recruits of Love. When those wh' are always kind or coy, In time must either Tire, or Cloy. Nor are their loudest Clamours more, Then as th' are relish'd, Sweet, or Sour: Like Musick, that proves bad, or good, According as 'tis understood. In all Amours a Lover burns, With Frowns, as well as Smiles, by turns: And Hearts have been as oft with sullen, As charming looks, surpriz'd and stollen. Then why should more bewitching Clamour Some Lovers not as much enamour? For Discords make the sweetest Airs, And Curses are a kind of Prayers: Too slight Alloys for all those grand Felicities by Marriage gain'd.

For nothing else has pow'r to settle
Th' interests of Love perpetual.
An AEt and Deed that makes one Heart
Become another's Counter-part,
And passes Fines on Faith and Love,
Inrol'd and Registred above,
To seal the slippery knot of Vows,
Which nothing else but Death can loose.
And what Security's too strong,
To guard that gentle Heart from wrong,
That to its Friend is glad to pass
It self away, and all it has;
And, like an Anchorite, gives over
This World, for th' Heaven of a Lover?

I grant (quoth she) there are some few Who take that course, and find it true: But Millions, whom the same does sentence To Heaven b' another way, Repentance. Love's Arrows are but shot at Rovers, Though all they hit they turn to Lovers. And all the weighty consequents Depend upon more blind events Then Gamesters, when they play a Set With greatest cunning at Piquet, Put out with caution, but take in They know not what, unsight-unseen. For what doe Lovers, when th' are fast In one another's Arms embrac't, But strive to plunder and convey Each other, like a Prize, away? To change the property of selves, As sucking Children are by Elves? And if they use their Persons so, What will they to their Fortunes doe? Their Fortunes! the perpetual aims Of all their Ecstasies and Flames, For when the Money's on the Book, And, All my Worldly Goods-but spoke:

(The Formal Livery and Scisin That puts a Lover in possession) To that alone the Bridegroom's wedded, The Bride a Flam that's superseded. To that their Faith is still made good, And all the Oaths to us they vow'd. For when we once resign our Pow'rs, IV' have nothing left we can call ours. Our Money's now become the Miss, Of all your Lives and Services; And we forsaken, and Post-pon'd, But Bawds to what before we own'd. Which as it made y' at first Gallant us, So now hires others to supplant us. Until 'tis all turn'd out of doors, (As we had been) for new Amours. For what did ever Heiress vet By being born to Lordships get? When the more Ladie sh' is of Mannors, She's but expos'd to more Trepanners, Pays for their Projects and Designs, And for her own destruction Fines, And does but tempt them with her Riches, To use her as the Dev'l does Witches; IV ho takes it for a special Grace, To be their Cully for a space, That, when the time's expir'd, the Drazels For ever may become his Vassals. So she, hewitch'd by Rooks and Spirits, Betrays her self, and all sh' inherits Is bought and sold, like stollen goods, By Pimps, and Match-makers, and Bawds: Until they force her to convey, And steal the Thief himself away. These are the everlasting Fruits Of all your passionate Love-suits, Th' effects of all your amorous Fancies To Portions and Inheritances, Your Love-sick Raptures for Fruition Of Dowry, Fointure, and Tuition;

To which you make Address and Courtship, And with your Bodies strive to Worship, That th' Infant's Fortunes may partake Of Love too, for the Mother's sake. For these, you play at Purposes, And love your Loves with A's and B's: For these, at Beast and L'hombre wooe, And play for Love and Money too; Strive who shall be the ablest Man At right Gallanting of a Fan, And who the most Gentilely bred At sucking of a Vizard Bead, How best to accost us in all Quarters T' our question-and-command New Garters, And solidly discourse upon All sorts of Dresses Pro and Con. For there's no Mystery nor Trade, But in the Art of Love is made. And when you have more Debts to pay Then Michaelmas and Lady-day, And no way possible to do 't, But Love and Oaths and restless Suit, To us y' apply, to pay the Scores Of all your cully'd past Amours; Act o're your Flames and Darts again, And charge us with your wounds and pain, Which others influences long since Have charm'd your Noses with, and Shins; For which the Surgeon is unpaid, And like to be, without our aid. Lord! what an Amorous thing is Want! How Debts and Mortgages inchant! What Graces must that Lady have, That can from Executions save! What Charms, that can reverse Extent, And null Decree and Exigent! What Magical Attracts and Graces, That can redeem from Scire facias; From Bonds and Statutes can discharge, And from Contempts of Courts inlarge!

These are the highest Excellencies
Of all our true or false Pretences.
And you would damn your selves, and swear
As much t' an Hostess Dowager,
Grown fat and pursy by Retail
Of Pots of Beer, and Bottled Ale;
And find her fitter for your turn,
For Fat is wondrous apt to burn;
Who at your Flames would soon take Fire,
Relent, and melt to your desire,
And, like a Candle in the Socket,
Dissolve her Graces int' your Pocket.

By this time 'twas grown dark and late, When th' heard a knocking at the Gate, Laid on in haste with such a powder, The blows grew louder still and louder. Which Hudibras, as if th' had been Bestow'd as freely on his Skin, Expounding by his Inward Light, Or rather more Prophetick fright, To be the Wizard, come to search, And take him napping in the lurch, Turn'd pale as Ashes, or a Clout; But why, or wherefore, is a doubt: For Men will tremble, and turn paler, With too much, or too little Valour. His Heart laid on, as if it try'd To force a passage through his Side, Impatient (as he vow'd) to wait 'ein, But in a Fury to fly at 'cm; And therefore beat, and laid about, To find a cranny to creep out. But she, who saw in what a taking The Knight was by his furious Quaking, Undaunted, cry'd, Courage, Sir Knight, Know I'm resolv'd to break no Rite Of Hospitality t' a Stranger, But to secure you out of danger, Will here my self stand Sentinel,

To guard this Pass 'gainst Sidrophel. Women, you know, do seldom fail, To make the stoutest Men turn tail: And bravely scorn to turn their Backs Upon the desperat'st Attacks.

At this the Knight grew resolute
As Iron-side or Hardy-knute;
His fortitude began to rally,
And out he cri'd aloud, to sally.
But she besought him, to convey
His Courage rather out o'th' way,
And lodge in Ambush on the Floor,
Or fortifi'd behind a Door,
That if the Enemy should enter,
He might relieve her in th' Adventure.

Mean while, they knock'd against the Door, As fierce as at the Gate before; Which made the Renegado Knight Relapse again t' his former fright. He thought it desperate to stay Till th' Enemy had forc'd his way, But rather post himself, to serve The Lady, for a fresh Reserve. His Duty was not to dispute, But what sh' had order'd execute: Which he resolv'd in haste t' obey, And therefore stoutly march'd away; And all h' encountred fell upon, Though in the dark, and all alone. Till Fear, that braver Feats performs Then ever Courage dar'd in Arms, Had drawn him up before a Pass, To stand upon his Guard, and face. This he courageously invaded, And having enter'd, Barricado'd: Insconc'd himself as formidable As could be underneath a Table; Where he lay down in Ambush close,

Р

T' expect the arrival of his Foes. Few minutes had he lain perdue, To guard his desp'rate Avenue, Before he heard a dreadfull shout, As loud as putting to the Rout; With which impatiently alarm'd, He fansi'd th' Enemy had storm'd, And after entring Sidrophel Was fall'n upon the Guards pell-mell. He therefore sent out all his Senses, To bring him in Intelligences. Which Vulgars out of ignorance Mistake, for falling in a Trance: But those that trade in Geomancy, Affirm to be the strength of Fancy: In which the Lapland-Magi deal, And things incredible reveal. Mean while the Foe beat up his Quarters, And storm'd the Out-works of his Fortress. And as another of the same Degree, and Party, in Arms and Fame, That in the same Cause had ingag'd, And War with equal conduct wag'd, By vent'ring onely but to thrust His Head a Span beyond his Post, B' a Gen'ral of the Cavaliers Was dragg'd through a Window by th' Ears: So he was serv'd in his Redoubt, And by the other end pull'd out.

Soon as they had him at their mercy, They put him to the Cudgel fiercely, As if they scorn'd to trade and barter, By giving or by taking Quarter: They stoutly on his Quarters laid, Until his Scouts came in t'his aid. For when a Man is past his Sense, There's no way to reduce him thence, But twindging him by th' Ears or Nose, Or laying on of heavy Blows.

And if that will not doe the Deed, To burning with Hot Irons proceed.

No sooner was he come t' himself, But on his Neck a sturdy Elf Clapp'd in a trice his cloven Hoof, And thus attack'd him with Reproof. Mortal, thou art betray'd to us B' our Friend, thy evil Genius, Who for thy horrid Perjuries, Thy Breach of Faith, and turning Lies, The Brethrens Privilege, (against The Wicked) on themselves, the Saints, Has here thy wretched Carcass sent For just Revenge and punishment; Which thou hast now no way to lessen, But by an open, free Confession. For if we catch thee failing once, 'Twill fall the heavier on thy Bones. What made thee venture to betray, And filch the Ladie's Heart away? To Spirit her to Matrimony-? That which contracts all Matches, Money. It was th' inchantment of her Riches, That made m' apply t' your Croney Witches: That in return would pay th' expence, The Wear-and-tear of Conscience; Which I could have patch'd up, and turn'd, For th' hundredth part of what I earn'd. Didst thou not love her then? speak true. No more (quoth he) then I love you. How wouldst th' have us'd her, and her Money? First, turn'd her up to Alimony; And laid her Dowry out in Law, To null her Jointure with a Flaw, Which I before-hand had agreed T' have put, of purpose, in the Deed; And bar her Widow's-making-over T' a Friend in Trust, or private Lover. What made thee pick and chuse her out,

T' imploy their Sorceries about? That which makes Gamesters play with those Who have least Wit, and most to lose. But didst thou scourge thy Vessel thus, As thou hast damn'd thy self to us? I see you take me for an Ass: 'Tis true, I thought the Trick would pass Upon a Woman well enough, As 't has been often found by Proof; Whose Humours are not to be won But when they are impos'd upon. For Love approves of all they doe That stand for Candidates, and wooe. Why didst thou forge those shamefull Lies, Of Bears and Witches in Disguise? That is no more then Authours give The Rabble credit to Believe; A Trick of Following their Leaders, To entertain their Gentle Readers. And we have now no other way Of passing all we doe or say; Which when 'tis natural and true, Will be believ'd b' a very few. Beside the danger of offence, The fatal enemy of Sense. Why didst thou chuse that cursed Sin, Hypocrisie, to set up in? Because it is the thriving'st Calling, The onely Saints-Bell that rings all in, In which all Churches are concern'd, And is the easiest to be learn'd. For no degrees, unless th' imploy 't, Can ever gain much, or enjoy 't. A Gift that is not onely able To domineer among the Rabble, But by the Law's impowr'd to rout And aw the greatest that stand out. Which few hold forth against, for fear Their hands should slip, and come too near. For no Sin else among the Saints

Is taught so tenderly against. What made thee break thy Plighted Vows? That which makes others break a House, And hang, and scorn ye all, before Endure the Plague of being poor. Quoth he, I see you have more Tricks Then all our doting Politicks, That are grown old, and out of Fashion, Compar'd with your new Reformation: That we must come to School to you, To learn your more refin'd, and New. Quoth he, If you will give me leave To tell you what I now perceive, You'ld find your self an arrant Chouse, If y' were but at a Meeting-House. 'Tis true, quoth he, we ne'r come there, Because w' have let them out by th' year. Truly, quoth he, you can't imagine What wondrous things they will engage in: That as your Fellow-Fiends in Hell Were Angels all before they fell; So you are like to be agen Compar'd with th' Angels of us Men. Quoth he, I am resolv'd to be Thy Scholar in this Mystery; And therefore first desire to know Some Principles on which you go. What makes a Knave a Child of God, And one of us? —— A Livelihood. What renders Beating out of Brains And Murther Godliness?—Great Gains. What's tender Conscience? - Tis a Botch That will not bear the gentlest touch, But breaking out, dispatches more Then th' Epidemical'st Plague-sore. What makes y' encroach upon our Trade, And damn all others? - To be paid. What's Orthodox and true Believing Against a Conscience? —— A good Living. What makes Rebelling against Kings

A Good Old Cause? Administrings. What makes all Dostrines plain and clear? About Two hundred pounds a year. And that which was prov'd true before, Prove false again? Two hundred more. What makes the Breaking of all Oaths A holy Duty? Food and Cloaths. What Laws and Freedom, Persecution? B'ing out of Pow'r, and Contribution. What makes a Church a Den of Thieves? A Dean and Chapter, and White Sleeves. And what would serve, if those were gone, To make it Orthodox? Our own. What makes Morality a Crime, The most notorious of the Time? Morality, which both the Saints And Wicked too cry out against? 'Cause Grace and Vertue are within Prohibited Degrees of Kin: And therefore no true Saint allows They should be suffer'd to espouse. For Saints can need no Conscience That with Morality dispense; As Vertue's impious, when 'tis rooted In Nature onel', and not imputed. But why the Wicked should doe so, We neither know, nor care to do. What's Liberty of Conscience, I' th' Natural and Genuine Sense? 'Tis to restore with more security Rebellion to its ancient Purity; And Christian Liberty reduce To th' elder Practice of the Jews. For a Large Conscience is all one, And signifies the same with None.

It is enough (quoth he) for once, And has repriev'd thy forfeit Bones: Nick Machiavel had ne'r a Trick, (Though he gave 's Name to our Old Nick)

But was below the least of these, That pass i' th' World for Holiness.

This said, the Furies and the Light In th' instant vanish'd out of sight; And left him in the dark alone, With stinks of Brimstone, and his own.

The Queen of Night, whose large Command Rules all the Sea and half the Land, And over moist and crazy Brains In high Spring-tides at Midnight reigns, Was now declining to the West, To go to Bed and take her rest. When Hudibras, whose stubborn Blows Deni'd his Bones that soft repose, Lay still expecting worse and more, Stretch'd out at length upon the Floor: And though he shut his Eyes as fast As if h' had been to sleep his last, Saw all the Shapes that Fear or Wizards Do make the Devil wear for Vizards. And pricking up his Ears, to hark If he could hear too in the dark, Was first invaded with a Groan, And after, in a feeble Tone, These trembling words. Unhappy Wretch! What hast thou gotten by this Fetch? Or all thy Tricks in this New Trade, The Holy Brotherhood o' th' Blade? By Santring still on some Adventure, And growing to thy Horse a Centaur, To stuff thy Skin with swelling Knobs Of cruel and hard-wooded Drubs? For still th' hast had the worst on't yet, As well in Conquest as defeat. Night is the Sabbath of Mankind, To rest the Body and the Mind: Which now thou art deni'd to keep, And cure thy labour'd Corps with Sleep.

The Knight, who heard the words, explain'd As meant to him this Reprimand, Because the Character did hit Point-blank upon his Case so fit; Believ'd it was some drolling Sprite That staid upon the Guards that Night, And one of those h' had seen, and felt The Drubs he had so freely dealt. When, after a short Pause and Grone, The dolefull Spirit thus went on. This 'tis t' ingage with Dogs and Bears Pelmell together by the Ears; And after painfull Bangs and Knocks, To lie in Limbo in the Stocks; And from the Pinacle of Glory, Fall headlong into Purgatory: (Thought he, This Devil's full of Malice, That on my late Disasters Rallies.) Condemn'd to Whipping, but declin'd it. By being more Heroick-minded; And at a Riding handled worse, With Treats more slovenly and course; Ingag'd with Fiends in stubborn Wars, And hot Disputes with Conjurers; And when th' hadst bravely won the day, Wast fain to steal thyself away. (I see, thought he, this shameless Elf Would fain steal me too from my self, That impudently dares to own What I have suffer'd for and done:) And now but ventring to betray, Hast met with Vengeance the same way. Thought he, How does the Devil know What 'twas that I design'd to doe? His Office of Intelligence, His Oracles are ceas'd long since: And he knows nothing of the Saints, But what some treacherous Spy acquaints. This is some Pettifogging Fiend, Some Under-Door-keeper's Friend's Friend,

That undertakes to understand, And juggles at the Second hand; And now would pass for Spirit Po, And all mens dark Concerns fore-know. I think I need not fear him for't: These Rallying Devils doe no hurt. With that he rouz'd his drooping Heart, And hastily cri'd out, What art? A Wretch (quoth he) whom want of Grace Has brought to this unhappy Place. I do believe thee, quoth the Knight, Thus far I'm sure th' art in the Right; And know what 'tis that troubles thee, Better then thou hast guest of me. Thou art some paltry Black-guard Sprite, Condemn'd to Drudg'ry in the Night, That hast no work to doe in th' House, Nor Half-penny to drop in Shoes: Without the raising of which Sum, You dare not be so troublesome, To pinch the Slatterns black and blue, For leaving you their Work to doe. This is your business, good Pug Robin, And your Diversion dull Dry Bobbing; T' intice Fanaticks in the Dirt, And wash 'em clean in Ditches for 't. Of which conceit you are so proud, At ev'ry Fest you laugh aloud. As now you would have done by me, But that I barr'd your Rallery.

Sir, (quoth the Voice) y' are no such Sophy As you would have the World judge of ye, If you design to weigh our Talents I' th' Standard of your own false Balance, Or think it possible to know Us Ghosts as well as we do you: We, who have been the everlasting Companions of your Drubs and Basting, And never left you in Contest

With Male or Female, Man or Beast, But prov'd as true t' ye and intire In all adventures as your Squire.

Quoth he, That may be said as true By th' idlest Pug of all your Crew: For none could have betray'd us worse Then those Allies of ours and yours. But I have sent him for a Token To your Low-Countrey Hogen Mogen, To whose Infernal Shores I hope He'l swing like Skippers in a Rope. And if y' have been more just to me (As I am apt to think) then he, I am afraid it is as true, What th' Ill-affected say of you, Y' have 'spous'd the Covenant and Cause, By holding up your Cloven Paws. Sir, quoth the Voice, 'tis true, I grant, We made and took the Covenant. But that no more concerns the Cause, Then other Peri'ries doe the Laws, Which when they're prov'd in open Court, Wear wooden Peccadillo's for't. And that's the Reason Cov'nanters Held up their Hands, like Rogues at Bars. I see, quoth Hudibras, from whence These Scandals of the Saints commence, That are but natural Effects Of Satan's Malice, and his Sects, Those Spider-Saints, that hang by Threds Spun out of th' Entrals of their Heads. Sir, quoth the Voice, that may as true And properly be said of you; Whose Talents may compare with either, Or both the other put together. For all the Independents doe Is onely what you forc'd them to. You, who are not content alone With Tricks to put the Devil down,

But must have Armies rais'd, to back The Gospel-work you undertake: As if Artillery, and Edge-tools Were th' onely Engines to save Souls. While He, poor Devil, has no pow'r By force to run down and devour; Has ne'r a Classis, cannot sentence To Stools or Poundage of Repentance; Is ti'd up onely to Design, T' Intice, and Tempt, and Undermine: In which you all his Arts out-doe, And prove your selves his Betters too. Hence 'tis Possessions doe less evil Then mere Temptations of the Devil, Which all the horrid'st Actions done, Are charg'd in Courts of Law upon; Because unless you help the Elf, He can doe little of himself: And therefore where he's best Possest, AEts most against his Interest; Surprises none but those wh' have Priests To turn him out, and Exorcists, Supply'd with Spiritual Provision, And Magazines of Ammunition, With Crosses, Relicks, Crucifixes, Beads, Pictures, Rosaries, and Pixes, The Tools of working out Salvation By meer Mechanick Operation, With Holy Water, like a Sluce, To overflow all Avenues. But those wh' are utterly unarm'd T' oppose his Entrance if he storm'd, He never offers to surprize, Although his falsest Enemies; But is content to be their Drudge, And on their Errands glad to trudge. For where are all your Forfeitures Intrusted in safe bands, but ours? Who are but Jailours of the Holes And Dungeons where you clap up Souls;

Like Under-keepers, turn the Keys T' your Mittimus Anathemaes; And never boggle to restore The Members you deliver o're Upon Demand, with fairer Justice Then all your Covenanting Trustees: Unless to punish them the worse, You put them in the Secular Pow'rs, And pass their Souls as some demise The same Estate in Mortgage twice, When to a Legal Utlegation You turn your Excommunication, And for a Groat unpaid that's due, Distrain on Soul and Body too.

Thought he, 'Tis no mean part of civil State-Prudence, to cajoul the Devil, And not to handle him too rough, When h' has us in his cloven Hoof. 'Tis true, quoth he, that intercourse Has past between your Friends and ours; That as you trust us in our way, To raise your Members, and to lay, We send you others of our own, Denounc'd to Hang themselves or Drown, Or, frighted with our Oratory, To leap down headlong many a story; Have us'd all means to propagate Your mighty interests of State, Laid out our Spiritual Gifts to further Your great designs of Rage and Murther. For if the Saints are nam'd from Blood, We onel' have made that Title good: And if it were but in our power, We should not scruple to doe more, And not be half a Soul behind Of all Dissenters of Mankind. Right, quoth the Voice, and as I scorn To be ungratefull in return Of all those kind good Offices,

I'll free you out of this Distress, And set you down in safety, where, It is no time to tell you here. The Cock crows and the Morn draws on, When 'tis decreed I must be gone: And if I leave you here till Day, You'l find it hard to get away. With that the Spirit grop'd about To find th' Inchanted Hero out, And try'd with haste to lift him up; But found his Forlorn Hope, his Croop, Unserviceable with Kicks and Blows Receiv'd from hardned-hearted Foes. He thought to drag him by the Heels, Like Gresham Carts, with Legs for Wheels. But Fear, that soonest cures those Sores, In danger of Relapse to worse, Came in t'assist him with its Aid, And up his sinking Vessel weigh'd. No sooner was he fit to trudge, But both made ready to dislodge. The Spirit hors'd him like a Sack, Upon the Vehicle, his Back, And bore him headlong into th' Hall, With some few Rubs against the Wall. Where finding out the Postern lock'd, And th' Avenues as strongly block'd, H' attack'd the Window, storm'd the Glass, And in a moment gain'd the Pass, Through which he dragg'd the worsted Souldiers Fore-quarters out by th' Head and Shoulders; And cautiously began to scout, To find their Fellow-Cattel out. Nor was it half a Minute's Quest, E're he retriev'd the Champion's Beast, Ty'd to a Pale in stead of Rack, But ne'r a Saddle on his Back, Nor Pistols at the Saddle-bow, Convey'd away the Lord knows how. He thought it was no time to stay,

And let the Night too steal away, But in a trice advanc'd the Knight Upon the Bare Ridge bolt upright. And groping out for Ralpho's Jade, He found the Saddle too was straid, And in the place a Lump of Sope, On which he speedily leap'd up; And turning to the Gate the Rein, He Kick'd and Cudgell'd on amain. While Hudibras, with equal haste, On both sides laid about as fast, And spurr'd as Jockies use, to break, Or Padders, to secure a Neck. Where let us leave them for a time, And to their Churches turn our Rhyme; To hold forth their declining State, Which now come near an Even Rate.

THE ARGUMENT OF THE

SECOND CANTO

Of the Third Part.

The Saints engage in fierce Contests
About their Carnal Interests;
To share their Sacrilegious Preys,
According to their Rates of Grace;
Their various Frenzies to Reform,
When Cromwel left them in a Storm:
Till, in th' Effigie of RUMPS, the Rabble
Burns all their Grandees of the Cabal.

CANTO II.

THE Learned write, An Insect Breeze Is but a Mungrel Prince of Bees, That falls, before a Storm, on Cows, And stings the Founders of his House; From whose corrupted Flesh that Breed Of Vermine did at first proceed. So, e'r the Storm of War broke out, Religion spawn'd a various Rout, Of Petulant Capricious Sects, The Maggots of Corrupted Texts, That first run all Religion down, And after every Swarm its own. For as the Persian Magi once Upon their Mothers got their Sons,

Who were incapable t' injoy That Empire any other way: So Presbyter begot the other Upon the Good Old Cause, his Mother, That bore them like the Devil's Dam, Whose Son and Husband are the same. And yet no nat'ral Tie of Blood, Nor Intr'est for their common good, Could, when their Profits interfear'd, Get Ouarter for each other's Beard. For when they thriv'd, they never fadg'd, But onely by the ears engag'd: Like Dogs that snarl about a Bone, And play together when th' have none. As by their truest Characters, Their constant Actions, plainly appears.

Rebellion now began for lack Of Zeal and Plunder to grow slack; The Cause and Covenant to lessen, And Providence to b' out of Season: For now there was no more to purchase O' th' King's Revenue and the Churche's, But all divided, shar'd, and gone, That us'd to urge the Brethren on. Which forc'd the Stubborn'st for the Cause To cross the Cudgels to the Laws; That what by breaking them t' had gain'd, By their Support might be maintain'd: Like Thieves, that in a Hemp-plot lie, Secur'd against the Hue-and-cry. For Presbyter and Independent Were now turn'd Plaintiff and Defendant, Laid out their Apostolick Functions On Carnal Orders and Injunctions, And all their Precious Gifts and Graces On Out-lawries and Scire facias; At Michael's Term had many a Trial, Worse then the Dragon and St. Michael, Where thousands fell, in shape of Fees,

Into the Bottomless Abyss. For when, like Brethren and Friends, They came to share their Dividends, And ev'ry Partner to possess His Church and State Joint-Purchaces, In which the Ablest Saint and Best Was nam'd in Trust by all the rest, To pay their Money, and, in stead Of ev'ry Brother, pass the Deed; He straight converted all his Gifts To pious Frauds and holy Shifts, And settled all the others Shares Upon his outward Man and 's Heirs; Held all they claim'd as Forfeit Lands, Deliver'd up into his hands, And past upon his Conscience, By Pre-intail of Providence; Impeach'd the Rest for Reprobates, That had no Titles to Estates, But by their Spiritual Attaints Degraded from the Right of Saints. This being reveal'd, they now begun With Law and Conscience to fall on; And laid about as hot and Brainsick As th' Utter Barrister of Swanswick; Ingag'd with Money-bags, as bold As men with Sand-bags did of old; That brought the Lawyers in more Fees, Then all unsanctifi'd Trustees: Till he who had no more to show I' th' Case, receiv'd the overthrow; Or both sides having had the worst, They parted as they met at first.

Poor Presbyter was now Reduc'd, Secluded, and Cashier'd, and Chews'd, Turn'd out and Excommunicate From all Affairs of Church and State, Reform'd t' a Reformado Saint, And glad to turn Itinerant,

To strowl and teach from Town to Town, And those he had taught up Teach down, And make those Uses serve agen Against the New-inlightned men, As fit as when at first they were Reveal'd against the Gavalier; Damn Anabaptist and Fanatick, As pat as Popish and Prelatick; And with as little variation, To serve for any Sect i'th' Nation. The Good Old Cause, which some believe To be the Dev'l that tempted EveWith Knowledge, and does still invite The World to Mischief with New Light, Had store of Money in her Purse, When he took her for bett'r or worse; But now was grown Deform'd and Poor. And fit to be turn'd out of Door.

The Independents (whose first station Was in the Rere of Reformation, A Mungrel kind of Church-Dragoons, That serv'd for Horse and Foot at once, And in the Saddle of one Steed The Saracen and Christian rid. Were Free of ev'ry Spiritual Order, To Preach, and Fight, and Pray, and Murther) No sooner got the Start to lurch Both Disciplines, of War and Church, And Providence enough to run The chief Commanders of 'em down, But carried on the War against The Common Enemy o' th' Saints; And in a while prevail'd so far, To win of them the Game of War, And be at Liberty once more, T' Attack themselves as th' had before.

For now there was no Foe in Arms, T' unite their Factions with Alarms,

But all reduc'd and overcome, Except their worst, themselves at home, Wh' had compast all they Praid, and Swore, And Fought, and Preach'd, and Plunder'd for, Subdu'd the Nation, Church and State, And all things but their Laws and Hate. But when they came to treat and transact, And share the spoils of all th' had ransackt, To Botch up what th' had torn and rent, Religion and the Government, They met no sooner, but prepar'd To pull down all the War had spar'd; Agreed in nothing, but t' Abolish, Subvert, Extirpate, and Demolish. For Knaves and Fools b'ing near of Kin, As Dutch-Boors are t'a Sooterkin, Both Parties join'd to doe their best, To Damn the Publick Interest; And Hearded onely in Consults To put by one anothers Bolts, T' out-cant the Babylonian Labourers, At all their Dialects of Jabberers, And tug at both ends of the Saw, To tear down Government and Law. For as two Cheats, that play one Game, Are both defeated of their Aim: So those who play a Game of State, And onely Cavil in Debate, Although there's nothing lost nor won, The Publick Business is undone, Which still the longer 'tis in doing, Becomes the surer way to Ruine. This when the Royalists perceiv'd, (Who to their Faith as firmly cleav'd, And own'd the Right they had paid down So dearly for, The Church and Crown,) Th' united constanter, and Sided The more, the more their Foes divided. For though out-number'd, overthrown, And by the Fate of War run down;

Their Duty never was defeated, Nor from their Oaths and Faith retreated. For Loyalty is still the same, Whether it win or lose the Game; True as a Dial to the Sun, Although it be not shin'd upon. But when these Brethren in evil, Their Adversaries and the Devil, Began once more to shew them Play, And hopes, at least, to have a day, They Rallied in Parades of Woods, And unfrequented Solitudes, Conven'd at Midnight in Out-houses, T' appoint New-rising Rendezvouses, And with a Pertinacy unmatch'd For new Recruits of Danger watch'd: No sooner was one Blow diverted, But up another Party started. And, as if Nature too in haste, To furnish out Supplies as fast, Before her time had turn'd Destruction T' a new and numerous Production; No sooner those were overcome, But up rose others in their Room, That, like the Christian Faith, increast The more, the more they were Supprest: Whom neither Chains, nor Transportation, Proscription, Sale, nor Confiscation, Nor all the desperate events Of former try'd Experiments, Nor Wounds could terrifie, nor Mangling, To leave off Loyalty and Dangling, Nor Death (with all his Bones) affright From vent'ring to maintain the Right, From staking Life and Fortune down 'Gainst all together, for the Crown; But kept the Title of their Cause From Forfeiture, like Claims in Laws; And prov'd no Prosp'rous Usurpation Can ever settle on the Nation,

Until, in spight of Force and Treason, They put their Loy'lty in Possession; And by their Constancy and Faith, Destroy'd the Mighty men of Gath.

Toss'd in a furious Hurricane, Did Oliver give up his Reign; And was believ'd, as well by Saints, As Moral men and Miscreants, To Founder in the Stygian Ferry, Until he was retriev'd by Sterry: Who, in a false erroneous Dream, Mistook the New Jerusalem, Prophanely, for th' Apocryphal, False Heaven at the End o' th' Hall; Whither it was decreed by Fate, His Precious Reliques to Translate. So Romulus was seen before B' as Orthodox a Senator; From whose Divine Illumination He stole the Pagan Revelation.

Next him his Son and Heir Apparent Succeeded, though a Lame Vicegerent: Who first laid by the Parliament, The onely Crutch on which he leant; And then Sunk underneath the State, That rode him above Horseman's Weight.

And now the Saints began their Reign, For which th' had yearn'd so long in vain, And felt such Bowel-Hankerings, To see an Empire all of Kings, Deliver'd from th' Egyptian Awe Of Justice, Government, and Law, And free t' erect what Spiritual Cantons Should be reveal'd, or Gospel Hans-Towns, To Edifie upon the Ruines Of John of Leyden's old Out-goings, Who for a Weather-cock hung up

Upon their Mother-Churche's Top, Was made a Type by Providence Of all their Revelations since; And now fulfill'd by his Successors, Who equally mistook their Measures: For when they came to shape the Model, Not one could fit another's Noddle: But found their Light and Gifts more wide From Fadging then th' Unsanctifi'd; While ev'ry individual Brother Strove hand to fist against another, And still the Maddest and most Crackt Were found the busiest to Transact. For though most Hands dispatch apace, And make light work, (the Proverb says) Yet many different Intellects Are found t' have contrary Effects; And many Heads t' obstruct Intrigues, As slowest Insects have most Legs.

Some were for setting up a King, But all the rest for no such thing, Unless King Fesus: Others tamper'd For Fleetwood, Desborough, and Lambert; Some for the Rump, and some, more crafty, For Agitatours and the Safety; Some for the Gospel, and Massacres Of Spiritual Affidavit-makers, That swore to any Humane Regence Oaths of Supremacy and Allegeance, Yea though the Ablest swearing Saint, That youch'd the Bulls o' th' Covenant: Others for pulling down th' High places Of Synods and Provincial Classes, That us'd to make such hostile Inroads Upon the Saints, like Bloudy Nimrods: Some for Fulfilling Prophecies, And th' Extirpation of Excise; And some against th' Egyptian Bondage Of Holy-days, and paying Poundage:

Some for the cutting down of Groves, And rectifying Bakers Loaves; And some for finding out Expedients Against the Slav'ry of Obedience. Some were for Gospel-Ministers, And some for Red-Coat Seculars. As men most fit t' hold forth the Word, And wield the one and th' other Sword. Some were for carrying on the Work Against the Pope, and some the Turk: Some for engaging to suppress The Camisado of Surplices, That Gifts and Dispensations hinder'd, And turn'd to th' Outward Man the Inward; More proper for the cloudy Night Of Popery, then Gospel-Light. Others were for Abolishing That Tool of Matrimony, a Ring, With which th' unsanctifi'd Bridegroom Is marri'd onely to a Thumb; (As wise as Ringing of a Pig, That uses to break up ground and Dig;) The Bride to nothing but her Will, That nulls the After-marriage still. Some were for th' utter Extirpation Of Linsey-Woolsey in the Nation; And some against all Idolizing The Cross in Shop-Books, or Baptizing. Others, to make all things recant The Christian or Surname of Saint; And force all Churches, Streets, and Towns, The Holy Title to renounce. Some 'gainst a Third Estate of Souls, And bringing down the Price of Coals. Some for Abolishing Black-Pudding, And eating nothing with the Bloud in; To abrogate them Roots and Branches: While others were for eating Haunches Of Warriors, and now and then The Flesh of Kings and Mighty men;

And some for Breaking of their Bones With Rods of Ir'n by Secret ones; For Thrashing Mountains, and with Spells For Hallowing Carriers Packs and Bells. Things that the Legend never heard of, But made the Wicked sore afeard of. The Ouacks of Government (who sate At th' unregarded Helm of State, And understood, this wild Confusion Of fatal Madness and Delusion Must, sooner then a Prodigie, Portend Destruction to be nigh) Consider'd timely, how t' withdraw And save their Wind-pipes from the Law: For one Rencounter at the Bar Was worse then all th' had scap'd in War: And therefore met in Consultation, To Cant and Quack upon the Nation; Not for the sickly Patient's sake, Nor what to give, but what to take; To feel the Pulses of their Fees, More wise then fumbling Arteries; Prolong the Snuff of Life in pain, And from the Grave recover—Gain. 'Mong these there was a Politician, With more Heads then a Beast in Vision, And more Intrigues in ev'ry one Then all the Whores of Babylon; So politick, as if one eye Upon the other were a Spy; That to trapan the one to think The other Blind, both strove to blink: And in his dark Pragmatick way As busie as a Child at Play. H' had seen three Governments Run down, And had a hand in ev'ry one, Was for 'em and against 'em all, But Barb'rous when they came to fall: For by Trapanning th' old to Ruine, He made his Int'rest with the New one;

Plaid true and faithfull, though against His Conscience, and was still advanc'd. For by the Witch-craft of Rebellion Transform'd t' a feeble State-Camelion. By giving aim from side to side, He never fail'd to save his Tide, But got the Start of ev'ry State, And at a Change ne'r came too late: Could turn his Word, and Oath, and Faith, As many ways as in a Lath; By turning, wriggle, like a Screw Int' highest Trust, and out for New. For when h' had happily incurr'd, In stead of Hemp, to be preferr'd, And past upon a Government, He play'd his trick and out he went: But being out, and out of hopes To mount his Ladder (more) of Ropes, Would strive to raise himself upon The Publick Ruine and his own. So little did he understand The desp'rate Feats he took in hand. For when h' had got himself a Name For Fraud and Tricks; he spoil'd his Game, Had forc'd his Neck into a Nooze, To shew his play at Fast and Loose; And when he chanc'd t' escape, mistook For Art and Subtlety, his Luck. So right his Judgment was cut fit, And made a Tally to his Wit, And both together most Profound At Deeds of Darkness under ground: As th' Earth is easiest undermin'd By Vermine Impotent and Blind.

By all these Arts, and many more H' had practis'd long and much before, Our State-Artificer foresaw Which way the World began to draw. For as Old Sinners have all Points

O' th' Compass in their Bones and Joints, Can by their Pangs and Aches find All Turns and Changes of the Wind, And better then by Napier's Bones, Feel in their own the Age of Moons: So guilty Sinners in a State Can by their Crimes prognosticate, And in their Consciences feel Pain Some days before a Showr of Rain. He therefore wisely cast about All ways he could, t' insure his Throat; And hither came t' observe and smoke What Courses other Riskers took; And to the utmost doe his best To save himself, and Hang the rest.

To match this Saint, there was another, As busic and perverse a Brother, An Haberdasher of Small wares In Politicks and State-Affairs; More Jew then Rabbi Achitophel, And better gifted to Rebel: For when h' had taught his Tribe to Spouse The Cause, aloft, upon one House, He scorn'd to set his own in Order, But try'd another, and went further; So sullenly addicted still To's onely Principle, his Will, That whatsoe'r it chanc'd to prove, No force of Argument could move, Nor Law, nor Cavalcade of Ho'born, Could render half a grain less stubborn. For he at any time would hang, For th' opportunity t' harangue, And rather on a Gibbet dangle, Then miss his dear delight, to wrangle: In which his Parts were so accomplisht, That, right or wrong, he ne'r was non-plust; But still his Tongue ran on, the less Of weight it bore, with greater ease,

And with its Everlasting Clack Set all mens Ears upon the Rack. No sooner could a hint appear, But up he started to Pickere, And made the stoutest yield to mercy, When he ingag'd in Controversie: Not by the force of Carnal Reason, But indefatigable Teazing; With Volleys of eternal Babble, And Clamour more unanswerable. For though his Topicks, frail and weak, Could [ne'er] amount above a Freak: He still maintain'd 'em, like his Faults, Against the desperat'st Assaults; And back'd their feeble want of Sense With greater Heat and Confidence: As Bones of Hectors when they differ, The more th' are Cudgel'd, grow the Stiffer. Yet when his Profit moderated, The fury of his Heat abated: For nothing but his Interest Could lay his Devil of Contest. It was his Choice, or Chance, or Curse, T' espouse the Cause for Bett'r or worse; And with his worldly Goods and Wit, And Soul, and Body, worshipp'd it: But when he found the sullen Trapes Possest with th' Devil, Worms, and Claps, The Trojan Mare in Fole with Greeks Not half so full of Jadish Tricks, Though Squeamish in her outward Woman, As loose and rampant as $Dol\ common$; He still resolv'd to mend the matter, T' adhere and cleave the obstinater; And still the skittisher and looser Her Freaks appear'd, to sit the closer. For Fools are stubborn in their way; As Coins are hardned by th' Allay: And Obstinacy 's ne'r so stiff, As when 'tis in a wrong Belief.

These two, with others, being met, And close in Consultation set; After a discontented pause, And not without sufficient cause, The Oratour we mention'd late, Less troubled with the pangs of State, Then with his own impatience, To give himself first Audience, After he had a while look'd wise, At last broke silence, and the Ice.

Quoth he, There's nothing makes me doubt Our last Out-goings brought about, More then to see the Characters Of real Jealousies and Fears, Not feign'd, as once, but sadly horrid, Scor'd upon ev'ry Member's Forehead: Who, 'cause the Clouds are drawn together, And threaten sudden change of Weather, Feel Pangs and Aches of State-turns, And Revolutions in their Corns; And, since our Workings-out are crost, Throw up the Cause before 'tis lost. Was it to run away, we meant, When, taking of the Covenant, The lamest Cripples of the Brothers Took Oaths, to run before all others; But, in their own sense, onely swore To strive to run away before? And now would prove, the Words and Oath Ingage us to renounce them both? 'Tis true, the Cause is in the lurch, Between a right and Mungrel Church, The Presbyter and Independent, That stickle which shall make an end on't: And 'twas made out to us the last Expedient, —— (I mean, Margret's Fast) When Providence had been suborn'd, What answer was to be return'd. Else why should Tumults fright us now,

We have so many times gone through, And understand as well to tame, As, when they serve our turns, t' inflame? Have prov'd how inconsiderable Are all Engagements of the Rabble, Whose Frenzies must be reconcil'd With Drums and Rattles like a Child; But never prov'd so prosperous, As when they were led on by us. For all our Scouring of Religion Began with Tumults and Sedition; When Hurricanes of fierce Commotion Became strong Motives to Devotion; (As Carnal Seamen in a Storm Turn pious Converts, and reform;) When rusty Weapons with chalk'd Edges Maintain'd our feeble Priviledges, And brown Bills levied in the City Made Bills to pass the Grand Committee; When Zeal with aged Clubs and Gleaves Gave chase to Rochets and White Sleeves, And made the Church and State and Laws Submit t' old Iron and the Cause. And as we thriv'd by Tumults then, So might we better now agen, If we know how, as then we did, To use them rightly in our need. Tumults by which the Mutinous Betray themselves in stead of us; The Hollow-hearted Disaffected, And Close Malignant are detected; Who lay their Lives and Fortunes down, For Pledges to secure our own, And freely sacrifice their Ears, T' appease our Jealousies and Fears. And yet for all these Providences W' are offer'd, if we had our senses, We idly sit, like stupid Block-heads. Our hands committed to our Pockets, And nothing but our Tongues at large,

To get the Wretches a discharge. Like men condemn'd to Thunderbolts, Who, e'r the blow, become meer Dolts; Or Fools besotted with their Crimes, That know not how to shift betimes, And neither have the hearts to stay, Nor wit enough to run away. Who, if we could resolve on either, Might stand, or fall (at least) together: No mean nor trivial solaces To Partners in extream distress, Who use to lessen their Despairs, By parting them int' equal shares; As if the more there were to bear, They felt the weight the easier; And ev'ry one the gentler hung, The more he took his turn among.

But 'tis not come to that as yet, If we had Courage left or Wit; Who, when our Fate can be no worse, Are fitted for the bravest course; Have time to Rally, and prepare Our last and best defence, Despair; Despair, by which the gallant'st Feats Have been atchiev'd in greatest streights, And horrid'st dangers safely wav'd, By b'ing courageously out-brav'd. As IV ounds by wider wounds are heal'd, And Poisons by themselves expell'd. And so they might be now agen, If we were, what we should be, Men; And not so dully desperate, To side against our selves with Fate: As Criminals condemn'd to suffer, Are blinded first, and then turn'd over.

This comes of Breaking Covenants, And setting up Exauns of Saints, That Fine, like Aldermen, for Grace,

To be excus'd the Efficace. For Spiritual men are too Transcendent, That mount their Banks for Independent, To hang like Mahomet in th' Air, Or St. Ignatius at his Prayer, By pure Geometry, and bate Dependency on Church or State; Disdain the Pedantry o' th' Letter, And since Obedience is better (The Scripture says) then Sacrifice, Presume the less on't will suffice; And scorn to have the moderat'st stints Prescrib'd their peremptory Hints, Or any Opinion, true or false, Declar'd as such, in Doctrinals, But left at large to make their best on, Without b'ing call'd t' account or question.

Interpret all the Spleen reveals, As Whittington explain'd the Bells; And bid themselves turn back agen Lord May'rs of New Jerusalem. But look so big and over-grown, They scorn their Edifiers t' own, Who taught them all their sprinkling Lessons, Their Tones and sanctifi'd expressions; Bestow'd their Gifts upon a Saint, Like Charity on those that want, And learn'd th' Apocryphal Bigots, T' inspire themselves with Short-hand Notes: For which they scorn and hate them worse, Then Dogs and Cats do Sowgelders. For who first bred them up to Pray, And Teach, the House of Commons way? Where had they all their Gifted Phrases, But from our Calamies and Cases? Without whose Sprinkling and Sowing, Who e'r had heard of Nye or Owen? Their dispensations had been stifled, But for our Adoniram Bifield.

And had They not begun the War, Th' had ne'r been Sainted as they are. For Saints in Peace degenerate, And draindle down to Reprobate: Their Zeal corrupts like standing Water, In th' Intervals of War and slaughter; Abates the sharpness of its Edge, Without the Pow'r of Sacriledge. And though th' have Tricks to cast their Sins, As easie as Serpents do their Skins, That in a while grow out agen, In Peace they turn meer Carnal men, And from the most Refin'd of Saints, As naturally grow Miscreants, As Barnacles turn Soland-Geese In th' Islands of the Orcades. Their Dispensation's but a Ticket, For their conforming to the Wicked; With whom their greatest difference Lies more in words and shew, then sense. For as the Pope, that keeps the Gate Of Heaven, wears three Crowns in state; So he that keeps the Gate of Hell, Proud Cerberus, wears three Heads as well: And, if the World has any troth, Some have been Canoniz'd in both. But that which does them greatest harm, Their Spiritual Gizzards are too warm, Which puts the over-heated Sots In Fevers still, like other Goats. For though the Whore bends Hereticks With Flames of Fire, like crooked Sticks; Our Schismaticks so vastly differ, Th' hotter they are, they grow the stiffer; Still setting off their spiritual goods, With fierce and pertinacious fewds. For Zeal's a dreadfull Termagant, That teaches Saints to Tear and Rant, And Independents, to profess The Doctrine of Dependences;

Turns meek and sneaking Secret ones, To Raw-heads fierce and Bloody Bones: And not content with endless quarrels Against the Wicked and their Morals, The Gibellins, for want of Guelfs, Divert their rage upon themselves. For now the War is not between The Brethren and the Men of sin; But Saint and Saint, to spill the Blood Of one another's Brotherhood; Where neither side can lay pretence To Liberty of Conscience, Or zealous suff'ring for the Cause, To gain one Groats-worth of Applause: For though endur'd with Resolution, 'Twill ne'r amount to Persecution. Shall Precious Saints and Secret ones Break one another's outward Bones? And eat the Flesh of Brethren, In stead of Kings and Mighty men? When Fiends agree among themselves, Shall they be found the greater Elves? When Bel's at Union with the Dragon, And Baal-Peor Friends with Dagon, When Savage Bears agree with Bears, Shall Secret ones lug Saints by th' Ears, And not atone their fatal wrath, When common Danger threatens both? Shall Mastiffs by the Collars pull'd, Engag'd with Bulls, let go their hold? And Saints, whose Necks are pawn'd at stake, No notice of the Danger take? But though no Pow'r of Heaven or Hell Can pacifie Fanatick Zeal; Who would not guess there might be hopes, The fear of Gallowses and Ropes Before their Eyes might reconcile Their Animosities a while? At least until th'had a clear Stage, And equal Freedom to engage,

Without the danger of Surprise By both our common Enemies?

This none but we alone could doubt, Who understand their Workings-out, And know 'em both in Soul and Conscience, Giv'n up t' as Reprobate a Non-sense, As Spiritual Out-laws whom the Pow'r Of Miracle can ne'r restore. We whom at first they set up under, In Revelation onely of Plunder, Who since have had so many Trials Of their encroaching Self-denials, That rook'd upon us with design To Out-reform and Undermine; Took all our Interests and Commands Perfidiously out of our hands; Involv'd us in the Guilt of Bloud, Without the Motive-gains allow'd, And made us serve as Ministerial, Like younger Sons of Father Belial.

And yet for all th' inhumane wrong Th' had done us and the Cause so long, We never fail'd to carry on The Work still, as we had begun: But true and faithfully obey'd, And neither Preach'd them hurt, nor Pray'd; Nor troubled them to crop our Ears, Nor hang us like the Cavaliers; Nor put them to the Charge of Gaols, To find us Pillories and Carts-tails, Or Hangman's Wages, which the State Was forc'd (before them) to be at, That cut like Tallies to the Stumps Our Ears for keeping true Accompts, And burnt our Vessels, like a New-Seal'd Peck or Bushel, for b'ing true. But hand in hand, like faithfull Brothers, Held forth the Cause against all others,

Disdaining equally to yield One Syllable of what we held. And though we differ'd now and then Bout outward things, and outward Men: Our inward Men and constant Frame Of Spirit still were near the same. And till they first began to Cant, And Sprinkle down the Covenant, We ne'r had Call in any place, Nor dream'd of Teaching down Free-Grace; But join'd our Gifts perpetually Against the Common Enemy: Although 'twas our and their Opinion, Each other's Church was but a Rimmon. And yet for all this Gospel-Union, And outward shew of Church-Communion, They'l ne'r admit us to our shares, Of Ruling Church or State Affairs; Nor give us leave t'absolve, or sentence T' our own Conditions of Repentance: But shar'd our Dividend o' th' Crown We had so painfully Preach'd down; And forc'd us, though against the Grain, T' have Calls to teach it up again. For 'twas but Justice to Restore The Wrongs we had receiv'd before; And when 'twas held forth in our way, W' had been ungratefull not to pay: Who for the Right w' have done the Nation, Have earn'd our Temporal Salvation, And put our Vessels in a way, Once more to come again in Play. For if the turning of us out, Has brought this Providence about, And that our onely Suffering Is able to bring in the King: What would our Actions not have done, Had we been suffer'd to go on? And therefore may pretend t' a share At least in carrying on th' Affair.

But whether that be so or not, W' have done enough to have it thought; And that's as good as if w' had don't, And easier past upon account. For if it be but half deny'd, 'Tis half as good as justify'd. The World is nat'rally averse To all the truth it sees or hears, But swallows Non-sense and a Lie With greediness and gluttony; And though it have the Pique, and long, 'Tis still for something in the wrong: As Women long, when th' are with Child, For things extravagant and wild, For Meats ridiculous, and fulsom, But seldom any thing that's wholsom; And, like the World, Men's Jobbernoles Turn round upon their Ears, the Poles; And what th' are confidently told, By no sense else can be controll'd.

And this, perhaps, may prove the means, Once more, to hedge in Providence. For, as Relapses make Diseases More desp'rate than their first Accesses; If we but get again in Pow'r, Our Work is easier than before; And we more ready and expert I'th' Mystery, to do our Part. We, who did rather undertake The first War to create, than make: And when of Nothing 'twas begun, Rais'd Funds as strange, to carry't on; Trepann'd the State, and fac'd it down, With Plots and Projects of our own: And if we did such Feats at first, What can we now w'are better vers'd? Who have a freer Latitude Than Sinners give themselves allow'd? And therefore likeliest to bring in

On fairest Terms, our Discipline. To which it was reveal'd long since, We were ordain'd by Providence: When Three Saints Ears, our Predecessors, The Cause's Primitive Confessors, B'ing Crucified, the Nation stood In just so many Years of Blood: That multipli'd by Six, express'd The perfect Number of the Beast. And prov'd that we must be the Men, To bring this Work about agen: And those who laid the first Foundation, Compleat the thorow Reformation: For who have Gifts to carry on So great a Work, but we alone? What Churches have such able Pastors? And Precious, Powerful, Preaching-Masters? Possess'd with Absolute Dominions, O'r Brethren's Purses and Opinions? And trusted with the Double Keys Of Heaven, and their Ware-houses: Who, when the Cause is in Distress, Can furnish out what Sums they please, That Brooding lie in Bankers Hands, To be dispos'd at their Commands: And daily increase and multiply, With Doctrine, Use and Usury. Can fetch in Parties (as in War, All other Heads of Cattel are;) From th'Enemy of all Religions, As well as High and Low Conditions; And share them from Blew Ribbands down. To all Blew Aprons in the Town. From Ladies hurried in Calleches, With Cornets at their Footmen's Breeches, To Bawds as fat as Mother Nab. All Guts and Belly like a Crab. Our Party's great, and better ti'd With Oaths, and Trade, than any side: Has one considerabl' Improvement,

To double fortifie the Cov'nant: I mean our Covenants to purchase Delinquents Titles and the Churches: That pass in Sale, from Hand, to Hand, Among our selves, for Current Land. And Rise or Fall, like Indian Actions, According to the Rate of Factions: Our best Reserve for Reformation, When New-Outgoings give occasion: That keeps the Loins of Brethren girt, The Covenant (their Creed) t'assert: And when th' have pack'd a Parliament, Will once more try th' Expedient, Who can already muster Friends, To serve for Members, to our Ends: That represent no part o'th' Nation, But Fisher's-Folly Congregation: Are only Tools to our Intrigues, And sit like Geese to hatch our Eggs: Who, by their Precedents of Wit, T'out-fast, out-leiter, and out-sit: Can order matters under hand. To put all Bus'ness to a stand: Lay Publick Bills aside, for Private, And make 'em one another drive out; Divert the Great and Necessary, With Trifles to contest and vary; And make the Nation represent, And serve for us in Parliament; Cut out more Work than can be done On Plato's Year; but finish none, Unless it be the Bulls of Lenthal, That always past for Fundamental. Can set up Grandee against Grandee, To squander time away, and Bandy. Make Lords and Commoners lay Sieges To one another's Privileges; And, rather than compound the Quarrel, Engage, to th'inevitable peril Of both their Ruins; th'only Scope

And Consolation of our Hope: Who, though we do not play the Game, Assist as much by giving Aim. Can introduce our ancient Arts, For Heads of Factions, t'act their Parts. Know what a Leading-Voice is worth; A Seconding, a Third, or Fourth: How much a Casting Vote comes to, That turns up Trump, of I, or No; And by adjusting all at th' End, Share ev'ry one his Dividend. An Art that so much Study cost, And now's in danger to be lost; Unless our Ancient Virtuoso's, That found it out, get into th' Houses. These are the Courses that we took To carry things, by Hook, or Crook: And practic'd down from Forty four, Until they turn'd us out of Door; Besides the Herds of Boutefeus, We set on work, without the House. When ev'ry Knight and Citizen Kept Legislative Journey-men, To bring them in Intelligence From all Points of the Rabbles Sense; And fill the Lobbies of both Houses With Politick Important Buzzes: Set up Committees of Cabals, To pack Designs without the Walls. Examine, and draw up all News, And fit it to our present Use. Agree upon the Plot o'th' Farce, And every one his Part rehearse. Make O's of Answers, to way-lay What th' other Parties like to say: What Repartees, and smart Reflections Shall be return'd to all Objections: And who shall break the Master-Fest, And what, and how, upon the rest: Help Pamphlets out, with safe Editions,

Of Proper Slanders and Seditions: And Treason for a Token send, By Letter, to a Country Friend. Disperse Lampoons, the only Wit, That Men, like Burglary, commit: Wit, falser than a Padder's Face, That all its Owner does, betrays: Who therefore dare not trust it, when He's in his Calling, to be seen. Disperse the Dung on Barren Earth, To bring new Weeds of Discord forth. Be sure to keep up Congregations, In spight of Laws and Proclamations; For Chiarlatans can do no good, Until th' are mounted in a Crowd: And when th' are punish'd, all the Hurt Is but to fare the better for't; As long as Confessors are sure Of double Pay for all th' endure: And what they earn in Persecution, Are paid t'a Groat in Contribution. Whence some Tub-holders-forth have made In Powdring-Tubs, their richest Trade: And while they kept their Shops in Prison, Have found their Prices strangely risen. Disdain to own the least Regret For all the Christian Blood w'have let; 'Twill save our Credit, and maintain Our Title, to do so again: That needs not cost one Dram of Sense, But Pertinacious Impudence: Our Constancy t'our Principles, In time, will wear out all things else; Like Marble Statues, rub'd to pieces, With Gallantry of Pilgrim's Kisses: While those who turn and wind their Oaths Have swell'd, and sunk like other Froths. Prevail'd a while, but 'twas not long, Before from World to World they swung: As they had turn'd from side, to side;

And as the Changelings liv'd they died.

This said; the impatient States-Monger Could now contain himself no longer; Who had not spar'd to shew his Picques, Against th' Haranguers Politicks? With smart Remarks of Leering Faces, And Annotations of Grimaces, After h'had ministred a Dose Of Snuff-Mundungus, to his Nose; And powder'd th'inside of his Skull, Instead of th'outward Fobbernol: He shook it, with a scornful Look On th' Adversary, and thus he spoke. In Dressing a Calve's Head, although The Tongue and Brains together go, Both keep so great a distance here, 'Tis strange, if ever they come near: For, who did ever play his Gambols, With such unsufferable Rambles? To make the bringing in the King, And keeping of him out, one thing? Which none can do, but those who swore T'as Point-blank Non-sense heretofore: That to Defend was to Invade, And to Assassinate, to Aid: Unless because you drove him out, (And that was never made a Doubt) No Pow'r is able to restore And bring him in, but on your Score. A Spiritual Doctrine, that conduces Most properly, to all your Uses. 'Tis true, a Scorpion's Oyl is said To cure the Wounds the Vermine made; And Weapons drest with Salves, restore And heal the Hurts they gave before: But whether Presbyterians have So much Good Nature as the Salve, Or Virtue in them as the Vermine, Those who have tri'd 'em can determine.

Indeed, 'tis pity you should miss Th' Arrears of all your Services, And for th' Eternal Obligation Y'have laid upon th' Ungrateful Nation: B'us'd so unconscionable hard, As not to find a Just Reward. For letting Rapine loose, and Murther, To rage just so far, but no further: And setting all the Land on fire, To burn t'a Scantling, but no higher: For vent'ring to assassinate, And cut the Throats of Church and State: And not be allow'd the fittest Men To take the Charge of both agen. Especially, that have the Grace Of Self-denying, Gifted Face; Who, when your Projects have miscarri'd, Can lay them, with undaunted Fore-head, On those you painfully trepann'd, And sprinkled in at Second Hand. As we have been, to share the Guilt Of Christian Blood, devoutly spilt; For so our Ignorance was flam'd, To damn our selves, t'avoid being damn'd: Till finding your old Foe, the Hang-man, Was like to lurch you at Back-Gammon; And win your Necks upon the Set, As well as ours, who did but Bet: (For he had drawn your Ears before, And nick'd 'em on the self-same Score:) We threw the Box and Dice away, Before y'had lost us at foul Play: And brought you down to Rook, and Lye, And Fancy only, on the By. Redeem'd your forfeit Jobbernoles, From pearching upon lofty Poles: And rescued all your Outward Traitors From hanging up like; Allegators: For which ingeniously y'have shew'd Your Presbyterian Gratitude:

Would freely have paid us home in kind, And not have been one Rope behind. Those were your Motives to divide, And scruple, on the other side, To turn your Zealous Frauds, and Force, To Fits of Conscience and Remorse. To be convinc'd they were in vain, And face about for New again: For Truth no more unvail'd your Eyes, Than Maggots are convinc'd to Flies: And therefore, all your Lights and Calls Are but Apocryphal, and False, To charge us with the Consequences Of all your Native Insolences. That to your own Imperious Wills, Laid Law and Gospel Neck and Heels: Corrupted the Old Testament, To serve the New for Precedent: T'amend its Errors and Defects, With Murther and Rebellion-Texts: Of which there is not any one In all the Book, to sow upon: And therefore (from your Tribe) the Fews Held Christian Doctrine forth and Use: As Mahomet (your Chief) began To mix them in the Alchoran: Denounc'd, and pray'd, with Fierce Devotion, And bended Elbows on the Cushion: Stole from the Beggars all your Tones, And Gifted-Mortifying Groans: Had Lights where better Eyes were blind, As Pigs are said to see the Wind: Fill'd Bedlam with Predestination, And Knights-Bridge with Illumination: Made Children, with your Tones, to run for't, As bad as Bloody Bones or Lunsford. While Women, Great with Child, miscarri'd, For being to Malignants marri'd: Transform'd all Wives to Dalilahs, Whose Husbands were not for the Cause:

And turn'd the Men to Ten-Horn'd Cattel, Because they came not out to Battel: Made Taylors Prentices turn Heroes, For fear of being transform'd to Meroz; And rather forfeit their Indentures, Than not espouse the Saints Adventures.

Could Transubstantiate, Metamorphose,
And charm whole Herds of Beasts, like Orpheus;
Inchant the King's and Churches Lands,
T'obey and follow your Commands:
And settle on a New Free-hold,
As Marcly-Hill had done of Old.
Could turn the Covenant, and translate
The Gospel into Spoons and Plate:
Expound upon all Merchants Cashes,
And open th'intricatest Places:
Could Catechise a Money-Box,
And prove all Powches Orthodox;
Until the Cause became a Damon,
And Pythias, the wicked Mammon.

And yet, in spight of all your Charms, To conjure Legion up, in Arms; And raise more Devils in the Rout, Than e'er y'were able to cast out: Y'have been reduc'd, and by those Fools, Bred up (you say) in your own Schools; Who, though but gifted at your feet, Have made it plain, they have more Wit. By whom you have been so oft trepan'd, And held forth out of all Command: Out-gifted, Out-impuls'd, Out-done, And Out-reveal'd at Carryings on. Of all your Dispensations Worm'd, Out-providenc'd, and Out-reform'd. Ejected out of Church, and State, And all things, but the People's Hate: And spirited out of th' Enjoyments Of precious, edifying Employments;

By those who lodg'd their Gifts and Graces, Like better Bowlers, in your Places. All which you bore, with Resolution, Charg'd on th' Account of Persecution; And though, most Righteously opprest, Against your Wills, still acquiest: And never Hum'd and Hab'd Sedition, Nor snuffled Treason, nor Misprision. That is, because you never durst; For, had you preach'd and pray'd your worst, Alas, you were no longer able To raise your Posse of the Rabble: One single Red-Coat Sentinel Out-charm'd the Magick of the Spell; And with his Squirt-fire, could disperse Whole Troops, with Chapter rais'd, and Verse: We knew too well those tricks of yours, To leave it ever in your Powers: Or trust our Safeties, or Undoings, To your Disposing of Out-goings; Or to your Ordering Providence, One Farthings-worth of Consequence.

For, had you Pow'r to undermine,
Or Wit to carry a Design,
Or Correspondence, to trepan,
Inveagle, or betray one Man;
There's nothing else that intervenes,
And bars your Zeal to use the means.
And therefore wondrous like, no doubt,
To bring in Kings, or keep them out:
Brave undertakers to restore,
That could not keep your selves in pow'r
T'advance the Interests of the Crown,
That wanted Wit to keep your own.

'Tis true, you have (for I'ld be loth To wrong ye) done your Parts, in Both; To keep him out, and bring him in, As Grace is introduc'd by Sin;

For 'twas your zealous want of Sense, And sanctifi'd Impertinence: Your carrying business in a Huddle, That fore'd our Rulers to New-Model; Oblig'd the State to tack about, And turn you, Root and Branch, all out; To Reformado, One and All, T'your Great Croysado, General: Your greedy slav'ring to devour Before, 'twas in your Clutches, Pow'r. That sprung the Game you were to set, Before y'had time to draw the Net: Your spight to see the Churches Lands Divided into other Hands. And all your Sacrilegious Ventures, Laid out on Tickets and Debentures; Your Envy to be sprinkled down, By Under Churches in the Town. And no Course us'd to stop their Mouths, Nor th' Independents spreading Growths. All which consider'd, 'tis most true, None bring him in so much as you. Who have prevail'd, beyond their Plots. Their Midnight Junto's, and seal'd Knots; That thrive more by your Zealous Piques, Than all their own rash Politicks. And this way you may claim a Share, In carrying (as you brag) th' Affair; Else Frogs, and Toads, that croak'd the Fews, From Pharo, and his Brick-kills-loose: And Flies, and Mange, that set them free, From Task-Masters, and Slavery: Were likelier to do the Feat, In any indiffrent Man's Conceit; For who e'er heard of Restoration, Until your thorough Reformation; That is, the King's and Churches Lands Were sequestred int'other Hands? For, only then, and not before. Your Eyes were opened to restore.

And when the Work was carrying on, Who crost it, but your selves alone? As, by a World of Hints, appears, All plain, and extant, as your Ears. But first o'th' first; The Isle of Wight Will rise up, if you should deny't; Where Hinderson, and th'other Masses, Were sent to cap Texts, and put Cases, To pass for Deep and Learned Scholars; Although but Paltry, Ob-and-Sollers: As if th'unseasonable Fools Had been a Coursing in the Schools; Until th'had prov'd the Devil Author O'th' Covenant; and the Cause, his Daughter: For, when they charg'd him with the Guilt Of all the Blood that had been spilt; They did not mean, He wrought th'Effusion In Person, like Sir Pride, or Hughson; But only those, who first begun The Quarrel, were by him set on. And who could those be but the Saints, Those Reformation-Termegants? But e'er this past, the wise Debate Spent so much time, it grew too late; For Oliver had gotten Ground, T'enclose them, with his Warriers, round: Had brought his Providence about, And turn'd the untimely Sophists out. Nor had the Uxbridge bus'ness less Of Non-sence in't, and sottishness, When from a Scoundrel Holder forth, The Scum, as well as Son o'th' Earth, Your Mighty Senators took Law At his Command, were forc'd t'withdraw; And sacrifice the Peace o'th' Nation To Doctrine, Use and Application. So when the Scots, your constant Cronies, Th' Espousers of your Cause, and Monies: Who had so often, in your Aid, So many ways been soundly paid;

Came in at last, for better Ends,
To prove themselves your trusty Friends,
You basely left them, and the Church,
Th'had train'd you up to, in the Lurch,
And suffer'd your own Tribe of Christians
To fall before, as true Philistines.
This shews what Utensils y'have been,
To bring the King's Concernments in:
Which is so far from being true,
That none but He can bring in you.
And if he take you into trust,
Will find you most exactly just:
Such as will punctually repay
With double Interest, and betray.

Not that I think those Pantomimes, IV ho vary Action with the Times: Are less ingenious in their Art, Than those who dully act one Part; Or those who turn from Side, to Side; More guilty than the Wind and Tide. All Countries are a Wise Man's Home, And so are Governments to some, Who change them for the same Intrigues That States-Men use in breaking Leagues: While others in Old Faiths and Troths, Look odd, as in Out-of-fashion'd Cloaths: And nastier, in an old Opinion, Than those who never shift their Linnen.

For True and Faithful's sure to lose, Which way soever the Game goes: And whether Parties lose or win, Is always nick'd, or else hedg'd in. While Pow'r usurp'd like stol'n delight, Is more bewitching than the Right. And when the Times begin to alter, None rise so high as from the Halter.

And so may we, if w'have but Sense

To use the necessary Means,
And not your usual Stratagems
On one another, Lights and Dreams.
To stand on Terms as positive,
As if we did not take, but give:
Set up the Covenant on Crutches,
'Gainst those who have us in their Clutches;
And dream of pulling Churches down,
Before w'are sure to prop our own:
Your constant Method of Proceeding,
Without the Carnal Means of Heeding:
Who, 'twixt your Inward Sense, and Outward,
Are worse, than if y'had none, accoutred.

I grant, all Courses are in vain, Unless we can get in again; The only way that's left us now, But all the difficulty's, How? 'Tis true! w'have Money, th'only Pow'r That all Mankind falls down before: Money, that, like the Swords of Kings, Is the last Reason of all things. And therefore, need not doubt our Play Has all Advantages that way; As long as Men have Faith to sell, And meet with those that can pay well. Whose half-stary'd Pride and Avarice, One Church and State will not suffice, T'expose to Sale; beside the Wages Of storing Plagues to after Ages. Nor is our Money less our own, Than 'twas before we laid it down: For 'twill return, and turn t'Account, If we are brought in Play upon't; Or, but by Casting Knaves, get in, What Pow'r can hinder us to win? We know the Arts we us'd before, In Peace and War, and something more: And by the unfortunate Events, Can mend our next Experiments.

273

For, when w'are taken into Trust, How easie are the Wisest choust? Who see but th'out-sides of our Feats, And not their secret Springs and Weights; And while th'are busie at their ease, Can carry what Designs we please: How easie is't to serve for Agents, To prosecute our old Engagements? To keep the Good Old Cause on Foot, And present Power from taking Root? Inflame them both with false Alarms, Of Plots, and Parties, taking Arms; To keep the Nation's Wounds too wide For healing up of Side to Side. Profess the passionat'st Concerns, For both their Interests, by Turns. The only way t'improve our own, By dealing faithfully with none; (As Bowls run true, by being made Of purpose false, and to be sway'd) For, if we should be true to either, 'Twould turn us out of both together: And therefore have no other Means, To stand upon our own Defence; But keeping up our Ancient Party In Vigor, Confident, and Hearty: To reconcile our late Dissenters, Our Brethren, though by other Venters, Unite them, and their different Maggots, As long and short Sticks are in Faggots. And make them joyn again as close, As when they first began t'Espouse; Erect them into Separate, New Tewish Tribes, in Church and State; To joyn in Marriage and Commerce, And only among themselves Converse. And all that are not of their Mind, Make Enemies to all Mankind: Take all Religions in and stickle, From Conclave, down to Conventicle;

Agreeing still, or disagreeing,
According to the Light in Being.
Sometimes, for Liberty of Conscience,
And Spiritual Mis-rule, in one Sense:
But in another quite contrary,
As Dispensations chance to vary:
And stand for, as the Times will bear it,
All Contradictions of the Spirit:
Protect their Emissaries, impowr'd
To preach Sedition and the Word:
And when th'are hamper'd by the Laws,
Release the Lab'rers for the Cause;
And turn the Persecution back,
On those that made the first Attack.

To keep them equally in awe, From breaking, or maintaining Law; And when they have their Fits too soon, Before the Full-Tides of the Moon: Put off their Zeal t'a fitter Season, For sowing Faction in, and Treason; And keep them hooded, and their Churches, Like Hawks from bating on their Perches. That when the Blessed Time shall come, Of quitting Babylon and Rome, They may be ready to restore Their own Fift-Monarchy, once more; Mean while, be better Arm'd to Fence, Against Revolts of Providence; By watching narrowly, and snapping All blind sides of it, as they happen: For, if Success could make us Saints, Our Ruin turn'd us Miscreants: A Scandal that would fall too hard Upon a Few, and unprepar'd.

These are the Courses we must run, Spight of our Hearts, or be undone: And not to stand on Terms and Freaks, Before we have secur'd our Necks.

But do our Work, as out of sight, As Stars by Day, and Suns by Night: All Licence of the People own, In opposition to the Crown. And for the Crown as fiercely side, The Head and Body to divide; The end of all we first design'd, And all that yet remains behind: Be sure to spare no publick Rapine, On all Emergencies that happen; For 'tis as easie to supplant Authority, as Men in want: As some of us, in trusts, have made The one hand with the other Trade; Gain'd vastly, by their Joint-Endeavour; The Right a Thief, the Left Receiver: And what the one, by tricks, fore-stall'd, The other, by as sly, Retail'd. For Gain has wonderful Effects, T'improve the Factory of Sects; The Rule of Faith in all Professions, And great Diana of the Ephesians: Whence turning of Religion's made The means to turn and wind a Trade. And though some change it for the worse, They put themselves into a Course; And draw in store of Customers, To thrive the better in Commerce: For, all Religions flock together, Like Tame, and Wild-Fowl of a Feather; To nab the Itches of their Sects: As Jades do one another's Necks. Hence 'tis, Hypocrisie, as well, Will serve t'improve a Church, as Zeal: As Persecution, or Promotion, Do equally advance Devotion.

Let Business, like ill Watches, go, Sometime too fast, sometime too slow: For, things in order are put out

So easie, Ease it self will do't.
But when the Feat's design'd and meant,
What Miracle can bar th'event?
For 'tis more easie to betray,
Than ruin any other way.

All possible occasions start,
The Weighty'st Matters to divert:
Obstruct, Perplex, Distract, Intangle,
And lay perpetual Trains to wrangle:
But in Affairs of less Import,
That neither do us Good nor Hurt,
And they receive as little by,
Out-fawn as much, and Out-comply:
And seem as scrupulously just,
To bait our Hooks for greater Trust.

But still be careful to cry down All publick Actions, though our own: The least Miscarriage aggravate, And charge it all upon the State: Express the horrid'st Detestation, And pity the distracted Nation. Tell Stories, scandalous and false, I'th'proper Language of Cabals: Where all a subtil States-man says Is half in Words, and half in Face: (As Spaniards talk in Dialogues, Of Heads and Shoulders, Nods and Shrugs) Entrust it under solemn Vows Of Mum and Silence, and the Rose To be Retail'd again in Whispers, For th'easie credulous to disperse.

Thus far the States-man. When a Shout, Heard at a distance, put him out. And strait another, all agast, Rush'd in with equal Fear and Haste: Who star'd about, as pale as Death, And for a while, as out of Breath;

Till having gather'd up his Wits, He thus began his Tale by fits.

That beastly Rabble,—that came down From all the Garrets ____ in the Town, And Stalls, and Shop-boards, --- in vast Swarms, With new-chalk'd Bills, —and rusty Arms, To cry the Cause-up, heretofore, And bawl the Bishops—out of Door; Are now drawn up,—in greater Shoals, To Roast-and Boil us on the Coals: And all the Grandees-of our Members Are Carbonading on—the Embers; Knights, Citizens and Burgesses-Held forth by Rumps-of Pigs and Geese. That serve for Characters—and Badges. To represent their Personages. Each Bone-fire is a Funeral-Pile, In which they Roast, and Scorch, and Broil; And ev'ry Representative Have vow'd to Roast-and Broil alive; And 'tis a Miracle, we are not Already, sacrific'd Incarnate. For, while we wrangle here, and jar, W'are Grylly'd all at Temple Bar: Some, on the Sign-post of an Ale-house, Hang in Effigy, on the Gallows, Made up of Rags, to personate Respective Officers of State; That henceforth they may stand reputed, Proscrib'd in Law, and Executed, And while the Work is carrying on, Be ready Listed under Dun; That worthy Patriot, once the Bellows, And Tinder-box of all his Fellows. The activ'st Member of the Five, As well as the most Primitive: Who, for his faithful Service then, Is chosen for a Fifth agen; (For, since the State has made a Quint

Of Generals, he's listed in't.)
This Worthy, as the World will say,
Is paid in Specie, his own way;
For, moulded to the Life in Clouts,
Th'have pick'd from Dung-hills hereabouts:
He's mounted on a Hazel Bavin,
A crop'd Malignant Baker gave 'em:
And, to the largest Bonefire riding,
Th'have roasted Cook already, and Pride-m.
On whom, in Equipage, and State,
His Scare-crow Fellow-Members wait;
And March in Order, two and two,
As at Thanksgivings th'us'd to do:
Each in a tatter'd Talismane,
Like Vermine in Effigie slain.

But (what's more dreadful than the rest) Those Rumps are but the Tail o'th' Beast: Set up by Popish Engineers, As by the Crackers plainly appears: For, none but Jesuits have a Mission, To preach the Faith with Ammunition; And propagate the Church with Powder, Their Founder was a blown up Soldier. These Spiritual Pioneers o'th' Whores, That have the Charge of all her Stores; Since first they fail'd in their Designs, To take in Heav'n by springing Mines; And with unanswerable Barrels Of Gun-powder, dispute their Quarrels: Now take a Course more practicable, By laying Trains to fire the Rabble, And blow us up in th'open Streets; Disguis'd in Rumps, like Sambenites; More like to Ruin, and Confound, Than all their Doctrines under-ground.

Nor have they chosen Rumps amiss, For Symbols of State-Mysteries; Though some suppose, 'twas but to shew

How much they scorn'd the Saints, The Few; Who, 'cause th' are wasted to the Stumps, Are represented best by Rumps.
But Jesuites have deeper Reaches
In all their Politick Far-fetches:
And from their Coptick Priest, Kirkerus,
Found out this Mystick way to jear us.

For, as the Ægyptians us'd, by Bees, T'express their Antick Ptolomies; And by their Stings, the Swords they wore, Held forth Authority and Pow'r: Because these subtil Animals Bear all their Int'rests in their Tails; And when th'are once impair'd in that, Are banish'd their Well-order'd State: They thought, all Governments were best, By Hieroglyphick Rumps, exprest.

For, as in Bodies Natural, The Rump's the Fundament of all; So, in a Commonwealth, or Realm, The Government is call'd the Helm: With which, like Vessels under Sail, Th'are turn'd and winded by the Tail. The Tail, which Birds and Fishes steer Their Courses with, through Sea and Air; To whom the Rudder of the Rump is The same thing With the Stern and Compass. This shews, how perfectly the Rump And Commonwealth in Nature jump. For, as a Fly, that goes to Bed, Rests with his Tail above his Head; So in this Mungril State of ours, The Rabble are the Supreme Powers. That Hors'd us on their Backs to show us A Fadish trick at last, and throw us.

The Learned Rabbins of the Jews Write, there's a Bone, which they call Luez,

I'th' Rump of Man, of such a Vertue, No force in Nature can do hurt to; And therefore, at the last Great Day, All th'other Members shall, they say, Spring out of this, as from a Seed, All sorts of Vegetals proceed: From whence, the Learned Sons of Art, Os Sacrum, justly stile that part.

Then what can better represent,
Than this Rump-bone, the Parliament?
That after several rude Ejections,
And as prodigious Resurrections;
With new Reversions of nine Lives,
Starts up, and, like a Cat, revives?

But now, alas, th'are all expir'd,
And th'House, as well as Members, fir'd;
Consum'd in Kennels, by the Rout,
With which they other Fires put out:
Condemn'd t'ungoverning Distress,
And Paultry, Private Wretchedness:
Worse than the Devil to Privation,
Beyond all hopes of Restauration;
And parted like the Body and Soul,
From all Dominion and Controul.

We, who could lately, with a Look, Ena&, Establish, or Revoke; Whose Arbitrary Nods gave Law, And Frowns kept multitudes in Awe: Before the Bluster of whose Huff, All Hats, as in a Storm, flew off. Ador'd and bow'd to, by the Great, Down to the Foot-man, and Valet. Had more bent Knees than Chappel-Mats, And Prayers, than the Crowns of Hats; Shall now be scorn'd as wretchedly, For Ruin's just as low as high; Which might be suffer'd, were it all

The Horrour, that attends our Fall:
For, some of us have Scores more large
Than Heads and Quarters can discharge.
And others who, by restless scraping,
With Publick Frauds, and Private Rapine;
Have mighty Heaps of Wealth amass'd,
Would gladly lay down all at last:
And to be but undone, Entail
Their Vessels on perpetual Jail;
And bless the Devil to let them Farms
Of forfeit Souls, on no worse Terms.

This said, A near and louder Shout Put all th'Assembly to the Rout: Who now begun tout-run their fear, As Horses do, from those that bear: But crouded on, with so much haste, Until th'had block'd the Passage fast; And Barricadoed it with Haunches Of Outward Men, and Bulks, and Paunches: That with their shoulders strove to squeeze, And rather save a Cripled piece Of all their crush'd and broken Members, Than have them Grillied on the Embers: Still pressing on with heavy Packs, Of one another, on their Backs: The Van-Guard could no longer bear The Charges of the Forlorn Rere; But born down head-long by the Rout, Were trampled sorely under Foot. Yet nothing prov'd so formidable, As the horrid Cookery of the Rabble: And Fear that keeps all Feeling out, As lesser Pains are, by the Gout, Reliev'd'em with a fresh Supply Of rallied Force, enough to fly; And beat a Tuscan Running Horse, Whose Focky-Rider is all Spurs.

CANTO III.

The ARGUMENT.

The Knight and Squire's Prodigious Flight, To quit th'Inchanted Bow'r by Night: He plods to turn his Amorous Suit T'a Plea in Law, and prosecute: Repairs to Counsel, to advise 'Bout managing the Enterprize: But first resolves to try by Letter, And once more, fair Address, to get her.

W Ho would believe what strange Bugbears Mankind creates it self, of Fears? That spring like Fern, that Insect Weed, Equivocally, without Seed; And have no possible Foundation, But merely in th'Imagination: And yet can do more dreadful Feats, Than Hags, with all their Imps and Teats: Make more bewitch and haunt themselves, Than all their Nurseries of Elves. For fear does things so like a Witch, 'Tis hard t'unriddle which is which. Sets up Communities of Senses. To chop and change Intelligences: As Rosi-crusian Virtuoso's, Can see with Ears, and hear with Noses: And when they neither see nor hear, Have more than both suppli'd by Fear; That makes 'em in the dark see Visions,

And hag themselves with Apparitions: And when their Eyes discover least, Discern the subt'lest Objects best. Do things not contrary alone To th'Course of Nature, but its own: The Courage of the Bravest daunt, And turn Pultroons as valiant; For Men as resolute appear With too much, as too little Fear. And when th'are out of hopes of flying, Will run away from Death by dying: Or turn again to stand it out, And those they fled, like Lions Rout. This Hudibras had prov'd too true, Who, by the Furies, left Perdue: And haunted with Detachments, sent From Marshal-Legion's Regiment; Was by a Fiend, as counterfeit, Reliev'd and Rescu'd with a Cheat: When nothing but himself and fear Was both the Imps and Conjurer: As by the Rules o'th' Virtuosi, It follows in due Form of Posie.

Disguis'd in all the Masks of Night, We left our Champion on his flight: At Blind-Man's-Buff, to grope his way, In equal fear, of Night and Day: Who took his dark and desp'rate Course, He knew no better than his Horse; And by an unknown Devil led, (He knew as little whether) fled. He never was in greater need, Nor less Capacity of Speed: Disabled both in Man and Beast, To fly, and run away, his best; To keep the Enemy, and Fear, From equal falling on his Rere. And though with Kicks and bangs he ply'd The further, and the nearer side:

(As Sea-men ride with all their force, And Tug as if they Rowed the Horse; And when the Hackney Sails most swift, Believe they lag, or run a-drift) So though he posted e'er so fast, His Fear was greater than his Haste: For Fear though fleeter than the Wind, Believes 'tis always left behind. But when the Morn began to appear, And shift t'another Scene his Fear; He found his new Officious Shade, That came so timely to his Aid: And forc'd him from the Foe t'escape, Had turn'd it self to Ralpho's shape. So like in Person, Garb and Pitch, 'Twas hard t' interpret which was which.

For Ralpho had no sooner told The Lady all he had t'unfold, But she convey'd him out of sight, To entertain the approaching Knight. And while he gave himself Diversion, T' accommodate his Beast and Person; And put his Beard into a posture, At best advantage to accost her: She order'd th' Antimasquerade, (For his Reception) aforesaid: But when the Ceremony was done, The Lights put out, and Furies gone; And Hudibras, amongst the rest, Convey'd away, as Ralpho guest: The wretched Caitiff all alone, (As he believ'd) began to moan, And tell his Story to himself; The Knight mistook him for an Elf. And did so still, till he began To scruple at Ralph's Outward Man: And thought, because they oft agreed, T'appear in one another's stead; And act the Saint's and Devil's Part,

With undistinguishable Art. They might have done so now perhaps, And put on one another's Shapes; And therefore, to resolve the doubt, He star'd upon him, a[n]d cry'd out. What art? My Squire, or that bold Sprite, That took his Place and Shape to Night? Some busie Independent Pug, Retainer to his Synagogue? Alas, quoth he, I'm none of those Your Bosom-Friends, as you suppose; But Ralph himself, your trusty Squire, Wh'has drag'd your Dunship out o'th' Mire; And from the Inchantments of a Widdow, Wh'had turn'd you int' a Beast, have freed you. And, though a Prisoner of War, Have brought you safe, where now you are. Which you would gratefully repay, Your constant Presbyterian way. That's stranger (quoth the Knight) and stranger: Who gave thee notice of my danger? Quoth he, Th'Infernal Conjurer Pursu'd and took me Prisoner; And knowing you were here about, Brought me along, to find you out. Where I in Hugger-mugger hid, Have noted all they said and did: And though they lay to him the Pageant, I did not see him, nor his Agent; Who plai'd their Sorceries out of sight, T'avoid a fiercer, second Fight.

But, didst thou see no Devils then? Not one, quoth he, but Carnal Men. A little worse than Fiends in Hell, And that She-Devil, Jezabel; That laugh'd and tee-he'd with derision, To see them take your Deposition. What then (quoth Hudibras) was he, That plaid the Dev'l, to examine me?

A Rallying Weaver in the Town, That did it in a Parson's Gown: Whom all the Parish takes for gifted; But, for my part, I ne'er believ'd it. In which you told them all your Feats, Your Conscientious Frauds and Cheats; Deny'd your Whipping, and confess'd The naked Truth of all the rest: More plainly than the Reverend Writer, That to our Churches veil'd his Mitre. All which they took in Black and White, And cudgel'd me to under-write. What made thee, when they all were gone, And none but thou and I alone; To act the Devil, and forbear To rid me of my Hellish Fear? Quoth he, I knew your constant Rate, And Frame of Sp'rite, too obstinate, To be by me prevail'd upon With any Motives of my own: And therefore strove to counterfeit The Dev'l a while, to Nick your Wit. The Devil, that is your constant Crony, That only can prevail upon ye; Else we might still have been disputing, And they with weighty Drubs confuting.

The Knight, who now began to find Th'had left the Enemy behind; And saw no farther harm remain, But feeble Weariness and Pain; Perciev'd, by losing of their Way, Th'had gain'd th'advantage of the Day; And by declining of the Road, They had by chance their Rere made good. He ventur'd to dismiss his Fear, That parting's wont to Rant and Tear. And gives the desperat'st Attack To danger, still behind its Back. For, having paws'd to recollect,

And on his past Success reflect, T'examine and consider why, And whence, and how, he came to fly; And when no Devil had appear'd, What else, it could be said, he fear'd? It put him in so fierce a Rage, He once resolv'd to re-engage; Tost like a Foot-ball back again, With Shame, and Vengeance, and Disdain.

Quoth he, It was thy Cowardise That made me from this Leaguer rise; And when I had half reduc'd the place, To quit it infamously base. Was better cover'd by thy New Arriv'd Detachment than I knew: To slight my new Acquests, and run Victoriously, from Battels won. And reck'ning all I gain'd or lost, To sell them cheaper than they cost. To make me put my self to flight; And Conqu'ring, run away by Night. To drag me out, which th' haughty Foe, Durst never have presum'd to do. To mount me in the dark by force, Upon the bare Ridge of my Horse. Expos'd in Querpo to their Rage, Without my Arms and Equipage; Lest, if they ventur'd to pursue, I might the unequal Fight renew. And, to preserve thy Outward Man, Assum'd my Place, and led the Van.

All this, quoth Ralph, I did, 'tis true,
Not to preserve my self, but you.
You, who were damn'd to baser Drubs,
Than Wretches feel in Powd'ring Tubs:
To mount two wheel'd Carroches, worse
Than mannaging a Wooden Horse:
Drag'd out through straiter Holes, by th'Ears,

Eras'd, or Coup'd for Perjurers.
Who, though the Attempt had prov'd in vain,
Had had no reason to complain:
But since it prosper'd, 'tis unhandsome
To blame the Hand that paid your Ransome;
And rescued your obnoxious Bones
From unavoidable Battoons.
The Enemy was reinforc'd,
And we disabled and unhors'd:
Disarm'd, unqualified for Fight;
And no way left, but hasty Flight.
Which, though as desperate in the Attempt,
Has giv'n you freedom to condemn't.

But were our Bones in fit Condition To re-inforce the Expedition, 'Tis now unseasonable, and vain, To think of falling on again: No Martial Project to surprize, Can ever be attempted twice; Nor cast design serve afterwards, As Gamesters tear their losing Cards. Beside, our bangs of Man and Beast Are fit for nothing now but Rest. And for awhile will not be able To rally, and prove serviceable. And therefore I with reason chose This Stratagem, t'amuse our Foes. To make an Honourable Retreat. And wave a total sure Defeat: For, those that fly, may fight again, Which he can never do that's slain. Hence timely Running's no mean part Of Conduct, in the Martial Art. By which some Glorious Feats atchieve, As Citizens, by breaking, thrive. And Cannons conquer Armies, while They seem to draw off and recoyl. Is held the gallantest Course, and bravest, To great Exploits, as well as safest:

289

That spares the Expence of Time and Pains, And dangerous beating out of Brains. And in the end prevails, as certain, As those that never trust to Fortune; But make their Fear do Execution, Beyond the stoutest Resolution; As Earth-quakes kill, without a Blow, And only trembling, overthrow. If th'Ancients Crown'd their bravest Men That only sav'd a Citizen, What Victory could e'er be won, If ev'ry one would save but one? Or Fight endanger'd to be lost, Where all resolve to save the most? By this means, when a Battel's won, The War's as far from being done: For those that save themselves, and fly, Go halves, at least, in th' Victory: And sometime, when their loss is small, And danger great, they challenge all: Print new Additions to their Feats. And Emendations in Gazets; And when, for furious haste to run, They durst not stay to fire a Gun: Have don't with Bone-fires, and at home, Make Squibs and Crackers overcome.

To set the Rabble on a Flame,
And keep their Governors from Blame:
Disperse the News, the Pulpit tells,
Confirm'd with Fire-works, and with Bells:
And though reduc'd to that Extream,
They have been forc'd to sing Te Deum;
Yet, with Religious Blasphemy,
By flattering Heaven with a Lie,
And for their Beating, giving Thanks,
Th'have rais'd Recruits, and fill'd their Banks;
For those who run from the Enemy,
Engage them equally to fly.
And when the Fight becomes a Chace,

Those win the Day, that win the Race;
And that which would not pass in Fights,
Has done the Feat with easie Slights.
Recover'd many a desp'rate Campain,
With Bourdeaux, Burgundy and Champain.
Restor'd the fainting High and Mighty
With Brandy-Wine and Aqua-Vitæ.
And made them stoutly overcome,
With Bacrach, Hocamore and Mum:
Whom, the uncontroul'd Decrees of Fate
To Victory necessitate.
With which, although they run or burn,
They unavoidably return:
Or else their Sultan-Populaces
Still strangle all their routed Bassa's.

Ouoth Hudibras, I understand What Fights thou mean'st at Sea and Land; And who those were that run away, And yet gave out th'had won the day: Although the Rabble souc'd them for't, O'er Head and Ears in Mud and Dirt. 'Tis true, our Modern way of War Is grown more politick by far; But not so resolute and bold, Nor ty'd to Honour, as the Old. For, now they laugh at giving Battel, Unless it be to Herds of Cattel: Or fighting Convoys of Provision, The whole design of the Expedition. And not with down-right blows to rout The Enemy, but eat them out: As Fighting in all Beasts of Prey, And Eating are perform'd one way, To give defiance to their teeth, And fight their stubborn Guts to death, And those atchieve the high'st Renown, That bring the other Stomachs down. There's now no fear of wounds nor maining, All dangers are reduc'd to Famine.

Т2

And Feats of Arms, to Plot, Design, Surprize, and Stratagem, and Mine. But have no need, nor use of Courage, Unless it be for Glory, or Forrage: For if they fight, 'tis but by chance, When one side vent'ring to Advance, And come uncivilly too near, Are charg'd unmercifully i'th' Rere: And forc'd with terrible resistance, To keep hereafter at a distance, To pick out Ground to incamp upon Where store of largest Rivers run, That serve instead of peaceful Barriers To part th' Engagements of their Warriers. Where both from side to side may skip, And only encounter at Bo-peep. For Men are found the stouter hearted, The certainer th'are to be parted. And therefore post themselves in Bogs, As the ancient Mice attack'd the Frogs: And made their mortal Enemy, The Water-Rat, their great Ally. For 'tis not now, who's stout and bold; But who bears Hunger best, and Cold: And he's approv'd the most deserving, IV ho longest can hold out at starving: But he that routs most Pigs and Cows, The formidablest Man of Prowess. So, the Emperor Caligula, That triumph'd o'er the British Sea; Took Crabs and Oysters Prisoners. And Lobsters, 'stead of Curasiers; Engag'd his Legions in fierce Bustles, With Periwinkles, Prawns and Muscles: And led his Troops with furious Gallops, To charge whole Regiments of Scallops. Not like their ancient way of War, To wait on his Triumphal Carr: But when he went to Dine or Sup, More bravely eat his Captives up;

Quoth Ralph, by all that you have said, And twice as much that I could add, 'Tis plain, you cannot now do worse, Than take this out-of-fashion'd course: To hope by stratagem to woo her, Or waging Battle to subdue her. Though some have done it in Romances, And bang'd them into amorous Fancies, As those, who won the Amazons, By wanton drubbing of their bones: And stout Rinaldo gain'd his Bride By Courting of her Back and Side. But since those times and feats are over, They are not for a Modern Lover: When Mistresses are too cross-grain'd, By such Addresses, to be gain'd: And if they were, would have it out, With many other kind of Bout. Therefore I hold no Course s'infesible As this of force to win the Fezabel. To storm her heart, by th'Antick Charms Of Ladies Errant, force of Arms; But rather strive by Law to win her, And try the Title you have in her. Your case is clear, you have her Word, And me to witness the Accord. Besides two more of her Retinue, To testifie what pass'd between you. More probable, and like to hold, Than Hand, or Seal, or breaking Gold: For which so many that renounc'd Their plighted Contracts, have been trounc'd. And Bills upon Record been found, That forc'd the Ladies to compound: And that unless I miss the matter, Is all the business you look after: Besides, Encounters at the Bar,

Are braver now, than those in War. In which the Law does Execution, With less Disorder and Confusion: Has more of Honour in't some hold, Not like the New way, but the Old. When those the Pen had drawn together, Decided Quarrels with the Feather, And winged Arrows kill'd as dead, And more than Bullets now of Lead. So all their Combats now, as then, Are manag'd chiefly by the Pen. That does the Feat, with braver Vigours, In words at length, as well as Figures. Is Judge of all the World performs, In voluntary Feats of Arms. And whatso'ere's atchiev'd in Fight, Determines which is wrong or right; For whether you Prevail or Lose, All must be try'd there in the close. And therefore 'tis not wise to shun, IV hat you must trust to, ere y'have done.

The Law, that settles all you do,
And marries where you did but woo;
That makes the most perfidious Lover,
A Lady, that's as false, recover:
And if it judge upon your side,
IVill soon extend her for your Bride:
And put her Person, Goods, or Lands,
Or which you like best int'your hands;

For Law's the Wisdom of all Ages
And manag'd by the ablest Sages,
Who though their Bus'ness at the Bar
Be but a kind of Civil War,
In which th'ingage with fiercer Dudgeons
Than e're the Grecians did and Trojans.
They never manage the Contest,
T' impair their publick Interest;
Or by their Controversies, lessen

The dignity of their Profession: Not like us Brethren, who divide Our Common-wealth, the Cause and Side, And though w' are all as near of Kindred As th' outward Man is to the Inward; We agree in nothing but to wrangle About the slightest fingle fangle, While Lawyers have more sober sense, Than to argue at their own expence. But make their best Advantages, Of other quarrels, like the Swiss, And out of Foreign Controversies, By aiding both sides, fill their Purses. But have no int'rest in the Cause, For which th'engage, and wage the Laws: Nor further Prospect than their Pay, Whether they lose or win the Day. And though th'abounded in all Ages, With sundry learned Clerks, and Sages. Though all their business be Dispute, With which they canvas every Suit; Th' have no disputes about their Art, Nor in Polemicks controvert. While all Professions else are found, W ith nothing but Disputes t'abound : Divines of all sorts, and Physicians, Philosophers, Mathematicians; The Gallenist, and Paracelsian, Condemn the way each other deals in. Anatomists dissect and mangle, To cut themselves out Work to wrangle. Astrologers dispute their Dreams; That in their Sleeps they talk of Schemes. And Heralds stickle, who got who, So many hundred Years ago.

But Lawyers are too wise a Nation, T'expose their Trade to Disputation: Or make the busie Rabble Judges, Of all their secret Pi[q]ues, and Grudges:

In which whoever wins the day, The whole Profession's sure to pay.

Beside, no Mountebanks, nor Cheats Dare undertake to do their Feats; When in all other Sciences, They swarm, like Insects, and Increase: For what Bigot durst ever draw, By Inward Light, a Deed in Daw? Or could hold forth, by Revelation, An Answer to a Declaration? For those that meddle with their Tools Will cut their Fingers, if th'are Fools. And if you follow their Advice, In Bills, and Answers, and Replies: They'l write a Love-Letter in Chancery Shall bring her upon Oath to Answer ye. And soon Reduce you to b'your Wife, Or make her weary of her Life.

The Knight who us'd with Tricks and Shifts, To Edifie by Ralpho's Gifts:
But in appearance cry'd him down,
To make them better seem his own,
(All Plagiary's Constant Course
Of sinking, when they take a Purse)
Resolv'd to follow his Advice,
But kept it from him in disguise:
And after stubborn Contradiction,
To Counterfeit his own Conviction,
And by Transition, fall upon
The Resolution, as his own.

Quoth he; This Gambol thou advisest, Is of all others, the unwisest; For if I think by Law to gain her, There's nothing sillier nor vainer.
'Tis but to hazard my Pretence, Where nothing's certain but th' Expence. To A&t against my self, and Traverse

My Suit and Title to her favours. And if she should, which Heaven forbid, O'rethrow me, as the Fidler did,

What after-course have I to take, 'Gainst losing all I have at Stake? He that with injury is griev'd, And goes to Law to be Reliev'd; Is sillier than a sottish Chews, Who when a Thief has Rob'd his house; Applyes himself to Cunning-men To help him to his Goods again. When all he can expect to gain, Is but to squander more in vain: And yet I have no other way, But is as difficult, to play. For to reduce her, by main force, Is now in vain, by fair means, worse: But worst of all, to give her over, Till she's as desp'rate to recover. For bad Games are thrown up too soon, Until th'are never to be won. But since I have no other Course, But is as bad t'attempt, or worse: He that complies against his Will, Is of his own Opinion still; Which he may adhere to, yet disorun, For Reasons to himself best known: But 'tis not to be avoided now, For Sidrophel resolves to sue: Whom I must answer, or begin Inevitably, first with him. For I've reciev'd Advertisement, By times, enough of his intent; And knowing, he that first complains, Th'advantage of the business gains. For Courts of Justice understand The Plaintiff to be eldest hand; Who what he pleases may aver The other nothing till he swear:

Is freely admitted to all Grace,
And Lawful Favour by his place:
And for his bringing Custom in,
Has all Advantages to win.
I who resolve to oversee
No lucky Opportunity,
Will go to Counsel, to advise
Which way t'encounter or surprize.
And after long consideration,
Have found out one to fit th'occasion;
Most apt, for what I have to do,
As Counsellor, and Justice, too.
And truly so, no doubt, he was,
A Lawyer fit for such a Case.

An Old Dull Sot; wh'had told the Clock, For many years at Bridewel-Dock. At Westminster, and Hickses-Hall, And Hiccius-Doc[t]ius play'd in all; Where in all Governments, and Times, H'had been both friend, and fo to Crimes, And us'd two equal ways of gaining, By hindring Justice, or maintaining: To many a Whore gave Priviledge, And whip'd, for want of Quarteridge, Cart-loads of Bawds, to Prison sent For b'ing behind a Fortnights Rent. And many a trusty Pimp and Croney, To Puddle-dock, for want of money. Ingag'd the Constable to seize All those, that would not break the Peace. Nor give him back his own foul words, Though sometimes Commoners, or Lords: And kept 'em Prisoners, of Course, For being sober at ill hours. That in the Morning he might Free, Or bind 'em over, for his Fee. Made Monsters fine, and Puppet-plays, For leave to practice, in their ways: Farm'd out all Cheats, and went a share,

With th' Headborough, and Scavenger, And made the Dirt ith' Streets Compound, For taking up the Publick Ground: The Kennel, and the King's High-way, For being unmolested, Pay. Let out the Stocks, and Whipping-Post, And Cage, to those that gave him most; Impos'd a Tax on Bakers Ears, And for False Weights on Chandellers. Made Victuallers, and Vintners Fine For Arbitrary Ale, and Wine. But was a kind and constant Friend To all that Regularly offend: As Residentiary Bawds, And Brokers that receive stoll'n Goods; That cheat in Lawful Mysteries, And pay Church-duties, and his Fees; But was implacable and auker'd To all that Interlop'd, and Hawker'd.

To this brave Man, the Knight repairs For Counsel, in his Law-Affairs; And found him mounted, in his Pew, With Books, and Money plac'd, for shew, Like Nest-eggs, to make Clients lay And for his false Opinion pay:

To whom the Knight, with comely Grace, Put off his Hat, to put his Case:
Which he as proudly entertain'd, As the other courteously strain'd.
And to assure him, 'twas not that, He look'd for; Bid him put on's Hat.

Quoth he, there is one Sidrophel Whom I have cudgel'd—Very well. And now he brags, t'have beaten me. Better, and better still, quoth he. And vows to stick me to a Wall Where e're he meets me—best of all. 'Tis true, the Knave has taken's Oath,

That I rob'd him-Well done in troth. When h' has confest, he stole my Cloak, And pick'd my Fob, and what he took, Which was the cause, that made me bang him, And take my Goods again-marry hang him: Now whether I should, before hand Swear he rob'd me? I understand, Or bring my Action of Conversion And Trover for my Goods? Ah Whorson. Or if 'tis better to indite, And bring him to his Trial? - Right, Prevent what he designs to do, And swear for th' state against him? -- True. Or whether he that is Defendant In this Case, has the better end on't; IV ho putting in a new cross-bill, May traverse th' Action—better still. Then there's a Lady too. - I marry, That's easily prov'd accessary. A Widow, who by solemn Vows, Contracted to me, for my Spouse, Combin'd with him to break her word, And has abetted all -Good Lord, Suborn'd the aforesaid Sidrophel, To tamper with the Dev'l of Hell. Who put m'into horrid fear, Fear of my Life, --- Make that appear. Made an assault, with Fiends and Men Upon my body. —Good agen. And kept me in a deadly fright And false Imprisonment all Night, Mean while, they rob'd me, and my Horse, And stole my Saddle,—worse and worse; And made me mount upon the bare-ridge, T' avoid a wretcheder miscarriage:

Sir, quoth the Lawyer, not to flatter ye, You have as Good, and Fair a Battery, As heart can wish, and need not shame, The proudest Man alive to claim.

For if th' have us'd you, as you say, Marry, quoth I, God give you joy, I would it were my Case, I'd give, More than I'll say, or you'll believe. I would so trounce her, and her Purse, I'ld make her kneel for bett'r or worse; For Matrimony, and Hanging here, Both go by destiny so clear, That you as sure, may Pick and Choose, As Cross I win, and Pile you lose. And if I durst, I would advance As much, in Ready Maintenance; As upon any Case I've known, But we that practice dare not own, The Law severely contrabands, Our taking business off Mens hands; 'Tis Common barratry, that bears Point blank an Action 'gainst our Ears, And crops them, till there is not Leather, To stick a Pin in, left of either; For which, some do the Summer-sault And ore the Bar, like Tumblers, vault. But you may swear at any rate Things not in Nature, for the State: For in all Courts of Justice here A Witness is not said to swear, But make Oath, that is, in plain terms, To forge whatever he affirms: (I thank you, quoth the Knight, for that, Because 'tis to my purpose pat----) [F]or Justice, though she's painted blind, Is to the weaker side enclin'd Like charity, else right, and wrong, Could never hold it out so long, And like blind Fortune, with a slight, Conveys Mens Interest, and Right, From Stile's Pocket, into Nokeses: As easily as Hocus Pocus. Plays fast and loose, makes Men Obnoxious, And clear again, like Hiccius-Doctius.

Then whether you would take her life, Or but recover her for your Wife: Or be content with what she has, And let all other matters Pass, The Business to the Law's alone, The proof is all it look's upon. And you can want no Witnesses, To swear to any thing you please. That hardly get their meer Expences By th' Labor of their Consciences, Or letting out to hire, their Ears, To Affidavit-Customers: At inconsiderable values, To serve for Jury-men, or Tales, Although retain'd in th' hardest matters, Of Trustees, and Administrators: For that, quoth he, let me alone, IV' have store of such, and all our own; Bred up and tutor'd, by our Teachers, The ablest of Conscience-stretchers. That's well! Quoth he, But I should Guess, By weighing of Advantages. Your surest way is first to Pitch On Bongey, for a Water-witch: And when y' have hang'd the Conjurer, I' have time enough, to deal with her. In th' Intrim; Spare for no Trepans, To draw her Neck, into the Banes : Ply her with Love-Letters, and Billets, And Bait 'em well, for Quirks, and Quillets With Trains t' inveigle and surprise, Her Heedless Answers, and Reply's: And if she miss the Moustrap-Lines, They'll serve for other By-Designs: And make an Artist understand, To Copy out her Seal, or Hand: Or find void Places in the Paper, To steal in something to Intrap her. 'Till with her worldly Goods, and Body, Stight of heart, she has indow'd ye.

Retain all sorts of Witnesses,
That ply ith Temples, under trees.
Or walk the Round, with Knights [o'th'] Posts:
About the Cross-leg'd Knights, their hosts,
Or wait for Customers, between
The Piller-Rows in Lincolns-Inn.
Where Vouchers, Forgers, Common-bayl,
And Affidavit-men, ne'r fail
T' expose to Sale, all sorts of Oaths,
According to their Ears, and Cloaths.
Their only Necessary Tools,
Besides the Gospel, and their Souls.
And when y'are furnish'd with all Purveys
I shall be ready, at your service.

I would not give, quoth Hudibras, A straw to understand a Case, Without the admirabler skill To Wind, and Manage it at Will: To Vere, and Tack, and stear a Cause, Against the IV eather-gage of Laws; And Ring the Changes upon Cases, As plain, as Noses upon Faces. As you have well instructed me For which you have earn'd (here 'tis) your Fee, I long to practice your advice, And try the subtle Artifice: To bait a Letter, as you bid, As not long after, thus he did, For having pump'd up all his Wit, A[n]d bum'd upon it, thus he Writ.

An Heroical Epistle of Hudibras to his Lady.

I Who was once as great as Cæsar, Am now reduc'd to Nebuchadnezar. And from as fam'd a Conqueror, As ever took degree in War, Or did his Exercise in Battel, By you turn'd out to Grass with Cattel. For since I am deny'd access To all my Earthly Happiness. Am fallen from the Paradise Of your good Graces, and fair Eyes. Lost to the World, and you, I'me sent To Everlasting Banishment Where all the Hopes I had, t' have won Your heart, being dash'd, will break my own. Yet if you were not so severe To pass your doom, before you hear, You'll find, upon my just defence, How much y' have wrong'd my Innocence, That once I made a Vow to you, Which yet is unperform'd 'tis true; But not, because it is unpaid, 'Tis Violated, though delay'd: Or if it were, it is no fault So hainous, as you'ld have it thought, To undergo the loss of Ears, Like vulgar Hackney Perjurers, For there's a difference in the case Between the Noble, and the Base: Who always are observ'd t' have don't, Upon as different an account: The one for great, and weighty Cause, To salve in Honour ugly Flaws. For none are like to do it sooner, Than those, who are nicest of their Honour. The other, for base Gain, and Pay, Forswear, and Perjure, by the Day;

AN HEROICAL EPISTLE

And make th' exposing, and retailing Their Souls, and Consciences, a Calling.

It is no Scandal, nor Aspersion, Upon a Great and noble Person, To say, he Nat'rally abhorr'd Th' old fashion'd trick, to keep his Word Though 'tis perfidiousness, and shame, In meaner Men, to do the same. For to be able to Forget, Is found more useful, to the Great: Then Gout, or Deafness, or bad Eyes, To make 'em pass for wondrous wise. But though the Law, on Perjurers, Inflicts the Forfeiture of Ears; It is not just, that does exempt The Guilty, and punish the innocent, To make the Ears repair the wrong, Committed by th' ungovern'd Tongue; And when one Member is forsworn, Another to be cropt or torn. And if you should, as you design, By course of Law recover mine. You're like, if you consider right, To Gain but little Honour by't. For he that for his Ladies sake Lays down his Life, or Limbs at Stake, Does not so much deserve her Favour, As he, that pawns his Soul to have her. This y'have acknowledg'd I have done, Although you now disdain to own: But sentence, what you rather ought T' esteem good Service, then a Fault, Besides, Oaths are not bound to bear That Literal Sense, the words infer, But by the practice of the Age, Are to be judg'd how far th' engage. And where the sense by Custom's checkt, Are found void, and of none effect. For no Man takes, or keeps a vow,

But just as he sees others do,
Nor are th' obliged to be so brittle,
As not to yield, and bow a little,
For as best temper'd Blades are found
Before they break, to bend quite round,
So truest Oaths are still most tough,
And though they bow, are breaking proof.
Then wherefore should they not b'allow'd
In love a greater Latitude?
For as the Law of Arms approves
All ways to Conquests, so should Loves;
And not be ty'd to true or false,
But make that justest, that prevails,

For how can that which is above All Empire, High and Mighty Love, Submit it's great Prerogative, To any other power alive? Shall Love, that to no Crown gives place Become the subject of a Case? The Fundamental Law of Nature, Be over-rul'd! by those made after? Commit the censure of its Cause To any, but it's own Great Laws? Love, that's the Worlds preservative, That keeps all Souls of things alive? Controuls the Mighty pow'r of Fate, And gives Mankind a longer date. The Life of Nature, that restores, As fast [as] Time, and Death devours, To whose free gift, the World does ow Not only Earth but Heav'n too: For Love's the only Trade that's driven The Interest of State in Heaven, Which nothing but the Soul of Man, Is capable to entertain. For what can Earth produce, but Love To represent the Joys above? Or who, but Lovers, can converse, Like Angels, by the Eye Discourse?

AN HEROICAL EPISTLE

Address, and complement by vision, Make Love, and Court by intuition? And burn in Amorous Flames as fierce, As those Celestial Ministers? Then how can any thing offend In order, to so great an end? Or Heav'n it self a Sin resent, That for its own supply was ment? That merits in a kind mistake, A Pardon for the offences sake. Or if it did not, but the Cause Were left to'th injury of Laws, What tyranny can disapprove There should be Equity in Love? For Laws, that are Inanimate And feel no sense of Love, or Hate: That have no Passion of their own No[r] pity to be wrought upon, Are only proper to inflict Revenge, on Criminals, as strict: But to have Power to forgive, Is Empire, and Prerogative; And 'tis in Crowns, a nobler Jem, To grant a Pardon, then condemn. Then since so few do what they ought, 'Tis great, t'indulge a well meant fault. For why should he, who made address All humble ways, without success: And met with nothing in return, But Insolence, Affronts, and Scorn, Not strive by Wit to countermine, And bravely carry his Design? He who was us'd so unlike a Soldier, Blown up with Philters of Love-Powder? And after letting Blood and Purging, Condemn'd to voluntary Scourging? Alarm'd with many a horrid Fright, And claw'd, by Goblins, in the Night? Insulted on, Revil'd and Jear'd, With rude Invasion of his Beard?

U 2 307

And when your Sex was foully scandal'd, As foully by the Rabble handled? Attack'd by despicable Foes, And drub'd with mean and vulgar blows; And after all, to be debarr'd So much as standing on his Guard? When Horses being spurr'd and prick'd, Have leave to kick, for being kick'd?

Or why should you, whose Mother Wits Are furnish'd with all Perquisits? That with your Breeding Teeth begin, And Nursing Babies, that Lie in? B' allow'd to put all tricks upon Our Cully-Sex, and we use none? We, who have nothing but frail Vows, Against your Stratagems t'oppose? Or Oaths, more feeble than your own, By which, we are no less put down? You wound, like Parthians, while you fly, And kill, with a Retreating Eye; Retire the more, the more we press, To draw us into Ambushes. As Pyrates all false Colours wear, T'intrap th'unwary Mariner: So Women, to surprize us, spread Their borrowed Flags, of White and Red. Display 'em thicker on their Cheeks, Than their old Grandmothers, the Piets: And raise more Devils with their Looks, Than Conjurers less subtil Books. Lay Trains of Amorous Intrigues, In Towrs, and Curls, and Perriwigs. With greater Art, and cunning rear'd, Than Philip Ny's Thanks-giving-beard, Prepost'rously t'intice, and Gain, Those to adore 'em they disdain: And only draw 'em in, to clog With idle Names, a Catalogue.

AN HEROICAL EPISTLE

A Lover is, the more he's brave, T'his Mistress, but the more a Slave, And whatsoever she commands Becomes a Favour from her hands; Which he's oblig'd to obey, and must, Whether it be unjust, or just. Then when he is compell'd by her T'Adventures, he would else forbear, Who, with his Honour, can withstand, Since Force is greater than Command? And when Necessity's obey'd Nothing can be unjust or bad: And therefore, when the mighty Pow'rs Of Love, your great Allie, and yours; Joyn'd Forces, not to be withstood By frail enamoured Flesh and Blood; All I have done unjust or ill Was in obedience to your Will: And all the blame that can be due Falls to your cruelty and you.

Nor are those Scandals I confest, Against my Will, and Interest, More than is daily done of course By all men, when th'are under force. Whence some, upon the Rack, confess What th' Hang-man and their Prompters please. But are no sooner out of pain Then they deny it all again. But when the Devil turns Confessor, Truth is a Crime, he takes no pleasure To hear, or pardon, like the Founder Of Lyars, whom they all claim under. And therefore, when I told him none, I think it was the wiser done. Nor am I without Precedent, The first that on th'Adventure, went: All Mankind ever did of course, And daily does the same, or worse. For what Romance can shew a Lover,

That had a Lady to recover, And did not steer a nearer Course, To fall aboard in his Amours? And what at first was held a Crime, Has turn'd to Honourable in time.

To what a height did Infant Rome, By Ravishing of Women come? When Men upon their Spouses siez'd, And freely Marry'd where they pleas'd: They ne'er Forswore themselves nor Ly'd, Nor in the Minds they were in, Dy'd: Nor took the pains t'address and sue, Nor plaid the Masquerade to wooe. Disdain'd to stay for Friends Consents, Nor juggled about Settlements: Did need no License, nor no Priest, Nor Friends, nor Kindred to assist; Nor Lawyers, to joyn Land, and Money, In th'Holy State of Matrimony: Before they setled Hands and Hearts, Till Alimony, or Death departs: Nor would endure to stay, until Th'had got the very Bride's Good Will. But took a wise and shorter Course, To win the Lady's, Down-right Force. And justly made 'em Prisoners then, As they have often since, us Men; With Acting Plays, and Dancing Figgs, The luckiest of all Love's Intrigues: And when they had them at their pleasure, Then talk'd of Love, and Flames, at leisure. For, after Matrimony's over, He that holds out but Half a Lover, Deserves for ev'ry Minute, more Than half a Year of Love before: For which the Dames, in Contemplation Of that best way of Application, Prov'd Nobler Wives than e'er were known, By Suit, or Treaty, to be won:

AN HEROICAL EPISTLE

And such as all Posterity Could never equal, nor come nigh.

For Women first were made for Men, Not Men for them.—It follows then, That Men have Right to every one, And they no Freedom of their own: And therefore Men have pow'r to chuse, But they no Charter to refuse. Hence 'tis apparent, that what Course So e'er we take to your Amours, Though by the indirectest way, 'Tis no Injustice, nor Foul Play. And that you ought to take that Course, As we take you, for Bett'r or Worse; And gratefully submit to those Who you, before another, chose: For why should every Savage Beast Exceed his Great Lord's Interest? Have freer Pow'r, than he, in Grace, And Nature, o'er the Creature has? Because the Laws he since has made Have cut off all the Pow'r he had; Retrench'd the absolute Dominion, That Nature gave him, over Women. When all his Pow'r will not extend, One Law of Nature to suspend: And but to offer to repeal The smallest Clause, is to rebel. This, if Men rightly understood Their Privilege, they would make good; And not, like Sots, permit their Wives T'encroach on their Prerogatives. For which Sin, they deserve to be Kept, as they are, in Slavery. And this, some precious Gifted Teachers Unrev'rently reputed Leachers; And disobey'd in making Love, Have vow'd to all the World, to prove

And make ye suffer, as ye ought, For that uncharitable Fault.

But, I forget my self, and rove Beyond th'Instructions of my Love. Forgive me (Fair) and only blame Th'extravagancy of my Flame, Since 'tis too much, at once to shew Excess of Love, and Temper too. All I have said that's bad, and true, Was never meant to aim at you; Who have so Sov'rain a Controul O'er that poor Slave of yours, my Soul: That, rather than to forfeit you, Has ventur'd loss of Heaven too. Both with an equal Pow'r possest, To render all that serve you blest: But none like him, who's destin'd, either To have, or lose you, both together. And if you'l but this fault release, (For so it must be, since you please,) I'll pay down all that Vow, and more, Which you commanded, and I swore. And expiate upon my Skin, The Arrears in full of all my Sin. For, 'tis but just, that I should pay Th'accruing Penance for Delay. Which shall be done, until it move Your equal pity, and your Love.

The Knight, perusing this Epistle,
Believ'd h'had brought her to his Whistle;
And read it, like a jocund Lover,
With great Applause t'himself, twice over;
Subscrib'd his Name, but at a Fit,
And humble distance, to his wit:
And dated it with wondrous Art,
Giv'n from the bottom of his heart:
Then seal'd it with his Coat of Love
A smoaking Faggot——and above

Upon a Scroll——I burn, and weep, And near it——For her Ladyship; Of all her Sex, most excellent, These to her gentle Hands present. Then gave it to his Faithful Squire, With Lessons how t'observe and eye her.

She first consider'd which was better, To send it back, or burn the Letter: But, guessing that it might import, Though nothing else, at least, her Sport. She open'd it, and read it out, With many a smile, and learing Flout: Resolv'd to answer it in kind, And thus perform'd what she design'd.

THE

LADY'S ANSWER

KNIGHT.

That you'r a Beast, and turn'd to Grass, Is no strange News, nor ever was; At least, to me, who once, you know, Did from the Pound, Replevin you. When both your Sword, and Spurs, were won In Combat, by an Amazon; That Sword, that did (like Fate) determine Th'Inevitable Death of Vermine: And never dealt its furious blows, But cut the Threds of Pigs and Cows; By Trulla was, in single Fight, Disarm'd and wrested from its Knight. Your Heels Degraded of your Spurs, And in the Stocks, close Prisoners. Where still th'had Layn in base Restraint, If I, in pity of your Complaint, Had not on Honourable Conditions, Releast 'em from the worst of Prisons; And what Return that favour met, You cannot (though you would) forget; When being free, you strove t'evade The Oaths you had in Prison made: Forswore your self, and first deny'd it; But after own'd, and justify'd it: And when y'had falsely broke one Vow, Absolv'd your self by breaking two. For while you sneakingly submit, And beg for Pardon at our Feet:

THE LADY'S ANSWER TO THE KNIGHT

Discourag'd by your guilty Fears, To hope for Quarter, for your Ears. And doubting 'twas in vain to sue, You claim us boldly as your due. Declare that Treachery and Force To deal with us is th'only Course. Who have no Title nor Pretence, To Body, Soul or Conscience: But ought to fall to that Man's share, That claims us for his proper Ware. These are the Motives, which t'induce, Or fright us into Love, you use, A pretty new way of Gallanting, Between Soliciting and Ranting; Like sturdy Beggars, that intreat For Charity at once, and threat. But since you undertake to prove Your own Propriety in Love, As if we were but Lawful Prize In War, between two Enemies; Or Forfeitures, which ev'ry Lover That would but sue for, might recover, It is not hard to understand The Myst'ry of this Bold Demand: That cannot at our Persons aim, But something capable of Claim.

'Tis not those paultry counterfeit
French Stones, which in our Eyes you set:
But our Right Diamonds, that inspire,
And set your Amorous Hearts on fire.
Nor can those false St. Martins Beads,
Which on our Lips you lay for Reds;
And make us wear, like Indian Dames,
Add Fewel to your Scorching Flames.
But those true Rubies of the Rock,
Which, in our Cabinets we lock.

'Tis not those Orient Pearls, our Teeth, That you are so transported with: But those we wear about our Necks, Produce those Amorous Effects.

HUDIBRAS

Nor is't those Threads of Gold, our Hair, The Perewigs you make us wear: But those bright Guinneys in our Chests, That light the Wild Fire in your Breasts. These Love-tricks I've been vers'd in so, That all their sly Intrigues I know. And can unriddle, by their Tones, Their Mystick Cabals, and Jargones. Can tell what Passions, by their Sounds, Pine for the Beauties of my Grounds: What Raptures fond, and Amorous O'th' Charms and Graces of my House. What Exstacy, and Scorching Flame Burns for my Mony, in my Name. What from th'unnatural desire To Beasts and Cattel, take[s] its fire. What tender Sigh, and trickling Tear, Longs for a thousand Pound a Year. And Languishing Transports are fond Of Statute, Mortgage, Bill and Bond. These are th'Attracts which most Men fall Inamour'd, at first sight, withal. To these th'address with Serenades, And Court with Balls and Masquerades; And yet, for all the yearning Pain Y'have suffer'd for their Loves, in vain: I fear they'l prove so nice and coy, To have and t'hold, and to enjoy; That all your Oaths, and Labour lost, They'l ne'er turn Ladies of the Post. This is not meant to disapprove Your Judgment in your Choice of Love; Which is so wise, the greatest part Of Mankind study't as an Art. For Love should, like a Deodand, Still fall to th'owner of the Land: And where there's Substance, for its Ground Cannot but be more firm, and sound, Than that which has the slighter Basis Of Airy Vertue, Wit and Graces:

THE LADY'S ANSWER TO THE KNIGHT

Which is of such thin Subtilty, It steals and creeps in at the Eye. And, as it can't endure to stay, Steals out again as nice a way.

But Love, that its Extraction owns From solid Gold, and precious Stones; Must, like its shining Parents prove As Solid, and as Glorious Love. Hence 'tis, you have no way t'express Our Charms and Graces, but hy these: For, what are Lips, and Eyes, and Teeth, Which Beauty invades, a[n]d conquers with? But Rubies, Pearls and Diamonds; With which a Philter Love commands?

This is the way all Parents prove, In imagining their Children's Love; That force 'em t'inter-marry and wed, As if th'were Bur'ing of the Dead. Cast Earth to Earth, as in the Grave, To joyn in Wedlock all they have. And when the Settlement's in force, Take all the rest, For Better, or Worse; For Money has a Power above The Stars and Fate, to manage Love: Whose Arrows, Learned Poets hold, That never miss, are tipp'd with Gold. And though some say, the Parents claims To make Love in their Children's Names. Who, many times, at once, provide The Nurse, the Husband, and the Bride. Feel Darts and Charms, Attracts and Flames; And woo, and contract, in their Names. And as they Christen, use to marry 'em, And, like their Gossips, answer for 'em: Is not to give in Matrimony; B[u]t sell and prostitute for Mony. 'Tis better than their own Betrothing; Who often do't for worse than nothing. And when th'are at their own Dispose, With greater disadvantage chuse.

HUDIBRAS

All this is right! But for the Course You take to do't, by Fraud, or Force: 'Tis so ridiculous, as soon As told, 'tis never to be done. No more than Setters can betray, That tell what Tricks they are to play. Marriage, at best, is but a Vow; Which all Men either break, or bow: Then what will those forbear to do. Who perjure, when they do but woo? Such as, beforehand, swear and lye, For Earnest to their Treachery: And, rather than a Crime confess, With greater, strive to make it less. Like Thieves, who, after Sentence past, Maintain their Innocence to the last. And when their Crimes were made appear As plain as Witnesses can swear. Yet, when the Wretches come to dye, Will take upon their Deaths a Lye. Nor are the Vertues, you confest T'your Ghostly Father, as you guest, So slight, as to be justifi'd, By being, as shamefully, deny'd. As if you thought your Word would pass Point-blank, on both sides, of a Case, Or Credit were not to be lost, B'a Brave Knight Errant of the Post. That eats, perfidiously, his Word, And swears his Ears through a two Inch Board: Can own the same thing, and disown; And perjure Booty, Pro and Con. Can make the Gospel serve his turn, And help him out to be forsworn; When 'tis laid hands upon, and kiss'd, To be betray'd, and sold, like Christ. These are the Vertues, in whose Name, A Right to all the World you claim: And boldly challenge a Dominion, In Grace and Nature, o'er all Women.

THE LADY'S ANSWER TO THE KNIGHT

Of whom, no less will satisfie, Than all the Sex, your Tyranny. Although you'll find it a hard Province, With all your crafty Frauds and Covins, To govern such a numerous Crew, Who, one by one, now govern you: For if you all were Solomons, And Wise and Great as he was once, You'll find Th'are able to subdue, (As they did him) and baffle you.

And if you are impos'd upon, 'Tis by your own Temptation done: That with your Ignorance invite, And teach us how to use the slight. For, when we find y'are still more taken With false Attracts of our own making; Swear that's a Rose, and that a Stone, Like Sots to us that laid it on: And what we did but slightly prime, Most ignorantly daub in Rhime: You force us in our own Defences, To copy Beams and Influences; To lay Perfections on the Graces, And draw Attracts upon our Faces: And, in compliance to your Wit, Your own false Jewels counterfeit. For, by the practice of those Arts, We gain a greater share of Hearts: And those deserve in reason most, That greatest pains and study cost; For, great Perfections are like Heav'n, Too rich a Present to be given. Nor are those Master-strokes of Beauty To be perform'd without hard Duty. Which, when th'are nobly done, and well, The simple Natural excel.

How fair and sweet the Planted Rose, Beyond the Wild in Hedges grows? For, without Art, the Noblest Seeds Of Flow'rs degenerate to Weeds:

HUDIBRAS

How dull and rugged e'er 'tis Ground, And Polish'd, looks a Diamond? Though Paradise was e'er so fair, It was not kept so without Care. The whole World, without Art and Dress, Would be but one great Wilderness. And Mankind but a Savage Heard, For all that Nature has conferr'd. This does but Rough-herv, and Design, Leave Art to Polish, and Refine. Though Women first were made for Men, Yet Men were made for them agen: For when (out-witted by his Wife), Man first turn'd Tenant, but, for Life, If Women had not interven'd, How soon had Mankind had an end? And that it is in Being yet, To us alone, you are in Debt. Then where's your liberty of Choice, And our unnatural No-voice? Since all the Privilege you boast, And falsly usurp'd, or vainly lost, Is now our Right; to whose Creation, You owe your Happy Restoration. And if we had not weighty Cause To not appear in making Laws, We could, in spight of all your Tricks, And Shallow, Formal Politicks; Force you, our Managements t'obey, As we to yours (in shew) give way. Hence 'tis, that while you vainly strive T'advance your high Prerogative, You basely, after all your Braves, Submit, and own your selves our Slaves. And 'cause we do not make it known, Nor publickly our Int'rests own; Like Sots, suppose we have no shares In ord'ring you, and your Affairs: When all your Empire and Command You have from us at Second Hand.

THE LADY'S ANSWER TO THE KNIGHT

As if a Pilot, that appears To sit still only, while he steers: And does not make a noise and stir, Like every common Mariner: Knew nothing of the Card, nor Star; And did not guide the Man of War. Nor we, because we don't appear In Councils, do not govern there. While like the Mighty Prester John, Whose Person none dares look upon; But is preserv'd in Close Disguise From being made cheap to vulgar Eyes. W'enjoy as large a Pow'r unseen, To govern him, as he does Men: And, in the Right of our Pope Joan, Make Emp'rors at our feet fall down. Or Joan the Pucel's braver Name, Our Right to Arms and Conduct claim. Who, though a Spinster, yet was able, To serve France for a Grand Constable. We make and execute all Laws; Can judge the Judges, and the Cause. Prescribe all Rules of Right or Wrong, To th'Long Robe, and the Longer Tongue: 'Gainst which the World has no Defence, But our more pow'rful Eloquence. We manage things of greatest weight In all the World's Affairs of State.

We rule all Churches, and their Flocks, Heretical, and Orthodox.

And are the Heavenly Vehicles
O'th' Spirit, in all Conventicles.

By us is all Commerce and Trade
Improv'd, and Manag'd, and Decay'd.

For, nothing can go off so well,

Nor bears that Price, as what we sell.

We rule in ev'ry Publick Meeting,

And make Men do what we judge fitting.

Are Ministers of War and Peace, That sway all Nations how they please.

HUDIBRAS

Are Magistrates in all great Towns; Where Men do nothing, but wear Gowns. We make the Man of War strike Sail, And to our braver Conduct vail. And, when h'has chac'd his Enemies, Submit to us upon his Knees. Is there an Officer of State, Untimely rais'd; or Magistrate, That's Haughty, and Imperious? He's but a Journy-man to us. That, as he gives us cause to do't, Can keep him in, or turn him out. We are your Guardians, that increase, Or Waste your Fortunes, how we please. And, as you humour us, can deal In all your Matters, ill or well. 'Tis we that can dispose alone, Whether your Heirs shall be your own. To whose Integrity you must, In spight of all your Caution, trust. And 'less you fly beyond the Seas, Can fit you with what Heirs we please: And force you t'own 'em, though begotten By French Valets, or Irish Foot-men. Nor can the rigorousest Course Prevail, unless to make us worse. Who, still the harsher we are us'd, Are further off from being reduc'd: And scorn t'abate, for any Ills, The least Punctilio of our Wills. Force does but whet our Wits to apply Arts, born with us, for Remedy: Which all your Politicks, as yet, Have ne'er been able to defeat. For, when y'have try'd all sorts of ways, What Fools d'we make of you in Plays? While all the Favours we afford Are but to girt you with the Sword, To fight our Battels in our steads, And have your Brains beat out o'your Heads:

THE LADY'S ANSWER TO THE KNIGHT

Encounter in despight of Nature; And fight at once with Fire and Water, With Pyrates, Rocks, and Storms, and Seas, Our Pride and Vanity t'appease. Kill one another, and cut Throats, For our good Graces, and best Thoughts; To do your Exercise for Honour, And have your Brains beat out the sooner; Or crack'd, as Learnedly, upon Things that are never to be known: And still appear the more industrious, The more your Projects are prepostrous. To square the Circle of the Arts; And run stark mad to shew your Parts. Expound the Oracle of Laws, And turn them which way we see Cause. Be our Solicitors, and Agents, And stand for us in all Engagements. And these are all the Mighty Powers, You vainly boast, to cry down ours. And what in real Value's wanting, Supply with Vapouring and Ranting: Because your selves are terrify'd, And stoop to one another's Pride: Believe we have as little Wit To be Out-hector'd, and Submit: By your Example, lose that Right In Treaties, which we gain'd in Fight: And terrify'd into an Awe, Pass on our selves a Salick Law, Or, as some Nations use, give place, And truckle to your Mighty Race. Let Men usurp th'unjust Dominion, As if they were the better IV omen.
